$500,000 Put in Senate Bill to Save FHA Jobs

Committee Adds Sum to Deficiency Bill to Keep 4,800 From Furloughs

By a last-minute move not recommended by the sub-committee in charge, the Senate Appropriations committee yesterday saved the jobs of 1,500 FHA employes in the District by allowing $500,000 more for the agency than voted by the House.

Jobs affected throughout the Nation total 4,800, and the appropriation as it now stands—$1,600,000—was recommended by the Budget Bureau. The $500,000, the FHA pointed out, would not cost the Government extra—as the agency's income more than covers the amount.

Altogether the committee added $8,099,336 to the measure as passed by the House, making a total for the second deficiency bill of $148,570,364.

$600,000 for Trust Inquiry

It voted $600,000 to continue the President's monopoly investigation, $4,000,000 for a reclamation project at Barker Dam, Ariz., $4,000,000 for sugar act payments, $300,000 for F. B. I. agents' salaries, and $100,000 for eradication of Dutch elm disease. Funds for attendance by members of the Children's Bureau, Department of Labor, at a "Conference on Children in a Democracy" were not allowed.

Conspicuously absent from the bill as reported by the Senate was $75,000 for a girls' gymnasium for Calvin Coolidge Junior High School. Hearings on the measure showed the committee had scolded Superintendent Ballou for going ahead with the building "at a price higher than Congress stated."

$1,250,000 Set as Cost

The building, now under construction, was supposed to cost $1,350,000. When bids went above that amount, the Board of Education let the contracts, with the gymnasium omitted. Dr. Ballou said the same procedure had been followed in construction of Eastern High School.

"It is drawing near the time when the Commissioners and the Board of Education should comply with the representations that they make to Congress. It is not for Congress to follow, but for them," Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, told Dr. Ballou, the hearings revealed.

By following the procedure recommended by Senator Adams, Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital, was able to secure $70,000 for that institution at the last minute.

$70,000 Inserted

When bids on plans for two continuous-treatment buildings authorized for the hospital by the last Congress were opened two weeks ago, the lowest one ran $70,000 above the $380,000 appropriated. The committee inserted that amount in yesterday's bill.

William A. Van Duzer, director of the department of motor vehicles and traffic, was given $22,300 with which to provide additional parking space at the two vehicular inspection stations now under construction.

Another item increased by the Senate was $11,682.23, which the House voted for fees of jurors and witnesses in the District Court. The amount was raised to $11,812.95.

Sen. Townsend's Grandson Killed in Fall From Roof

Child, 5, Dies of Fractured Skull 20 Minutes After Being Found by Nurse; Parents Away at Time of Tragedy

The 5-year-old grandson of Senator Townsend (Republican), of Delaware, was injured fatally last night when he fell from the 20-foot roof of his home at 1344 Thirtieth street northwest.

The child, Paul Townsend, jr., son of Paul Townsend, who is secretary to his father, was found injured on the flagstones of the patio in the rear of the home at 5:40 p. m. by his nurse, Susan Hargis. He died 20 minutes later at Emergency Hospital of a fractured skull and cerebral hemorrhage.

Dr. Joseph S. Wall, family physician, said he had been told by by a member of the family that the child had climbed a tree to a high wall, and from there to a one-story roof of a living room in the rear of the three-story brick building.

Immediate treatment was given the child by Dr. Wall and Emergency Hospital doctors. Dr. John J. Shugrue, brain specialist, was also called in an attempt to save the youngster.

Neighbors, who spoke of Paul, jr., as an exceptionally brilliant child, said they had seen him playing on the roof.

It was learned that the child had been taken down from the roof last week after he had been discovered walking along the rain gutter. His parents, out of the town for the day, did not learn of his death until after their arrival.

Senate Defers Vote on Relief Bill Increase

Argument on Time For Debate Results In Deadlock

Amid charges of filibuster, the Senate yesterday postponed—probably to Monday—a vote on the proposal to increase a $100,000,000 emergency relief appropriation to the $150,000,000 requested by the President.

Sharp disagreement between Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, and Minority Leader McNary, over how much time to allot for debate before voting Monday resulted in a deadlock that was eased temporarily only by calling the Senate into session today.

After an all-day debate consumed largely by Democratic Senators Mead, of New York, and Downey, of California, in an appeal for the $150,000,000, Senator Pepper, leader of the forces seeking to raise the House appropriation, asked unanimous consent for three hours' debate Monday before the vote. Holding out for two hours, McNary blocked the move.

Roused by McNary's action, which had the effect of forcing the Senate to meet today, Pepper promised that he would line up enough speakers in favor of increasing the relief grant to stave off a vote at least until Monday afternoon.

The New Dealers who indulged in prolonged speechmaking Thursday and yesterday—and gave every indication of continuing today—have embarrassed the Senate leadership, which agreed to support the $100,000,000 relief bill in the conviction that no higher sum could be obtained.

Proponents of a $150,000,000 appropriation admit they are in the

Pendergast Indicted as Tax Evader

Accused of Failing to Report $315,000 Paid In Fire Insurance Case

By the Associated Press.

Kansas City, April 7.—Boss Tom Pendergast, who has played a potent hand in State—at times, also, in national—politics for 28 years, was indicted today by a Federal grand jury on charges of evading income taxes on more than $315,000.

High in the indictment against the 66-year-old leader of the Kansas City Democratic organization was an allegation his income for 1935 and 1936 included $315,000 paid him in connection with a $9,500,000 settlement of Missouri's fire insurance rate controversy.

Indicted with Pendergast and accused of receiving $62,000 in the insurance deal was R. E. O'Malley, State superintendent of insurance, who engineered the settlement and later was discharged by Gov. Lloyd C. Stark, bitter Democratic foe of Pendergast.

Murphy Hinted Indictment

"No comment," barked Pendergast, a wholesale liquor dealer and executive of a concrete company, when he first heard about the indictment.

Pendergast, whose organization with its majorities ranging up to 100,000, has swung elections for Governors and United States Senators, was sullen as he submitted to fingerprinting in the United States marshal's office. He was released on $10,000 bond.

"There's nothing the matter with me," he mumbled.

The indictments followed closely a visit here by United States Attorney General Murphy, who confided the grand jury's investigation

Smithsonian Finds a Spider In Virginia That Catches Fish

By Eugene Pharo.

The Smithsonian Institution yesterday presented to the world an account of its explorations and fieldwork in 1938, in which it reported the presence of red, brownish-purple, and gray-violet snow in Alaska, and efforts of zoologists in Germany to bring back to life the prehistoric auroch.

In the same volume were recorded the enthusiasm of the scientists for the "wide biological interests" of President Roosevelt, which led him to take some of them on the trip of the U. S. S. Houston last summer, and their astonishment at the quantities of amphipod crustaceans, red shrimp, and wahoos that they collected from the warship.

Surveys and explorations in nearly every corner of the earth are recorded in the series of reports included in the volume, which had just come from the press.

In a Copenhagen zoo William M. Mann, director of the National Zoological Park, and Lucille Q. Mann discovered and marveled that "four years ago eight little lovebirds were placed in a cage and there are now 120—an astonishing increase." In Germany they discovered the at-

U. S. Experts Call German Planes Best

Congress Told Our Craft Are Second; Aerial Laboratory For Coast Vetoed

Government aviation officials, it was revealed last night, have advised Congress that American military aircraft are "second best" to Germany's and "as matters stand," the Reich probably will have enduring supremacy.

The chiefs of Army and Navy aviation, Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold and Rear Admiral Arthur B. Cook, and officials of the National Advisory Council for Aeronautics, gave this testimony during closed hearings of the Senate Appropriations Committee on the second deficiency bill. Their statements were made public when the $148,578,364 measure, mostly for national defense, was reported to the Senate.

Despite pleas that the United States had lost its supremacy in the air because Germany's research organization is six to eight times as large as ours, the committee turned down an Administration request for the establishment of a $10,000,000 research center at Sunnyvale, Calif.

Favor Langley Field

Senators from eastern states, the published hearings revealed, opposed the project on the ground that Government aircraft experimentation activities should remain consolidated at Langley Field, Va., and that establishment of the California center would bring duplication of work.

Other developments were:

Army engineers revealed that the War Department was considering establishment of a $10,000,000 major air base a few miles below Mobile, Ala. Lieut. Col. Raymond A. Wheeler, of the Army rivers and harbors board, told the House Rivers and Harbors Committee that the board would consider phases of the project in the near future. The War Department admitted that Mobile was under consideration as the site for a base, but said the location as not yet settled.

Germans Use U. S. Metal

The Senate Military Affairs Committee was told by an engineering expert that Germany is making aircraft with metal alloys so light they will float. The witness, Willis G. Waldo, of Washington, said that while not used for aircraft here, the United States exports the ore, lithium, at $40 a ton and then imports the metal alloy at $40,000 a ton.

Carried in the deficiency bill are direct appropriations and contract authorizations totaling $110,000,000 for equipping the Regular Army and National Guard with modern arms and equipment. Also approved by the committee were allocations of $36,500,000 for naval shipbuilding and $6,539,000 construction at military posts.

A $800,000 item for development of autogiros and other rotary wing aircraft was cut in half by the Sen-

Hiram Johnson Won't Retire

Veteran of some of the most spectacular battles on foreign policy witnessed in the Senate in the last 22 years, Senator Johnson (Republican), of California, announced last night he will be a candidate for re-election.

"I will be a candidate for re-election to the Senate in 1940," was the laconic answer to reports he was weighing proposals that he enter the next Californian gubernatorial race "to wrest control of his native State from radicals."

Double Blow to Britain

Special Cable to The Post.

London, (Saturday) April 8.—Fear that Italy's invasion of Albania was the beginning of a new Rome-Berlin plan to dominate the Balkans and block Britain's projected grand alliance against aggression resulted in the hurried summoning of an extraordinary meeting of government officials for this morning.

Announcement of Spain's adherence to the anti-comintern front increased the gloom in British official quarters. There was added anxiety that Il Duce's move might presage further expansive activities by Chancellor Hitler in Central Europe.

Fresh impetus was given to the increasing unrest by reported German troop movements in Pomerania and Silesia, bordering on Poland. It was feared Germany might exert new pressure on Poland when Foreign Minister Beck arrived in Warsaw.

Fleet May Be Strengthened

Hitler's action, it was felt, might be taken either directly or through the agency of Hungary. One report stated Hungary was prepared to take up with Rumania the question of her claims in the Transylvanian area.

Editorial comment in the morning press made it doubly evident the Italian drive into Albania is considered here as a new and serious menace to Britain's position in the eastern Mediterranean. Strengthening of the British Mediterranean fleet was believed to be under consideration.

Increased concern also was felt because of reports from reliable sources that 30,000 Italian troops had been assembled on Rhodes, one of the Dodecanese islands off the coast of Turkey.

Attention was also called to the fact that Italian occupation of the southern tip of Albania placed the Italians literally within a big gunshot of the Greek island of Corfu—once bombarded by order of Premier Benito Mussolini, and thus in a position to close the Adriatic Sea almost at will.

Yugoslavia Cut Off

In war-time Yugoslavia would be cut off from possible aid by sea, it was pointed out.

Because of Britain's close relations with Greece, Corfu had been considered until now a potential British base in emergency. Permanent Italian occupation of Albania

Franco Regime Joins Pact Against Comintern

Burgos, Spain, April 7 (AP).—The Spanish Nationalist government today announced adherence to the Anti-Comintern Act whose signatories include its totalitarian friends, Germany and Italy.

Entry of Generalissimo Franco's regime into the pact against the Communist International was made public by a foreign ministry statement which said:

"Having definitely conquered on the field of battle the Communism which started the Civil War in Spain, the Spanish government, to confirm its defensive attitude before potential dangers, has given its adhesion to the Anti-Comintern Pact."

Spain was the sixth signatory to the accord which besides Germany and Italy, has been signed by Japan, Hungary and Manchukuo.

Queen and Baby Son Flee Country

Queen Geraldine of Albania and her son, born Wednesday, fled Albania in the face of invasion by Italian troops. She went by automobile across the Albania border into Florina, Greece. Albanian Minister Faik Konitza termed Italy's attack on his country only two days after the birth of the child as being "devoid of chivalry"

Rome Calls Invasion Reply to Encirclement

Invaders Devoid Of Chivalry, Says Albanian Envoy

Bitterly, but in a voice never raised above a murmur, Albanian Minister Faik Konitza yesterday termed Italy "devoid of chivalry" in timing its attack on his country only two days after its Queen had given birth to an heir to the throne.

"The mother had to leave her sick bed with her 2-day-old baby and seek safety outside of Albania," he added. "It is against the nature of the Italians to understand that they should at least have waited a few weeks more before dealing their blow . . . I know that the Italians laugh at such points of view . . . But a greater man than Mussolini—I mean Bismarck—used to give a great deal of importance to what he called 'the imponderables.' I do not think anybody will admire Italy for this."

Attack "Without Honor"

"What will this unprovoked aggression, 40 to 1 in numbers and 1,000 to 1 in equipment, bring them? No durable profit, I think, and most certainly no honor. A prize-fighter, seeking to impress the world with his strength, does not knock down a child, but challenges another prize-fighter," Konitza declared in a statement issued after he had conferred with Secretary Hull yesterday.

"I and many other Albanians have dreamed of a close cultural, economic and political co-operation with Italy on an honorable basis. The elegant answer is a punch on our head."

Konitza offered no indication of what his next step would be if and when Italy subjugates his country. With offices in the Mayflower Hotel, he is not in the position of Czecho-Slovakian Minister Hurban, who has refused to surrender his legation to German embassy officials.

The Minister did declare, how-

Troops Press On After Capturing 4 Coastal Towns

By James M. Minifie
Special Cable to The Post.

Rome, April 7.—Preceded by 400 airplanes and backed by a squadron of warships, Italian troops at dawn today—Good Friday—swooped down on Albania at four coastal points in an undeclared war against King Zog and his government.

This, the Fascist press reports asserted flatly, was the answer of Italy and Germany to attempts to "encircle" them.

Throughout the day there was intense diplomatic activity in Rome, where the American and British Ambassadors and the Yugoslav Minister sought information on the Italian action from Count Ciano, Italian foreign minister.

An official communique stated the landings were made at San Giovanni di Medua, in the north; at Durazzo and Valona, in the center, and at Santi Quaranta, in the south, under the protection of the First Naval Squadron, which would mean probably five cruisers and ten destroyers.

The Italian accounts said the only

British Queen, Mrs. Roosevelt To Wear Blue When They Meet

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 7.—Without knowing what the other would choose, Queen Elizabeth of England and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt decided on blue for the gowns they'll wear when they meet in Washington in June—and the two shades they chose harmonize.

Their attire will symbolize good will between their countries. The soft summer wool that is to make their dresses is being presented to each first lady by wool growers of the other's country.

A packet marked for delivery to the queen at Buckingham Palace, containing the American woven fabric, gift of more than half a million wool growers of 34 States, was placed aboard the Queen Mary today.

Mrs. Roosevelt said on seeing the samples, "We were wise without knowing it. The two shades go so well together."

Queen Elizabeth, who prefers pastel shades, chose a pale one to be called "Queen's [illegible] Roosevelt chose azure, [illegible] that of the dress [illegible] Easter at Hyde Park.

The new blue dresses will be for daytime, the Queen's designed by Norman Hartnell, of London, and the First Lady's by Clarepotter, an American designer.

Italian Advance Slowed

By the Associated Press.

Tirana, Albania, April 7.—Hardy Albanian tribesmen fought desperately tonight to stem an Italian invasion backed by bombing planes and naval guns.

It was reported 140 Albanians and 25 Italians were killed with hundred of Albanians and 60 Italians wounded.

While the losing battle was in progress the nation awaited Premier Mussolini's reply to a peace overture by King Zog.

The government—torn between resistance of its own primitive people and realization that such a fight could not last long against the might of Fascist Italy—fled to the mountain hamlet of Elbasan.

There, 25 miles south of Tirana, Zog awaited the answer to the bid for peace which would leave him some measure of honor.

Tirana itself is readily accessible to Italian motorized equipment, but Elbasan can be reached only over steep, easily defended mountain roads.

Personal Tragedy for Zog

The government's move was announced in a radio broadcast. In the same broadcast, former Premier Mehdi Frasheri proclaimed that Albanian women, as well as men, were determined to resist the invasion. (There is a women's detachment in the Albanian army.)

The invasion was a personal tragedy for Zog. The end of Albania's Good Friday found his handsome, half-American Queen Geraldine and their new-born son, in whom the King had placed hopes of a new Balkan dynasty, in Florina, Greece, a few miles across the Albanian frontier. The crown prince was born Wednesday.

Two of Zog's sisters arrived in Salonika, Greece. The Queen and her baby reached Florina after a 160-mile automobile trip and were to proceed to Salonika tomorrow.

Shortly before midnight Albania's vigilantes and gendarmes still were fighting the invaders—with unstemmed determination and some success.

Women Will Fight

Behind these rugged hillmen stood their women, enflamed and all but indomitable.

"There are 44,000,000 Italians against 1,000,000 Albanians," said Frasheri in impassioned tones in his broadcast.

"But there will be heroic resistance and when our men are dead the Italians will have to face our women."

Although details of the Albanian monarch's proposals were not divulged, they were understood to contain specific terms for ending the war.

Zog, it was reported, told Mussolini he was ready to capitulate, provided the country be left a measure of independence with Zog remaining on the throne.

Zog broadcast an appeal to his people to fight for Albanian independence, but they did not need any exhortations. They could do little against Italian bombardments.

Subsidy Split Imperils Boost In Farm Fund

Smith Calls Parley Of Agricultural Senators for Today

By Robert C. Albright.

Southern opposition to expansion of the Administration's export subsidy program yesterday threatened success of a sectional Senate farm drive to add $400,000,000 in domestic and export farm grants to the huge agriculture appropriation bill.

Although both South and West have stakes in the program, Southern cotton bloc Senators balked at inclusion of the President's proposal to earmark $60,000,000 out of a suggested $150,000,000 farm surplus outlay to subsidize cotton sales abroad.

They called subsidized exports out of line with the reciprocal trade program and said parity payments on cotton and four other commodities (wheat, corn, tobacco and rice) would meet the cotton situation.

Smith Seeks Agreement

The scene of trading between the Western contingent, asking $150,000,000 for farm surplus disposals, and the Southern bloc, seeking $250,000,000 for parity payments, was transferred to the Senate Agriculture Appropriations sub-committee. Chairman Russell (Democrat), of Georgia, set hearings for Monday.

Meanwhile, Chairman Smith, of the Senate Agriculture Committee, who already has lost his own bill for separate cotton treatment in the tussle, invited 25 Senators from cotton, corn, wheat, fruit and dairy States to meet in his office this morning. Smith said he will make a last effort to draft a comprehensive farm bill acceptable to all. Midwestern Senators indicated they would remain away from the meeting.

Detailed provisions of the Western counter-proposal disclosed yesterday that $107,000,000 would be used to expand the export subsidy program to include four commodities—$30,000,000 for continued export of wheat, $60,000,000 for cotton, $15,000,000 for lard, and $2,000,000 for nuts.

$60,000,000 for Dairy Products

For the strictly domestic phase of the program, the Westerners asked $60,000,000 for surplus dairy products, $20,000,000 for meats, $45,000,000 for fruits and vegetables and $7,000,000 or a total domestic surplus program of $132,000,000. (Altogether, $240,000,000 would be available if the $150,000,000 proposed appropriation were added to $90,000,000 obtained from customs receipts.)

Should the Senate accede to the requests of both blocs, the farm bill would be increased from the $817,000,000 appropriated by the House to more than $1,200,000,000—the largest single agriculture appropriation ever made. Of that amount, approximately $1,000,000,000 would be for benefit grants of various types, including soil payments, parity benefits and surplus subsidies.

McNary Wants Decrease

Senate Minority Leader McNary said at least $100,000,000 would have to be scaled from the proposed $400,000,000 increase before he could support it. McNary suggested that the surplus disposal outlay be pruned to $125,000,000 and the parity appropriation be trimmed to $175,000,000. These are approximately the figures understood to be favored by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace who for ten days has been active at the Capitol.

The House refused to include funds either for parity payments or domestic and export surplus subsidies, despite the President's press conference plea for the latter. But House farm bill managers have indicated they would accept the bulk of the increase should the Senate write it into the bill.

'Minstrel of the Appalachians' in D.C. to Give Preview of Folk Festival Ballads and Dances

North Carolina mountaineer dancers, under the leadership of Bascom Lamar Lunsford, were the first to arrive in Washington for the sixth annual National Folk Festival, which opens April 27 at Constitution Hall

Humming a few bars from an old English ballad, the first of several hundred National Folk Festival performers strolled into festival headquarters yesterday. He's nearly three weeks ahead of time, but Bascom Lama Lunsford always makes it a point to arrive early.

Purpose of his forehandedness is to prepare Washingtonians for the festival, which opens April 27 at Constitution Hall, by putting them through a few old-time square dance figures. Lunsford comes from Buncombe County, N. C., and he's been doing the dances all his life. Ever since the first National Folk Festival six years ago, he's been serving as advance man for the show.

Miss Coulson is Chairman

A committee headed by Miss Edith Coulson of the Council of Social Agencies is arranging for Lunsford's lectures and instruction sessions. Nearly a dozen clubs and other groups already have made reservations for his appearances.

Lunsford will be joined on the stage of Constitution Hall April 28, second day of the festival by three teams of dancers, totaling more than 80 persons, who will show festival audiences how a mountain square dance should be done.

All are participants in the Mountain Song and Dance festival, the country's oldest folk festival, which has been presented at Asheville, N. C., for 12 years.

Lunsford knows his dances, but he's also up on the ballads of his section. His work in singing and collecting the songs has won for him the title of "minstrel of the Appalachians."

"I come from what is known as the ballad country," he explained yesterday. "Hemmed in by the Blue Ridge and the Great Smoky Mountains, it's the richest pocket of pure folk material in the United States."

Of the 305 basic English and Scottish ballads listed in Child's historic collection, 120 have been found in the Southern mountains. All early ballad collections were made there.

Lunsford will sing a group of ballads today at noon over Station WJSV. Mrs. Eugene Meyer, chairman of the sponsoring committee for the National Folk Festival, and Miss Sarah Gertrude Knott, festival director, will speak briefly.

Tickets for the sixth annual National Folk Festival at Constitution Hall, April 27-29 are on sale at The Washington Post Building, 1337 E street northwest, from 8 a. m. until midnight, daily and Sunday. Tickets for the three matinees range from 50 cents to $1; for the evening shows, from 50 cents to $2. A different program will be presented at each performance.

Traffic Plans For Anderson Recital Ready

Easter Concert Is Assailed by Ellender On Senate Floor

Last-minute plans for handling thousands expected to hear Marian Anderson sing from the Lincoln Memorial steps tomorrow were announced last night, after the subject of the concert had been brought up on the Senate floor.

The concert will be given at 3 p. m. if the day is fair. If it rains, it was announced, the program will be given Monday at the same hour—or the first day that hour is clear.

Special traffic rulings for the concert afternoon were made by Secretary Ickes. Vehicular traffic will not be permitted into the Memorial circle from any direction. Parking will be provided on both sides of Constitution avenue and back of the Navy and Munitions buildings.

Motorists Advised

Motorists from Virginia were advised to use Francis Scott Key or Highway bridge. Arlington Memorial Bridge will be kept open during the afternoon, however, with its traffic diverted into the Rock Creek parkway at the east end, according to the announcement.

The soprano is scheduled to arrive in Washington some time this afternoon.

Meanwhile, Senator Ellender (Democrat), of Louisiana, interrupted debate on the relief bill to score her concert as a "bad precedent."

The Senator said Ickes made a mistake in opening the Monument Grounds for the program. He waved copies of "orders calling out all the guards in Federal buildings and even elevator operators to be down there." The guards, he declared, were ordered to come "armed with nightsticks if practical."

After conferences in the Interior Department, Charles A. Peters, superintendent of Federal buildings, explained to reporters that the night stick order was a "slip."

500 Guards to Serve

"Neither the guards nor park police will have nightsticks. I don't know how that got in," he said.

Unable to estimate the thousands who will flock to hear the soprano, Peters said it was necessary to call out approximately 500 guards.

"They will look after Federal property. We will have quite a parking problem, too, and there is much landscaping to be protected.

"The order asking elevator operators to report has been recalled because we found enough men would be available without them. The guards are subject to extra calls, but this is an unusual occasion and we needed more than usual," he said.

Vote Scandal Recalled

The jury findings climaxed an investigation by United States District Attorney Maurice Milligan, who uncovered the vote scandal here in 1936 which involved several lieutenants in the Pendergast organization.

The case involved collection of $9,500,000 in fire insurance rate increase funds which were impounded after the State blocked the rate hike. O'Malley and the insurance companies came to an agreement in 1935 by which policyholders got 20 per cent of the money and the insurance companies the rest. The companies set aside 30 per cent of their share for payment of court and litigation costs.

Milligan announced recently he learned a co-trustee handling the settlement collected more than $100,000 from the companies for "expenses" before the agreement was reached and also got $347,000 more a few weeks after the agreement was signed. He set out to find where the money went.

State's Attorney General Roy McKittrick said he was told by Pendergast to approve the settlement.

Today's indictment charged Pendergast received $55,000 in 1935 "in connection with the compromise and settlement of the Missouri fire insurance rate litigation." A second count charged receipt of $260,000 in 1936.

The indictment stated Pendergast paid only $464 on a reported 1935 net income of $14,811, although he owed $15,567 on a net income of $69,811.

For 1936 the indictment shows Pendergast paid taxes of $25,481 on a reported net income of $87,840 and hed was charged with having a net income of $347,840 and with having owed a tax of $195,682.

U. S. Intervenes In Deadlocked Mine Parley

Prospect of Immediate Contract Agreement Reported Remote

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 7.—A Federal mediator, James F. Dewey, of the Labor Department, intervened today in deadlocked negotiations between miners and bituminous coal operators whose failure to agree on a new labor contract has kept 338,000 men idle since Monday.

He was granted permission to enter the conference of a sub-committee of representatives of the United Mine Workers (C. I. O.) and Appalachian area operators explaining he had acted after consultation with persons in Washington whom he declined to identify.

He emerged to say the conferees had appeared receptive, but he would not amplify.

The prospect of any immediate agreement seemed remote. John L. Lewis, head of the U. M. W. and of the C. I. O., and chief union negotiator, was not on hand. He went to Washington yesterday. At 5 p. m. the conference adjourned, without comment, until 10 a. m. (E. S. T.) tomorrow.

A major difference appeared to be over a penalty clause operative under the old contract, which expired March 31.

This clause provided fines against miners striking in violation of the contract and against coal companies employing the lockout.

Philip Murray, U. M. W. vice president, had advanced as the miners' "final proposition" the renewal of the old agreement for two years, with the elimination of the penalty clause. That contract provided base pay of $6 a day in the North and $5.60 in the South and a 35-hour week.

At the beginning of the negotiations the union asked a 50-cent increase and a 30-hour week; the companies offered a counter proposal of a 50-cent cut and the continuance of the 35-hour week.

Car Financing 'Racket' to Be Investigated

A. A. A. Votes Probe After Hearing Talk On 'Vicious Practices'

An investigation of "repossession racketeering" among certain finance companies in Washington was announced yesterday by the American Automobile Association following an advisory board meeting at the Willard Hotel.

After charges of "vicious and abusive practices" in the automobile and automobile accessory financing fields were made by W. David Tilghman, jr., Maryland commissioner of loans, the auto club voted to appoint a special investigating committee. Russell Singer, general manager of the association, called civic groups, automobile dealers, finance company officials and the general public to co-operate in a program to end the alleged abuses.

"Companies should be absolutely forbidden to reposses a car without due process of law and without giving the purchaser an opportunity for redeeming his equity in the property," Tilghman said.

He said there had been cases called to his attention where cars were repossessed because of failure to pay exactly on lime balances as low as $2.

"In every deal," said Tilghman, "it should be mandatory that full details of the deal—such as cash purchase price, finance charge, insurance cost and so on—be clearly set forth."

The majority of sellers on the installment plan, said the commissioner, maintain a satisfactory moral code and look with great concern to the value of good-will of their business.

Action Promised On Lifting Bond Tax Exemptions

Democratic leaders yesterday agreed to rush Congressional action on the Administration's proposal to remove tax exemptions from future issues of Government securities and planned to sidetra ' proposals for a general overhaul of business levies at this session.

Their plans now call for a continuance for two years of the present corporate taxes, which expire December 31, and some $750,000,000 in nuisance taxes, which expire June 30, and the creation of a special committee to study the revenue problem during the recess of Congress.

They were revealed by Chairman Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee, when he said the proposal to remove tax exemptions from Federal and State taxless securities had been given right of way over proposals for modification of business levies.

Dr. R. H. Miller Will Discuss 'The Comfort of Easter'

For his sermon tomorrow morning Dr. Raphael Harwood Miller, pastor of the National City Christian Church, has chosen "The Comfort of Easter." In the evening it will be "Honest Doubt and Halting Faith."

At the Thursday church night dinner, Dr. Miller will present the themes, "Christ's Teaching on the Unity of His Disciples," in the Gospel of John.

Columbia Heights. Easter will be celebrated with a sunrise prayer service at 7 a. m., led by Donald Creech, president of the Bagby C. E. Society. This will be followed by a breakfast at the Park Road Cafe at 8 o'clock.

The Rev. A. P. Wilson's topic for the morning will be "What Jesus Teaches About Immortality."

In the evening Miss Ardis Alling, from New York, will present, in authentic costumes, the "Story of Ruth," "The Woman at the Well," and "The Resurrection," with incidental music furnished by Mrs. Esther Barrett at the organ.

Ninth Street. "The Dawning," a pageant of the Resurrection, which has been presented the last three Easter mornings, will be repeated at 5:40 a. m. in the church auditorium. Admission is by ticket only.

The Rev. Clifford H. Jope will preach at the 10:50 a. m. worship and communion hour on "The Face of Victory." At 11 a. m. the junior church meets in the church house under the leadership of Andrew Shannon.

Park View. "Easter Joy" will be the theme of the sermon by the Rev. J. Lloyd Black at 11 a. m.

Protestants Ask Pope to Plead for Spanish Prisoners

Newark, N. J., April 7 (INS).—In a Good Friday appeal, more than 400 clergy and laymen of Protestant churches in the United States today petitioned Pope Pius XII to use his influence to prevent reprisals against Republican prisoners of Gen. Franco and to help effect their evacuation from Spain, the Right Rev. Theodore Ludlow, Suffragan Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Newark, announced.

Thirty-eight Protestant Episcopal and Methodist Episcopal bishops were among those who signed the appeal. The appeal was presented to the apostolic delegate to the United States, the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, in Washington.

On Capitol Hill

By the Associated Press.

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, believes he knows a way to keep America out of war. He would legislate all brass bands out of existence.

VANDENBERG

Shortly after the Army Day parade, with its numerous military bands, had passed the Capitol, he told reporters, with a grin: "Every time I see a parade and hear a band play I'm not sure that I want neutrality legislation after all."

Senator Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, the Majority Leader, ventured this prediction yesterday: "Unless a new crisis breaks out in Europe, Congress will adjourn by June 15."

William O. Douglas, newly confirmed Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, has appointed David Ginsburg, of Huntington, W. Va., as his law clerk.

Ginsburg, 27 years old, was graduated from Harvard in 1935. He has been employed in the public utility section of the Securities and Exchange Commission under Douglas. Douglas will take his seat on the high bench April 17.

A Texas white-faced bull, a Texas blonde and the Lone Star State Congresional delegation gave the New York World's Fair a world of publicity on the Capitol grounds yesterday.

The bull has been ridden 1,800 miles from west Texas. It stopped here to pose with "Miss Texas"—Miss Ellen Edgmon—Senator Tom Connally, House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn and Representative Mahon, whose Texas district produced both it and the girl. It lumbered northward expecting to reach the fair grounds around May 1.

Representative Sol Bloom (Democrat), New York, today announced he will introduce a resolution in the House to honor Alexander Graham Bell with posthumous recognition from Congress as one of America's great benefactors. The life story of Bell and his invention of the telephone has been dramatized in the Twentieth Century-Fox Cosmopolitan motion picture, "The Story of Alexander Graham Bell."

Mrs. Hahn Rites To Be Monday

Mrs. Margaret G. Hahn, wife of George W. Hahn, will be buried in Fort Lincoln Cemetery Monday after funeral services at 9:30 a. m. at the home, 5241 Chevy Chase Parkway, and mass at Blessed Sacrament Church at 10 o'clock. Mrs. Hahn, who was 48, died Thursday at Georgetown University Hospital.

Besides her husband, Secretary to Representative Fitzpatrick, of New York, Mrs. Hahn is survived by three daughters, the Misses Eleanor V., Irene G., and Ruth L. Hahn; a son, George Barry Hahn, all of Washington, and three sisters, Mrs. Mary Hawke and the Misses Josephine and Irene Barry, all of New York.

Dr. Givens Favors Married Teachers

Spokane, Wash., April 7 (AP).—Married women teachers found a vigorous champion today in Dr. Willard E. Givens, of Washington, executive secretary of the National Education Association.

Replying to the question, "How can a teacher be enthusiastic, and physically and emotionally happy, if she is not married?" Dr. Givens declared:

"If I were in a position where I was instructed by a school board to let out all married women or to let out all single women, I would tell them to take out the single women," he declared.

State Agents Approve Plan Of Free Trade

Council Delegates Oppose Barriers, Retaliatory Laws

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 7.—Representatives of 44 States and four territories today approved a broad program for the restoration of free trade among the States.

They requested the Council of State Governments, sponsor of the three-day conference on the removal of State trade barriers, to take these steps:

To discourage the adoption of any retaliatory legislation by States "which feel themselves aggrieved by the legislation of their neighbors."

To encourage the repeal of trade barrier legislation already adopted.

To foster the enactment of uniform laws and the adoption of reciprocal agreements designed to reduce trade barriers between the States.

To co-operate with various commissions on interstate co-operation in calling regional hearings to carry out the recommendations of the conference.

Any State which regarded itself as adversely affected by legislation of another State was invited to arrange a parley on the dispute through the council.

The conferees advocated a return to the "traditional policy of free trade among the States in order that the producers and consumers of the Nation may buy or sell without legal discrimination either as to the place or origin of goods, the method of transportation or the efficiency of the producer."

They also urged Congress to continue an effort to reach an "equitable freight rate basis for the entire United States." Gov. Carl E. Bailey of Arkansas had suggested they approve equalization of Northern and Southern freight rates. Nine Southeastern States have joined in a move to remove differentials which, they contend, favor Northern shippers.

Fascist Peril Seen In U. S. Monopoly

David Cushman Coyle, economist and author of "Why Pay Taxes?," said here yesterday that monopoly is America's problem No. 1.

Speaking before the Agriculture Graduate School, Coyle, who is special consultant to the Senate Committee on Unemployment and Relief, attributed the rise of fascism in Germany partly to monopoly and price fixing. He said he did not know what would be America's best defense against fascism, but urged a conservation of natural resources, with a spending of what is required.

Dr. Charles Abbot To Speak at First Congregational

Easter will be celebrated at three different services tomorrow at First Congregational Church at 9:30 and 11 a. m. and 5 p. m.

Dr. Charles G. Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution and a longtime officer of this church, will preach a lay sermon at the 9:30 service, giving a scientist's view of immortality.

At the 11 o'clock service the Rev. Howard Stone Anderson, pastor, will preach on "God's Brightest Morning." Children will be christened, new members received and the choir will render an elaborate musical program.

At 5 o'clock the choir of 60 voices and soloists will present a vesper concert. Selections from the recent Lenten concert in Constitution Hall, from their Easter repertoire and additional numbers as well will be presented.

At 6:30 o'clock the Tuxis Club will be hosts in an Easter program to the new young adults groups, now known as the Scrooby Club.

Takoma Park Council Plans Caucus April 17

Goes Ahead Despite Charter Changes Passed by Assembly

Montgomery County Bureau of the Post, 8313 Clark Ave., Silver Spring, Md. Telephone Sligo 4262.

Although Gov. O'Conor has before him a bill passed by the recent session of the Maryland General Assembly providing sweeping changes in Takoma Park municipal election procedure, the mayor and town council of the town have announced that they will proceed with plans for the annual town caucus on April 17, at which time town voters will be called upon to name candidates for three vacancies on the council.

The town charter as it now stands calls for election of three councilmen at large this year. They would serve two-year terms and there would be no restriction on their residence except that they must reside within the town limits. However, if Gov. O'Conor signs the bill now before him, the three councilmen to be named this year would serve for one year only, and the entire slate of town officials would come up for election in 1940.

While waiting the Governor's action, the mayor and council has called the town caucus for April 17 at 8 p. m. in the Takoma fire house, at which time the town voters will nominate candidates for the three vacancies caused by the expiring terms of Councilmen Chester C. Waters, Arthur L. Conger and Millward C. Taft. At least one change is certain to occur because Mr. Waters was transferred this week by the Treasury Department, where he is employed, to St. Paul, Minn.

The council also has set April 25 and 26 as town registration days, when new voters may register at the fire house from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. The annual election will be held Monday, May 1.

Bethesda Egg Hunt

Bethesda—Children of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase area will hold their first Easter egg hunt starting at 10 a. m. today on the large tract of land adjacent to the Boro Theater. The hunt is sponsored by Sidney Lust, owner of the theater, and W. Prescott Allen, Bethesda publisher.

Art Brown, Washington radio announcer, will be master of ceremonies for the program, which will include a Punch and Judy show and a concert by a band of 100, made up of student musicians in the county under the direction of Raymond Hart, Montgomery County bandmaster. Ken H. Sheelor, assistant secretary of the International Brotherhood of Magicians, will give an exhibition.

In addition to searching for 1,000 eggs that will be hidden on the lot, children will elect an Easter queen and her court of honor to reign over the event.

Methodist Home Anniversary

Gaithersburg — The Methodist Home for the Aged at Gaithersburg will celebrate its thirteenth anniversary next Saturday, April 15, from 3 to 5 p. m. The celebration is being sponsored by the Washington Home Guild, headed by Mrs. Ida R. Groover. Mrs. Clyde E. Thomas, local home director, is assisting with the plans.

P.-T. A. Dance May 12

Bethesda.—Plans for a benefit dance under the auspices of the Leland Parent-Teacher Association are going ahead rapidly, according to W. Prescott Allen, chairman of the ways and means committee of the association. The dance will be held May 12 at the Kenwood Country Club. Proceeds will be used to purchase extra equipment for the school.

Army Ready To Combat Gas, Chemists Told

400 Delegates See Chemical Warfare Plant at Edgewood

By the Associated Press.

Edgewood Arsenal, Md., April 7.—Four hundred chemists watched a parade of gas-masked horses and soldiers dressed in grotesque gas-resistant clothing today and were assured by an Army officer the United States is "as well equipped to combat chemical warfare as any other nation in the world."

The officer, Capt. William M. Creasy, jr., of the Chemical Warfare Service, told the visiting members of the American Chemical Society that mustard gas is "still the king of chemicals used in warfare because of its power to halt the gaining of ground."

Maj. Gen. Walter C. Baker, chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, said the arsenal could turn out 300,000 gas masks a month if the personnel were increased to 1,500.

Eight hundred masks can be manufactured daily by 200 women Civil Service workers now employed at the arsenal. The masks cost about $9.25 each, but the cost could be lowered, Maj. Baker said, by mass production.

The chemists, who closed their convention in Baltimore last night, were given a demonstration of chemical warfare weapons, watched 77 mm. shells being filled with mustard gas at the rate of four a minute, and inspected the latest chemical warfare developments.

The plant, they were told, manufactures six tons of mustard gas about every eight hours. At the end of the World War it was producng 900 tons a month.

A new type gas mask for the Navy, designed especially for men operating optical instruments during battle, was shown the chemists. It consists of a rubber headpiece with two rigid hoses running behind the neck and connecting with a canister back of the head.

Va. Auto Insurance Rates to Be Lowered

By the Associated Press.

Lynchburg, Va., April 7.—Thomas W. Ozlin, chairman of the Virginia Corporation Commission, predicted today a substantial reduction in automobile insurance rates will be possible this year because of the decrease in accidents in Virginia.

"I don't think I'd be talking out of school if I said we'll be able to make this reduction after the hearing next week," he declared.

Arlingtonians Reading More, Says Librarian

Books Circulation For March 4,797, Report States

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST, Clarendon, Va., Tel. OXford 9189

The report of Miss Eleanor C. Leonard, county librarian released yesterday by County Manager Frank C. Hanrahan, shows a total circulation for month of March of 4,797 books. This is an increase of 590 over the preceding month and a turnover of more than one-third of the books. Each library showed marked increase over the former month.

The budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 carries an appropriation of $1,300 to purchase new books.

Miss Leonard, in her report, says that the rapid progress being made is largely due to the support given by Arlington women.

First Aid Classes

Arlington.—The Arlington County Chapter American Red Cross announces the formation of a first-aid class for women. The classes will be conducted each Wednesday night at 8 o'clock at the headquarters on Wilson boulevard, and will be in charge of M. R. Bruin, chairman of the first-aid committee of the chapter.

Virginia Highlands.—J. O. Martin, editor of The Transmitter, the house organ of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., will address the Jefferson Civic League Monday night. He will speak on "The History of Arlington." The meeting will be in the Community House at Virginia Highlands.

Girl Scouts Aid Clean-Up

Arlington.—The Arlington County Girl Scouts, through the secretary of the Arlington Girl Scout Council, Mrs. Matthew van Siclen, have offered their services to the county manager in the county-wide clean-up campaign being planned.

County Manager Frank C. Hanrahan says it is probable that the campaign will be carried on during June, so that funds provided in the 1939-1940 budget will be available before the work is completed.

opposition encountered was at Durazzo, but this was easily overcome and from this point the Italian columns started to march inland. While admitting fighting at Durazzo, the number of casualties was not given and it was declared the advance is continuing without opposition among a "tranquil and friendly" population.

Later it was admitted there had been stiff fighting with the Italian invaders being opposed by "criminals released by Zog from the prisons. These formed the bands which sought in vain to halt the advance of the Italian troops, and which threaten the life and good of the population."

It was also admitted the Italian troops only succeeded in getting 9 miles beyond Durazzo before being held up on the Shijak River, "where Zog's bands, before retiring, blew up the bridge constructed by Italians."

Alessio, in the north, and Delvine, in the south, are stated to have been occupied and passed. According to the Italians, the Albanian government has abandoned the capital and sought refuge at Elbassani.

Conditions in Tirana are described as "chaotic." The news that is published abroad about the progress of the Italians in Albania is described as "too fantastic to be denied." It is stated a campaign of lies is going on, just as in the Ethiopian war, and the only truth is coming from Fascist communiques, which are broadcast in all languages over the radio.

At 10 o'clock, according to Italian accounts, a mission from King Zog reached Gen. Guzzoni, commanding the Italian forces, bearing proposals from the King, which were relayed to Rome for consideration. No indication is given here of the nature of the proposals.

Planes Drop Leaflets

Meantime, Italian planes throughout the day flew in formation over Tirana and the principal Albanian towns, dropping leaflets, urging the population not to resist as resistance would be crushed.

"Do not listen to the government which has oppressed you and now wants to involve you in useless bloodshed," the leaflets said, adding that Italian troops would remain as long as was necessary to restore order, justice and peace. Italian accounts state that the planes had orders not to bomb inhabited centers and to spare the population.

Meanwhile, in Rome this morning, the British Ambassador, Lord Perth, called on Count Ciano and presented a memorandum. It is understood this asked for an explanation of what was going on in Albania and drew the Italian government's attention to the terms of the Anglo-Italian agreement by which both powers bound themselves to respect the status quo in the Mediterranean.

Ciano, it was stated, gave the British ambassador the "necessary explanations and assurances." In other words, he presumably assured Perth that no change in the status quo is intended by Italy.

It seems probable Count Ciano's explanations followed roughly the line taken by Virginio Gayda, so frequently the mouthpiece of the foreign minister.

Gayda explains that the Italians invaded the kindom "at the call of patriotic Albanians suffering under the King's misgovernment and in order to protect the lives and property of Italian citizens menaced by sinister, armed bands."

For some time, Gayda said, relations have been growing more and more difficult between the Albanian government and Italian residents in the country and the King "began to rule like a tyrannical, feudal lord."

Gayda "Explains"

Gayda then launched into a breath-taking E. Phillips Oppenheim thriller about what went on in Albania, which is worth nothing because it is probably the official justification handed to Lord Perth today.

"Recently King Zog requested the Italian government to give him more help and protection and to send troops to garrisons at certain points in Albania," Signor Gayda said.

"But at the last minute the Italian government learned that this force was to be used in a mad coup de main by the King in the direction of Kossovo, near the Jugoslavian frontier, with an evident design of disturbing the tranquillity and cordial relations of co-operation between Italy and Jugoslavia."

"Italy's unqualified rejection of this business provoked the King and his followers to a violent ill-temper, which they vented on Italians resident in Albania and on pro-Italian Albanians.

"The Italian government recalled the King to a sense of his responsibilities and endeavored to the end to clear up this intolerable situation and get guarantees for both Italians and Albanians. The King evaded attempts at pacification and descended to new and suspect intrigues."

This explanation was almost certainly given to the Yugoslavian minister, Bochko Christich, who called on Ciano this evening, and probably to the American ambassador, William B. Phillips, who made an informative visit on his own initiative.

Diplomatic circles are still guessing at the fundamental reasons back of this move and find an illuminating article in the "Lavor Fascista," which says frankly that Italy acted in defense of its vital, imperial interests in the face of increasing tension between two groups of powers to strengthen the link and strategic position in Albania. It blames the democracies, alleging their policy of alliances is, in effect, an extension of territory.

Paris Awaits British Action On Albania

Would Back London If Italian Accord Is Denounced

By the Associated Press.

Paris, April 7.—The Italian invasion of Albania, coming on top of the Italian-German military talks at Innsbruck, was viewed with concern in French government quarters tonight.

Foreign office officials said, however, that for the time being at least, France was only indirectly concerned.

Circles in close contact with the government expressed the opinion that if Britain were led by the Albanian attacks to denounce the British-Italian accord to retain the status quo in the Mediterranean, France would support England.

France alone could take no action, it was stated.

These circles took a serious view of the situation, following publication of Berlin dispatches that Spain had adhered to the Italian-German-Japanese anti-Comintern pact and unconfirmed reports reaching Paris of "important troop movements in Germany."

No statement was made officially on these reports, which Berlin did not confirm. German and Italian military chiefs and technicians met at Innsbruck Wednesday and Thursday.

The Rumanian foreign minister, Grigore Gafencu, was expected in Paris about April 26 after visiting in London and other capitals to discuss the situation and Rumania's final attitude in regard to the anti-aggression bloc the French and British are trying to build.

Meanwhile, the French seemed inclined to accept a Spanish nationalist government denial of rumors that more Italian troops have landed in Spain. The Burgos government, answering questions put by the French ambassador, said no troops had arrived since the end of the war.

T. Frank Smiths Fearful for Son Missing in Albania

As war clouds grew heavier over Albania last night, a frantic Washington family waited anxiously for latest reports from Tirana and word of their missing son. For several days, the State Department has attempted vainly to locate Ted Smith, 18, of 4446 Q street northwest, who is believed to be in the Albanian capital.

SMITH

Ted, son of T. Frank Smith, chief assistant of the cotton division, Commodities Credit Corporation, left Washington in February.

The last heard from Ted here was a cablegram from Pyraeus, Greece, late last month. At that time, the youth told his family he was going directly to Tirana to visit Hugh G. Grant, American minister.

Grant, an old friend of the Smith family, has failed to respond to cables from both the boy's father and officials of the State Department. Smith said last night he felt his son "could take care of himself," but that he had grown uneasy.

Ted's trip, said Smith, was purely a pleasure jaunt and the boy had looked keenly forward to visiting Grant in Tirana. When several weeks passed with no word from Ted, the father enlisted aid of the State Department and since then the central European division has sought to contact the youth.

Ted, who was graduated from Central High School, had toured for some time with a juvenile dramatic company, which recently appeared at the National Theater. The Smiths have two other children, Albert, 17, and Mary, 15.

Jewish Appeal Leaders Named

Leaders of four divisions of volunteer workers were named here last night preparatory to launching the united Jewish Appeal for $20,000,000 in overseas relief funds.

They are William G. Ilch and Edward C. Ostrow, men's division; Mrs. Leopold V. Freudberg and Mrs. Gilbert Hahn, women's division; Morris Klass and Miss Sylvia Kessler, government division; Alfred M. Reines and Miss Leonore Rosenthal, youth division.

British Defense Chiefs Meet With Halifax Today

makes the island untenable for Britain.

There was comment likewise on the fact that Mussolini's invasion presents the picture on the map of two wedges which Germany and Italy are driving down on either side of the Danube toward the Black Sea. Several newspapers feature under large headlines Chancellor Adolf Hitler's "hands off" warning to the Western democracies in the Adriatic crisis.

Lord Halifax, who spent an anxious day yesterday at the foreign office, and all ministers of the defense forces will be among those in attendance at the cabinet meeting today.

Prime Minister Chamberlain is reported to be "watching the situation closely" from his retreat at Castle Forbes, in Aberdeenshire, where he is a guest of Lord and Lady Forbes. Repeatedly he was in touch by telephone with Lord Halifax.

New Hitler Move Feared

Though Chamberlain has had an airplane placed at his disposal for an emergency return to the capital, reports late last night said he probably would not be at No. 10 Downing street for the meeting of ministers today. He might return within 48 hours, however, it was suggested. The Prime Minister's original plan was to spend ten days at Castle Forbes for fishing.

Col. Josef Beck, Polish foreign minister who left London this morning, following conclusion of a provisional Anglo-Polish alliance, is understood to maintain that London should do everything possible to win Hungary to the peace coalition, on the assumption Budapest is not irrevocably in the Berlin-Rome camp.

In fact, Col. Beck is said to have undertaken to act as mediator for settlement of Hungarian-Rumania differences, as first step in a project under which London and Paris would be in a position to guaranty independence of Hungaria as well as that of Rumania.

The Turkish, Greek, Polish, French, Italian, Albanian and Rumanian envoys called yesterday at the foreign office. It was indicated several other countries may fear a further eastward drive by the axis powers and Britain, at the instance of Poland, was understood to have agreed to allow Poland to sound out Hungary on prospects of her joining the "stop Hitler" mutual defense front.

In London diplomatic circles it was believed Italy's coup was planned during the current visit to Italy of Field Marshal Goering, and that it was timed to coincide with British officialdom's departure from London for the Easter holidays.

Now, even in official British quarters, an Italian thrust—at least political and economic—across the Balkan peninsula to the Aegean Sea is openly expected.

Such a drive would threaten the independence of Greece and Yugoslavia.

Both the Turkish Ambassador, Tevfik Rustu Aras, and the Greek Minister, Charalambos Simopoulis, rushed to the foreign office to see Lord Halifax as soon as news of Italy's invasion reached London.

The Rumanian Minister, Biorel Tilea, who returned only yesterday from Bucharest, appeared to be particularly worried as he called.

With negotiations for a British guarantee of Rumanian independence still incomplete, Tilea called first in the morning and then returned after luncheon and conferred with British officials for most of the afternoon.

Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, who has remained in London because of the crisis, kept in touch with the foreign office by telephone throughout yesterday. He dispatched a full report to Washington last night.

Italy Devoid Of Chivalry, Says Konitza

Konitza

ever, that he would "burn the archives" of his office here before surrendering them to a "puppet government" set up by Italy.

"I shall wait and see what happens before taking any further steps," he said. He laughed wryly when a young man knocked at his door and asked for canceled Albanian stamps for "Sunday school children who have been begging for them since Albania came into the news."

For 13 years, he said, his tenure of office here has been marked by four or five of such requests each week.

Konitza said the Italian invasion was completely unexpected and not even vaguely forewarned in diplomatic correspondence.

Military observers pointed out that Italy had no need to take over King Zog's nation of 1,000,000 persons to command the Straits of Otranto because it already held the heavily fortified Island of Saseno, in the harbor of a principal Albanian port, Valóna.

Indebted to Italians

Although Albania was indebted to Italy for a loan of about $33,000,000, observers pointed out that under the contract Albania was not required to pay the interest or the principal until it should decide it was capable of repayment. The apparent generosity of the creditor was ascribed to the exclusive use of the money in building military highways north toward Yugoslavia. Albania has no railroads.

Consensus here was that the Italian move either was to establish a land base for military operations south toward Greece and the Dardanelles or north to Yugoslavia, or was a gesture of might for French benefit and home consumption.

Charles C. Hart, former American Minister to Albania, declared the threat to Yugoslavia contained in the Albanian invasion would force that nation into the British-led "Stop Hitler" bloc.

That Italy's "occupation" would be a simple matter, but that its actual control of the country would be a horse of a different color, was a view expressed by those familiar with the little country's history. Famed guerrilla fighters, the Albanians are strongly nationalistic by nature and probably will resist in their almost inaccessible mountain hideouts any attempt at dictation.

An official who declined to be quoted predicted "continual guerrilla warfare" and the impossibility of obtaining Albanian co-operation with Italian aims. He added that it was probable Mussolini hoped to encroach on Yugoslavia on the pretense of freeing Albanians there from "oppression."

Hands Off Italy, Nazis Warn Powers

Back Invasion of Albania; Denounce Anglo-Polish Pact

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, April 7.—Germany today warned the western democracies she was standing behind Italy's invasion of Albania, leaving the inference her might would be in readiness if anyone tried to halt her axis partner.

The warning, repeated several times by radio, could be interpreted as a challenge.

It was issued while German diplomacy was exerting pressure on Poland not to sign the mutual defense agreement concluded in London this week by Prime Minister Chamberlain and Col. Joseph Beck, Polish foreign minister.

"Official German quarters regard news of the landing of Italian troops in Durazzo," said a broadcast official statement on Albania, "as an action within the letter and spirit of the Italo-Albanian friendship treaty of 1927 and also as an expression of deep Italian sympathy for the Albanian people.

"Germany understands Italy cannot permit it if, in a land where Italy's vital interests are so highly important as they are along the Adriatic coast, continued unrest disturbs the general peace and threatens the safety of Italians living there.

"Germany has a full understanding for the protection of Italian interests in this region and would neither understand nor sanction it if any western democratic powers, which have no interests there, should wish to meddle in the legally unobjectionable position and action of our axis partner."

The decision to issue the statement was understood to have been reached during the 48-hour conferences at Innsbruck between Col. Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German high command, and Gen. Alberto Pariani, Italian undersecretary for war.

Their consultations were interpreted in Berlin in the light of subsequent events as having been concerned primarily with what joint action might be taken by German and Italian armies in the event of attempts by other powers to thwart Italian aims in Albania.

Assail "Beck's Folly"

As Beck did not take a signed and sealed document back to Warsaw with him, the Nazi hope persisted it was not too late to convince Poland against a defensive alliance with Britain, an alliance bitterly called here "Beck's folly."

Asked whether Germany would renounce the German-Polish ten-year non-aggression pact, which will not expire until 1944, or take some other form of reprisal, a high official said:

"We will do nothing now, for it is not yet clear just what happened in London."

But the pressure on Poland made itself felt through semi-official statements and press attacks.

"Poland," a spokesman said, "rejected our proposals made some time ago to clarify the status of the free city of Danzig and give us direct access to East Prussia.

"The Polish answer was mobilization. It is important to take note that our proposals in no way endangered Polish independence nor integrity of territory."

Session Called For Discussion of U.S. Foreign Policy

An emergency conference of 100 to discuss development of a strong foreign policy for the United States will open April 15 at the Shoreham Hotel, it was announced yesterday by Clark M. Eichelberger, chairman of the American Union for Concerted Peace Efforts. The conference will continue through April 16.

"It is the hope of the sponsors of the conference," said Eichelberger, "that it will give added impetus to the movement for revision of the neutrality act and will aid in obtaining general public support of a program advocating opposition to international lawlessness."

Paul Kellogg, editor of the Survey Graphic, is in charge of the program. He is assisted by Miss Josephine Schain, chairman of the National Committee on the Cause and Cure of War. Other members of the arrangements committee are Jay Allen, Herbert Bberman, Joseph Cadden, John Elliott, Edgar Fisher, Margaret Forsyth, William Hinckley, Freda Kirchway, Mrs. Henry Goddard Leach, Marion Miller, Richard Scandrett, jr., Prof. James T. Shotwell and Hester Sondergaard.

Vaccine From Embryo Chicks Saves Army Horses and Mules

Bernard George and Capt. Russell McNellis, U. S. A., Veterinary Corps, drill holes in eggs to inject virus, a step in preparing vaccine at Walter Reed Hospital to be used in treatment of sleeping sickness among the Army's livestock

Sleeping Sickness Virus Cultivated in Eggs At Walter Reed at Rate of 4,500 a Week to Be Used on 29,000 Animals

With all the grim seriousness with which it would prosecute a foreign war, the United States Army is fighting a battle against the dread scourge of sleeping sickness. At the moment, the field of operations is among the Army's livestock, but the same virus which affects them can cause the disease in man. The Army hopes that the same technique of prevention in animals may be applicable in a human epidemic.

At the Army Medical Center here technicians are breeding the virus in 4,500 fertile chicken eggs a week. The vaccine, which is the end product of the "harvest," will be used on each of the Army's 29,000 horses and mules. The wholesale vaccination order resulted after serious impediment to military maneuvers last year, when the stock was moved into infected areas—39 of the 48 States.

184,000 Cases Last Year

The disease, technically termed equine encephalomyelitis, was first noted in the San Joaquin Valley, Calif., in 1930. Last year 184,000 cases were reported by the Agriculture Department.

Last summer, for the first time, it was proved by Harvard Medical School physicians that the same virus responsible for an outbreak in Massachusetts of sleeping sickness among children. Of 38 cases, 28 died.

Using data discovered by California University doctors and Agriculture technicians, the Army set out to manufacture vaccine in wholesale lots. The virus, taken originally from material in infected animals, is grown in enormous quantities in the chick embryos.

Virus Kills Embryos

At the Medical Center, fertile eggs, incubated for ten days, are drilled with tiny holes, into which the virus in injected. After 18 hours the embryos are dead. The eggs are opened, the embryos are returned, ground to pulp and a small quantity of formalin is added to the mixture.

It is the formalin which renders the virus inactive and changes a powerful source of infection into a preventative fluid. After almost endless steps, all conducted under the most aseptic conditions, the vaccine is bottled in convenient doses and shipped to the field. First, before the formaline is added, the virulent mixture's lethal qualities are tested on guinea pigs. Then, after it has become a vaccine, other guinea pigs are immunized. A few days later they are injected with the virus. If they survive, the efficacy of the vaccine is proved, and it is made available to Army veterinarians.

Method Might Be Same

Army technicians do not contend theirs is a preventative for virus - caused sleeping - sickness among humans. They say only that it may point a way for control of other types of the disease in man. Were a human epidemic to break out, however, a form of the vaccine would undoubtedly be tried on persons in the infected area.

More valuable at the moment, Army physicians point out, is the fact that by immunizing horses and mules the "reservoir" of infection which could spread to humans is drastically reduced.

The vaccine has been used extensively only for eight months. Statistically, it has been found nearly 100 per cent effective among horses and mules. Whether its immunizing power is permanent, the Army has no way of knowing. That it lasts eight months is certain.

Roosevelt Gets Albanian News at Mountain Retreat

Warm Springs, Ga., April 7 (AP).—President Roosevelt remained in his Pine Mountain cottage for the better part of today receiving telephone and telegraph reports of the invasion of Albania by Italy.

The Chief Executive left it to the State Department to do the commenting for him, but it was taken for granted here he was greatly concerned over the latest turn of events in Europe.

He conferred today with Gov. E. D. Rivers, of Georgia, and Chief Justice Charles D. Reed, of the Georgia Supreme Court. Rivers said it was just a courtesy call.

The death of Prime Minister Lyons, of Australia, brought this statement from the temporary White House:

"The President is very sorry to hear of the untimely death of Prime Minister Lyons. The President has known him for a number of years and has recognized in him not only a personal friend, but a very good friend of the American people."

Pius Attends Good Friday Ceremonies

Pope Accompanied By Few Prelates In Private Chapel

By the Associated Press.

Rome, April 7.—Solemn church ceremonies commemorating Christ's death on the cross climaxed Rome's Good Friday observances tonight.

In St. Peter's, Federico Cardinal Tedeschini, arch-priest of the Basilica, continued the "miserere" and "tenebrae" mourning services. At their conclusion priests banged their prayer books on the kneeling benches, symbolizing the confusion of nature at the Saviour's passing.

Pope Pius XII, accompanied by a few high-ranking prelates, attended services in his private chapel.

In all churches dedicated to the Virgin Mary, including Santa Maria del Popolo, titular church of George Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago, "Maria Desolta" services were held. These consisted of sermons dedicated to the grief of the Virgin Mother as she stood at the foot of the cross.

All places of public entertainment throughout Italy were closed.

Many an Italian community observed Good Friday by presenting traditional passion plays in which was enacted the passion and death of Christ.

Tomorrow, Holy Saturday, church bells which have been silent since yesterday morning will ring once more, heralding the joyous news of the resurrection.

Then the mourning draperies will be stripped from holy images in the churches, candles will be relighted and the "Gloria in Excelsis" will be sung to signify the close of the mourning period.

Hearings Fail To Align Views On Arms Sales

Both Senate and House Committeemen Still Differ Widely

Only adroit compromise of sharply conflicting views on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee can win neutrality act revision at this session of Congress, a canvass of committee sentiment indicated yesterday.

After two days of hearings, Senators appeared no nearer agreement on proposals ranging from a strengthened arms embargo and a "come and get it" cash and carry bill to measures for naming an "aggressor" and neutrality act repeal.

Embargo Hearings Stated

Having heard former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson favor naming "aggressor" nations and Bernard M. Baruch, former War Industries Board chairman, support cash and carry trade with all belligerents, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will resume hearings tomorrow of testimony on the other extreme of mandatory war material embargoes.

Mrs. Louise Leonard Wright, of Chicago, representing composite views of a number of women's organizations, will take the stand. Chairman Pittman said spokesmen for labor and farm cross-sections of opinion will be called later.

Although the Nevada Senator declined commen ton legislative prospects, he is known to be urging his own cash and carry plan as a basis for compromise between greater discretion for the President on the one hand, and tightened arms embargoes on the other. An amendment to the Pittman bill, permitting Americans to trade with belligerents only "at their own risk" may be considered.

Agreed on One Thing

Senator Johnson (Republican), of California, said committee members apparently agreed on only one thing —keep out of war. Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, leader of the mandatory neutrality bloc, said he believed differences of opinion would result in mere extension of the present law.

Under the existing act, embargoes on arms and munitions become immediately effective on belligerents when the President recognizes existence of a state of war. Due to expire May 1 are cash and carry provisions, providing that belligerents must transport in their own ships raw materials purchased here, once the President invokes the act. Pittman's bill would revise this to place arms, as well as raw materials, on the cash and carry list.

Hoover, Stimson Disagree

Reno, Nev., April 7 (AP).—Former President Hoover can't agree with Henry L. Stimson, his former Secretary of State, who told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the neutrality law should be changed and the President given power to take "economic action" against any aggressor nation.

"I am convinced that taking sides in European conflicts by any program or economic support to one side or economic defense against the other will stop no wars and heads the United States straight toward being involved in war," Hoover said.

ate committee. It added $125,000 to purchase a radio station site at Annapolis and $47,000 for surveys of naval air bases.

Pleas for the Sunnyvale research center failed, although the group did approve an increase for the Langley Field Laboratory of $2,140,000. This already had been passed by the House.

Chairman Joseph F. Ames of the National Advisory Council for Aeronautics told the committee the United States had held world leadership in aircraft development for 15 years prior to 1938.

"Today," he continued, "the Army and Navy will have to buy America's present best aircraft, although, and we are reluctant to admit it, they are second best to those of Germany."

"Wars Won Before Fought"

"Is it wise for the country to invest hundreds of millions of dollars annually in national security and by withholding a capital investment of $10,000,000 face the prospect of having only second-best aircraft? . . . To go to war with second-best aircraft would invite disaster."

If confronted with a crisis and forced to rely on "second-best aircraft," the United States would have to adopt "a policy of appeasement, to say the least, and accept the consequences," Ames said. Arguing that Munich indicates that "wars may be won before they are fought" in the factories and laboratories without bloodshed," the N. A. C. A. head said that every day's delay in the Sunnyvale center makes the job of catching up with Germany "that much harder."

Recommendations for the additional research center were presented by Gen. Arnold and Admiral Cook in the form of a joint letter. They declared the Army and Navy are dependent on the National Advisory Council for fundamental research and that it is "absolutely impossible" to expand existing facilities at Langley Field. Arguing that it is unwise to have "all your eggs in one basket" they advocated a second laboratory on the West Coast where 60 per cent of the aircraft factories are located.

"America does not want second-best aircraft," they concluded.

Victory and Towers Testify

John F. Victory, secretary of the National Air Council, and Capt. John H. Towers, who will replace Admiral Cook as Naval Aeronautics chief in June, also testified for the Sunnyvale project. The former told the committee that the Army air expansion program will "be a disappointment to the country because the fruits of German research will be exemplified in superior German aircraft."

The Senate Military Affairs Committee hearing was on legislation sponsored by Senator Hill (Democrat), of Alabama, to develop new lighter metals for aircraft. The measure also would provide a Government engineering center to check on aircraft costs, which Hill declares are now much too high.

During his testimony, Waldo declared the use of lightweight metals such as aluminum, beauxite and magnesium had jumped seven times since Hitler's ascendency to power, and he cited figures showing Japan plans to increase its production of these metals 1,000 per cent.

He advocated broadening the civil air training program proposed by the Government, stating that the "best fighting pilots come from the taxi-driver class, rather than from the colleges."

Garner in Seat Unless Father Runs, Elliott Says

Fort Worth, April 7 (U.P.).—Elliott Roosevelt said tonight that unless his father should choose to run for a third term—"a matter about which I neither know nor predict a thing"—Vice President Garner "will be hard to unseat from the driver's seat he now fills."

In his second recent comment on Garner's position in the 1940 Democratic lists, Roosevelt said that a definite "boom" for Garner was on.

He believed that "with a reduction in Government spending and a swing of the pendulum of Government favoritism from the extreme labor side more nearly to the center in favor of capital, we may expect to see a new surge toward recovery within the next year."

which shattered their coastal cities, but they set to with primitive, tribal zeal and repeatedly pushed back Italian landing parties to the sea.

Italians pounded Durazzo and San Giovanni di Medua with a barrage from the sea and sky. San Giovanni was heavily damaged and, with Valona, set afire.

The Italians won possession of at least three towns—Durazzo, Santi Quaranta and San Giovanni. (Rome said Valona also was occupied.)

From Durazzo, the Italians advanced nearly 10 miles to the River Shijak where they were stopped, Tirana informants said. (Tirana is 25 miles inland from Durazzo.)

25,000 Men Landed

From San Giovanni another column also advanced 10 miles after. Albanian reports said, being thrust back with heavy losses in earlier fighting.

The destruction was carried out systematically by an army of about 25,000 men and dozens of warships which massed off the Albanian coast.

The Tirana radio was used for an appeal t othe Italian people, with a violent attack on the Fascist regime. (Paris dispatches said the Tirana radio declared the Fascist government "sacrificed Italian youth to imperialistic ends of its foreign policy.")

The broadcast denied that Italian nationals in Albania had been attacked by Albanian bands as Italian had charged.

Zog cabled his diplomatic representatives over the world to inform governments to which they were accredited of the "Italian aggression."

"We Prefer Death"

Despite the tremendous odds against them, the Albanians ignored pamphlets dropped by Italian planes, which flew over Tirana and other cities.

The pamphlets declared that the invading troops were friends and that Albanians must not listen to the government which had "impoverished" them.

Mendi Frasheri, former Albanian premier, expressed the Albanian sentiment in a wire to Mussolini: "We prefer death to dishonor."

Metaxas Confers on Coup

Yugoslavia Stays Aloof But Alert

Albania Border Closed After Zog's Plea for Help Is Rejected

By the United Press.

Belgrade, April 7.—Yugoslavia decided tonight to remain clear of the Italo-Albanian crisis, but at the same time moved to keep its defenses on the alert and closed its Albanian border as a precautionary measure.

This course of action was decided upon in an emergency meeting of the Yugoslavian cabinet. Outwardly an atmosphere of official calm was preserved, but there were signs of deep underlying concern over Italy's military invasion of this country's tiny neighbor on the Adriatic coast.

Zog's Plan Rejected

Just how far Yugoslavia has remained aloof from the controversy raging virtually on her doorstep was indicated when it was learned today King Zog of Albania had appealed without success to Belgrade for assistance against Italy.

The request was rejected, in view of Yugoslavia's 1937 treaty of friendship with Italy, although it was declared Yugoslav officials consider the Fascist invasion of Albania is in effect a violation of the pact.

Announcement of some program for protection of Yugoslavian interests in the Adriatic was expected soon from the Belgrade government.

Formal Assurance Given

Formal assurances these interests would be respected have already been given formally to the Yugoslavian government by Italy, it was learned.

Belgrade was reported to have been assured the 1937 treaty would be observed, but official circles were said to feel the clause of this agreement, which provides for maintenance of the status quo in the Mediterranean, has been broken.

Hull to Give U. S. Reaction To Albania War

President Leaves It To Him; Statement May Come Today

The United States Government is expected to make known, possibly today, its pronounced concern over Italy's invasion of Albania.

President Roosevelt, at Warm Springs, Ga., said he would leave it to the State Department to do the commenting for the Government. Here, Secretary of State Hull indicated that a firm expression of this country's views may be expected shortly, when he told reporters he would have nothing to say until the Department had assembled all essential facts and studied all circumstances and their full import and significance.

Whether the United States would again arraign Italy as a violator of the Kellogg-Briand treaty renouncing war as a national policy, was not known, but it was recalled that such action was taken when Italian troops began their conquest of Ethiopia.

233 Americans in Albania

Secretary Hull talked with President Roosevelt at some length by long-distance telephone yesterday, giving the President full information an the Italian move as it came from this country's diplomats abroad.

Hugh G. Grant, American Minister to Albania, reported that several Americans in the Tirana region have taken refuge in the legation, and that none had been injured. The department's reports show 233 Americans in all Albania. No action has been taken to send warships to assist them.

Throughout the capital there was a noticeable lack of the tension felt here when German troops occupied Czecho-Slovakia. Capitol Hill leaders made practically no comment.

Legations Get Gas Masks

Senator Borah (Republican(of Idaho, ranking minority member of the Foreign Relations Committee, expressed doubt that the Albania invasion would provoke, a generla war. Senator Pittman, of Nevada, chairman of the committee, declined to comment.

It was revealed during the day that at the suggesting of the State Department, the War Department has supplied 1,550 gas masks to American embassies and legations for use by their employes in case of war.

Mrs. Rhde is going to San Francisco as a representative of the Interior Department to the Pan American Travel conference.

Richberg Denies Assertion Mexican Oil Parley Failed

International News Service

Donald R. Richberg yesterday declared "unwarranted and inaccurate" an International News Service dispatch which stated his effort to negotiate a settlement of the Mexican oil controversy had failed.

The dispatch said Richberg, counsel for American oil companies, had taken to Mexico City a plan of settlement which President Cardenas rejected, and returned here with a counter-proposal which the oil companies turned down.

Discussed Principles

Richberg's statement said:

"I can state categorically that no plan which would be offered or rejected has been presented by either Mexico or by the oil companies.

"As repeatedly publicly stated, my discussions with President Cardenas were devoted to consideration of 'principles and bases for an agreement determining future relations between the Government and the oil companies.'

"These discussions did not reach the stage of any definite 'plan' or 'offer' proposed by either party.

Confers With Hull

"The published alleged disclosure that the negotiations 'had failed" express only the wish of those who are bending their efforts to produce a failure. The fact is that the negotiations have not reached a stage where any question of success or failure arises."

The statement was distributed after Richberg had conferred with Secretary of State Hull.

Richberg charged there had been "persistent planting of propaganda stories designed to impede settlement" of the oil dispute and that there are "in and outside the United States, influential persons exceedingly anxious to prevent an amicable settlement of controversies with Mexico."

Fred Waring And Band Top Capitol's Bill

Popular Group Returns; 'Four Girls in White' Is Screen Attraction

"FOUR GIRLS IN WHITE." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of an original story by Nathalie Bucknall and Endre Bohem, adapted to the screen by Dorothy Yost, with Florence Rice, Una Merkel, Ann Rutherford, Mary Howard, Alan Marshal, Kent Taylor, Buddy Ebsen, Jessie Ralph, Sara Haden, Philip Terry and Tom Neal. Directed by S. Sylvan Simon. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Capitol Theater.

When Fred Waring dons the professional robes of Kay Kyser (we can still hear Fred's robes!) and begins to kid the mortarboards off the "College of Musical Knowledge," the holiday bill at the Capitol Theater pays dividends that don't grow on most stages today.

The film, "Four Girls in White," is well described by its all-inclusive title. It tells the story of a quartet of student nurses in strikingly unoriginal detail.

Mr. Waring's many visits to our town—he, was, as a matter of record, headliner of last Easter Week's bill at the Capitol—have made his audiences expect something more than the usual "band concert" from him and his two dozen Pennsylvanians. He does not disappoint. The tip-top ragging of the only just-departed Kay Kyser is one of the things to lift an Easter bonnet to; there is a rich vocastration of "Without a Song" in the best Waring manner.

And there is a Waring manner. It is a genial and easy leader who introduces the croaking and familiar voice of Poley McClintock, the gentle warbling of Donna Dae, the tricky saxing and clarineting of Ray Sax, the smooth music of Two Bees and a Honey and the rhythms of the Les Paul trio. For a finale there is the familiar luminous trickery of the group, performed with new variation.

Glee Singing Starred

But most characteristic of Waring's Pennsylvanians is their glee singing. The strings and brasses stop while the boys roll out some elegant vocal orchestrations that they have been calling "vocastrations." This week various glee clubs throughout town are appearing each evening in competition for an award at the close of the engagement. Last night's competitor was the Glee Club of the University of Maryland under the direction of Harlan Randell. At tonight's last stage show the club of American University will compete under the baton of its director, James McLain.

That the Capitol has a rollicking good stage show there can be no possible doubt whatever.

There seems to be a Gold Coast vogue, of late, to place the distaff side within its own strict boundries; borders which the mightier sex do not generally cross. "Tailspin," which took us for a glimpse behind the Women's National Air Races, was one of these and "Four Girls in White" is another of this ilk, depositing us with student nurses.

All Nurse Ambitions

One becomes a nurse so she can meet a prospective husband; her adoring sister enters training to be with her; a lovely, sad-faced thing wants to equip herself to make a living for her little daughter, and a fourth wants to be sure of regular —and irregular—meals. As in any situation such as this, the golddigger falls in love with the penniless doctor, but pursues a wealthy scion only to hand him over to baby sister. The sweet thing, whom everyone "just loves," dies in the path of duty and the gormandizer gormandizes.

Such films as this generally have as their raison d'etre the training of young and inexperienced players. Florence Rice, as the central figure, goes through the accepted emotions and Mary Howard is the tragic mother. Una Merkel and Buddy Ebsen do much to alleviate the strum und drang with some basic imbecilities. Ann Rutherford has little to do but look pert. Alan Marshal and Kent Taylor are the gentlemen in love. RICHARD L. COE.

Errol Flynn Emulates Many Real Sheriffs as Star of 'Dodge City'

Is Ably Supported In Warner 'Western' Done in Technicolor; Dancing Stage Show

"DODGE CITY." Warner Brothers picturization of an original screen play by Robert Buckner, starring Errol Flynn, with Olivia de Havilland, Ann Sheridan, Bruce Cabot, Frank McHugh, Alan Hale, John Litel, Henry Travers, Henry O'Neill, Victor Jory, Guinn "Big Boy" Williams, Gloria Holden, Douglas Fowley, Georgia Caine, Ward Bond, Cora Witherspoon, Russell Simpson and Monte Blue. Directed by Michael Curtiz. Previewed Wednesday, March 29. At the Earle Theater.

The thrilling race between the stage coach and the first "transcontinental train—that got as far West as Dodge City, Kans., back in 1872—with which the film opens, gives only a vague hint of the tumultuous action that is to follow during the violent proceedings that make up this latest of the "epics" devoted to the development of the American frontiers.

BELL

Despite its partial adherence to authentic fact, "Dodge City" will leave a primary impression of being a "wild and woolly Western." It is all of that. But there still is woven into the pattern of this exciting drama much that is worthy of more than casual consideration. As we have attempted to point out before, there is a distinct analogy between the character of Wade Sutton, impersonated by Errol Flynn, and a considerable list of the two-gun gentlemen who served as sheriffs at Dodge City in the old days when it was the metropolis of the cattle country. If you care to take the trouble, there is a deal of history that you may discover mixed up in the turbulent affairs of this picture.

The West Gets Tamed

"Dodge City" falls immediately into the same category of contemporary film plays as "Jesse James" and "The Oklahoma Kid." It is better than either of them. It assumes more or less the position of policing the open country of the old West, when it was oblivious to any law save that which the individual thought up out of his own head on the spur of the moment and usually expressed through the business end of a six-shooter. The manner in which this law and order was brought to a frontier town that has become famous in history forms the crux of the play. You can see Wyatt Earp, "Bat" Masterson and all the other valorous advocates of orderly government striding through the film in the person of the handsome and virile Mr. Flynn.

There is something of the savor of "Cimarron" in "Dodge City." It has a faint taste, as I have said, of that epic quality that attaches to the building of a Nation out of a wilderness.

Flynn, in the role of the young cattleman and buffalo hunter—there is a touch of Col. William F. Cody, "Buffalo Bill," here, too—who later becomes sheriff of the wildest town ever known to God or beast, turns in one of his best performances. His British accent is nicely accounted for by the statement early in the film that he has been a soldier for the Queen in India, has rattled about in Cuba in a revolution or two and finally has wound up in the American Civil War. The feminine interest is efficiently attended to by Olivia de Havilland and Ann Sheridan; the one as a prim young lady, the other as a brazen hussy of the dance halls who is enamored of the wrong man.

Ths wrong man, of course, is the villain of the piece, impersonated with his usual skill by Bruce Cabot. His henchmen are Victor Jory and William Lundigan, but their enterprises are effectively nullified by Alan Hale and Guinn "Big Boy" Williams, who do their fighting on Flynn's side. And what fighting it is!

"Dodge City" is executed entirely in Technicolor of the most approved sort and offers many breath-taking glimpses of natural beauty, staged for the most part by Old Mother Nature. The musical setting by Max Steiner is one of the picture's most valuable assets.

A Dancing Revue

"The Youth Parade of 1939" stage revue at the Earle this week, runs preponderantly to dancing. I seem to reeall that the only one on the bill who does not dance, at one time or another, is Ethel Barrymore Colt, the headliner of the goings-on. Miss Colt reveals herself this week as a mezzo soprano who has taken on great vocal stature since she was last seen in the Capital. She sings only two songs, but in those two discloses a voice of beauty and unexpected range and power.

Next to Miss Colt the favorites of yesterday afternoon's second audience were the Three Ryans, a trio of zany dancing gymnasts who wreck the customers while seemingly trying to do the same for themselves. The Tryon Sisters open the bill with feats of acrobatic dancing that are out of the ordinary and are followed by Katherine Harris, Johnny Coye, George Bell, who would rather balance musical instruments on his forehead than play them, and Emilee Adrian.

The vaudeville portion of the program is short, but it moves briskly and is thoroughly diverting.

A Dance-Hall Gal, Needless to Say

ANN SHERIDAN

Cast in the role of Ruby, the singer in the Gay Lady Saloon, in "Dodge City," this week's attraction on the screen at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater. The foremost roles in this handsome Technicolor production are played by Errol Flynn, Bruce Cabot, Victor Jory, Olivia de Havilland, Alan Hale and Guinn "Big Boy" Williams. The Earle this week is no place to go for a nap!

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Cal., April 7.—David O. Selznick has sent two men, one of them Patsy Ruth Miller's brother, to get background shots for "Ordeal," the new English novel he just bought. David also spotted a brunette beauty (more beautiful than Hedy Lamarr) at "Gateway to Hollywood" and she's now in the testing stage. She's a Miss Frazer from San Francisco. Here were 18 hopefuls from all over America, but David's eagle eye spotted a visitor in the audience and she may just be the biggest star of them all. And right in the same studio, undiscovered by a sponsor, was an announcer—John Conte. Now he's a singing star three times a week on his own program.

HOPPER

Henri Decion, business manager husband of Danielle Darrieux, was a flier during the World War, and shot down an enemy plane that Germany's Goering was flying. Then, it was all in the day's work—if he did that today, he'd probably be a national hero!

Henry will accompany his winsome wife when she returns to Universal in about two weeks. Producer Joe Pasternak has finally worked out a settlement with Gregor Rabinowitz, the star's former producer, and he'll get about one-third of his asking price—which was $450,000 for Danielle's release.

The same studio already has Charles Boyer on the payroll, so "First Love," the next Deanna Durbin picture will be under way soon. Boyer seems to be doing all right by love, or vice versa. He was never better than in his last—"Love Affair," and this one will have to be good to top it!

Virginia Field seems to be the white hope at Universal.. She's signed a long term contract.

Dr. Reynolds, who played Hamlet here, found his play, "The Mystery of Boardwalk Asylum," being given by the Westwood Guild Theater, and the best performance he'd ever seen anyone give.

Asked Sir Cedric Hardwicke what he was doing about television. He said, "I prefer to let others struggle with its imperfections. You may remember I stayed out of talkies until after they'd left the trial stage."

Close-Ups of Hollywood Personalities

Hollywood, April 7 (NEA).—Now that the second Heyward heiress is at the gurgling stage and can be safely left in other hands, Margaret Sullavan is returning to the screen in "Northwest Passage" opposite Bob Taylor. Margaret, who was a close runner-up to Bette Davis for the academy award, hasn't made a picture since "The Shining Hour" and her name lends plenty of lustre to this long-postponed production with Bob and Wally Beery.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Speaking of Wally, I think everyone feels sorry over the turn his marital affairs have taken. He really doesn't want a divorce from Rita Beery, whose sudden appearance in town last week started the rumor that she had called off her Reno plans. But it must have been a false alarm, for she is now talking of getting a California divorce. Their friends are still hoping she may change her mind, for Wally's devotion to little Carol Ann, their adopted daughter, is deep and it seems a shame to disrupt her home.

Paramount caught Ray Milland practically on his way to Honolulu and turned him around, bag and baggage, in the other direction for England to co-star with Ellen Drew in "French Without Tears." If Ray is bewildered it isn't surprising. All week long he had been in a huddle with Bill Lebaron about "The Virginian," Owen Wister's perennial classic. But before the Para press boys could get around to breaking the news that Milland was to be starred in this old favorite, with Eugene Zukor producing, he was switched to the other picture. Ray leaves Monday for his native London, returning as soon as possible for the Technicolor epic. "The Virginian" also has Lloyd Nolan and Robert Preston in the cast.

The movie home life of Dagwood and Blondie will be broken up while they loan Baby Dumpling to Frank Capra for "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington." It will be the first role little Larry Simms has played outside of the Cute Young series with Arthur Lake and Penny Singleton. This time Guy Kibbee will be his parent, and Guy must be inheriting a large family for four of the famous Watson clan are also scripted as his children. These Watson kids, of whom Bobs is now the best known, get so much work they support their entire family and keep the wolf from the door. Harry, Delmar, Gary and Billy have all signed for "Mr. Smith," and they could have used Bobs if he hadn't been tied up at M-G-M plying Pud in "On Borrowed Time."

Surprising, indeed, is the very good performance Lon Chaney, jr., gives as Lennie in the local stage production "Of Mice and Men." He was just a trifle nervous at first, but when he got into the role he was excellent as the dumb, inarticulate giant. There is a little story back of Chaney's success. Wally Ford, who put some of his own money into the Steinbeck play, was unable to get Broderick Crawford, who played Lennie in New York, so he himself trained Lon, spending hours with him, and it's nice to know that Wally's work is appreciated, as shown by the reception given his pupil's characterization.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Richard Dix was mobbed by 28,000 fans at the "Man of Conquest" premiere in Houston; Charles Bennett and Peggy Morrow in deep conversation at a cafe; the Joe E. Browns will christen the barbeque pit at their new Brentwood home with a steak picnic; Mme. Maria Ouspenskaya trained in today to talk over her costumes for "The Rains Came;" Marina Schubert is hosting at a Russian Easter breakfast honoring the Basil Rathbones; Eloise O'Brien, Pat's bride and one of the prettiest women in Hollywood, was a vision in white at the "Of Mice and Men" opening; Martha Ford (Mrs. Wally) was so nervous she kept walking in and out of the theater; Isobel Jewel's dressing room was filled with flowers and telegrams; just heard that she and Owen Crump are secretly wed; the Lloyd Bacons hosted a party.

Mrs. Elsie Torrence was with a group of English friends. Mrs. Lewis Milestone was escorted by Whitney de Rham and the Richard Barthelmesses. The Sonny Chaliffs, the Douglas Fairbanksses, Kay Francis and many others in the first night audience; Ralph Spence, well-known writer, is getting acquainted with Hollywood all over again after an absence of several years in London; Joseph Schenck is spending Easter at Arrowhead; the Darryl Zanucks, Lew Schrelbers, Phyllis Brooks, Bing and Dixie Crosby and their youngsters are in Palm Springs; the Hunt Strombergs in Coronado; May Robson is week-ending in San Francisco, and the Lane sisters are giving their mother a welcome home party; Director George Marshall and his bride of 20 years celebrated their anniversary by taking the children to the San Francisco Fair.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow.

Hoover Story Is Screened At the Met.

'Persons in Hiding' Is a Vivid Drama Of Underworld

"PERSONS IN HIDING." Paramount picturization of a screen play by William R. Lipman and Horace McCoy from J. Edgar Hoover's book of the same name, with Lynne Overman, Patricia Morison, J. Carroll Naish, William Henry, Helen Twelvetrees, William Frawley, Judith Barrat, William Collier, sr., May Boley, Richard Stanley, Dorothy Howe, John Hartley, Janet Waldo, Richard Denning, Leona Roberts, Philip Warren, John Eldredge, Richard Carle, Roy Gordon, John Hart and Lillian Yarbo. Directed by Louis King. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Metropolitan Theater.

There's the candid camera touch to this first movie opus of J. Edgar Hoover, the stout fella who is not only head G-man, but has made the United States G-man conscious. As a story, "Persons in Hiding," assuredly has that realistic tang that goes with "real life" detective stories—but naturally, because it is based on the crime dossiers of the FBI.

That fabulous (we thought) character, the "crime queen" has been chosen by J. Edgar for his central character. She cuts a path of crime across half a dozen States. Her husband, the nationally known "Gunner" Martin, is but a pawn in her enameled fingertips. Since Chief Hoover has sponsored this underworld empress in his movie—one must be sure that she lived and flourished in the flesh—although she probably sits behind steel bars now and mutters to herself, "Crime does not pay—for long enough." Fun is like that, for one and all who play on the narrow edge of misbehavior with the law.

Story Moves Swiftly

The great interest of the film attaches to its authorship by Head G-Man Hoover. All of its fast incident, the incision of its investigative development, bear the imprint of G-man expertness. There is another element, too—Chief Hoover's recognition of the economic and human element in crime. The "wrong girl" who develops into a "crime queen" is just what social workers term an "underprivileged girl." She's a beautiful creature, the offspring of "poor whites," who goes to the big town and gets a job in a beauty parlor, is so hungry for pretty things that she snitches valuables from the coat pockets of customers.

The first time she meets a petty hold-up man, she harasses him into being a No. 1 Public Enemy by sheer force of driving ability. From life she wants mink coats, orchids and French perfume. To her they're terribly important because she always lived on a less than five and-ten basis.

Mr. Hoover's notorious gunman, too, is a sad, pitiful and essentially likable character. He's just a cheap stick-up guy, driven to desperation by infatuation, willing but weak.

Boiling it all down, J. Edgar Hoover has written himself a swell scenario. But Hollywood hasn't done entirely right by him. The story has incisiveness and realism, but it required superlative interpretation—which it has received—in part.

Is Nicely Acted

Lynne Overman turns in a beautiful job of acting as the G-man who runs down the slightly goofy naughties. But Lynne's always the excellent trouper. Even more honors, though not so obvious, belong to J. Carroll Naish as "Gunner" Miller, a great hand behind a gun, but a weakling with a girl.

The involving difficulty comes with the "crime queen," played competently by Patricia Morrison. The role is a great one, not to be encompassed by the clever Miss Morrison—or any of her other colleagues. It calls for the No. 1 shimmer and subtlety of such persons as the great Garbo, Irene Dunne or Helen Hayes. Only such great stars could give the part the true horror, brilliance and fatality properly belonging to it. Let's hope that J. Edgar will write another scenario from the facts more amazing than fiction—that his interpretation will be inspired. It's a great first effort. Others should follow.

Many good shorts make up a big Metropolitan program, including an Edgar Kennedy comedy, an extra smart Hollywood cartoon and Clyde McCoy's "Sugar Blues."

MARY HARRIS.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, April 7.

PHILLIPS HOLMES: The honeymoon of your brother Ralph and his bride, Libby Holman, was concluded yesterday. Ralph is back in New York now, visiting theatrical agencies, looking for a job . . . Police Commissioner Valentine: Cafe jewel thieves are still at work. Saturday night they visited the home of Jaro Fabry, the artist-cartoonist, and rifled the apartment. The district officers are very secretive about it . . .

LEON HENDERSON: If you get the SEC appointment, your successor as executive secretary of the Monopoly Investigating Committee will be Theodore Kreps, professor of economics at Stanford University . . . Newspaper Guild: Lillian Hellman, author of "The Little Foxes," supplied the name for that new tabloid here. The name now is being registered.

DIST. ATTY. GEOGHAN: The 15-year-old Rubin girl, whose attacker was slain in a knife fight by a young man named Orlikoff, now is in the psychiatric ward at Kings County Hospital. The doctors say that she's violent, because of the shock caused by this experience and because of the five-hour grilling by detectives in the station house . . . Grover Whalen: Henry Ford and Al Smith, who met for the first time this week, at the fair grounds, didn't discuss the exhibits. They spent all their time comparing their respective grandchildren . . . Father Divine: The New York office of the London Daily Express, mindful of this week's headlines, now answers all telephone calls with the salutation, "Peace."

ELEANOR HOLM: Billy Rose visited the Aquacade he had built and surveyed the 300-feet-long swimming pool—largest in the world . . . "This is a real $1,000,000 thing," he confessed, "actual cost—$350,000. It's a swell place" . . . "It's a nice pool all right," he was assured, "but suppose war breaks out and the fair is called off?" . . . "Then it's still a swell place," Billy replied, "—to drown myself."

MAYOR LAGUARDIA: If you appoint Bill Herlands to a magistrate's job, his fitness will have to be passed upon by the Criminal Courts Comm. of the N. Y. Bar Assn. And Herlands is head of that committee . . . Elia Kazan: Joseph Calleia has been selected to portray the mobster in the screen version of "Goldn Boy"—the role you played on Broadway . . . Patricia Ellis: Your stepfather, Alexander Leftwich, the producer, now heads the WPA Federal Theater in California . . . Equity: Next season, including the accumulated profits of "Pins & Needles," the International Ladies Garment Workers Union will have $250,000 to invest in its next production—which is more money than any single producer will have for a stage presentation.

CLIFFORD ODETS: When you left New York two months ago, you told your secretary that your whereabouts were not to be disclosed—not even to your associates in The Group Theater . . . He kept the secret, up to this week, explaining that you were desirous of anonymity and wanted to get away from it all. But making speeches to newspaper men in Mexico City doesn't help preserve your anonymity. The papers all carried the dispatch . . . Duke of Windsor: Charles Bedeaux, who arranged the American tour which you cancelled, is rushing from Africa now to his home in France . . . Pulitzer Prize Committee: Edna St. Vincent Millay has finished writing her new book of poems. For the first time in her career, they will stress social consciousness.

F. D. R.: Your mother tendered a tea party last week-end and invited her grandchildren and their friends . . . The distinguished lady, as is her custom, served tea—and nothing stronger than ginger-beer . . . The youngsters who attended, however, were very much satisfied . . . They each took turns in excusing themselves from the drawing room and marched, through the connecting door to Jimmy Roosevelt's home—where the drinks were set up.

LITERARY GUILD: Adolf Hitler has registered no complaint as yet regarding the unauthorized publication in America of his complete "Mein Kampf." Hitler did complain, however, when the abridged edition first was published by Houghton, Mifflin—six years ago—because the book jacket was in the colors of the old German republic—Fifty-second Street Association: Jack White is looking for a customer to take over his present 18 Club premises when he moves next door. The options he gave have expired . . .

EVALYN WALSH McLEAN: When you came to El Morocco Tuesday night for the first time without your Hope diamond, someone in your party reported that you'd given up wearing that diamond for Lent . . . Spec. Pros. Amen: Dr. Blank, who was convicted a few days ago—after his case had been dismissed in the Magistrates Court, is willing to talk—if you'll make a deal.

Columbia

It is a penetrating and deeply appealing study of young domestic life that is spread upon the screen in "Made for Each Other," which yesterday resumed its downtown run at Loew's Columbia Theater.

The vibrant and provocative Carole Lombard, in this subject, subdues her natural ebulliences and becomes a young wife and mother whose problems largely form the basis of the play. In the opposite role of the youthful husband, James Stewart plays with his accustomed deliberation and adds strength thereby to the role of a juvenile. Caspar Milquetoast, who goes in to strike for a raise and comes out with a demotion, of which he is paradoxically proud.

The story, to be sure, has been done time and time again on the screen, but always has been proved to be good. It still is. Miss Lombard and Mr. Stewart are primarily responsible for this survival of an ancient tale, but they are not alone in their eminence.

In supporting roles, exceptionally fine work is done by Charles Coburn, Lucille Watson and a considerable number of others. Miss Watson perhaps has the most distasteful role in the play—that of a meddling mother-in-law, who really knows how to meddle.

Despite an unbelievable scene or two—involving a serum flight from the Far West to the Far East—"Made for Each Other" is a film that has sufficient merit to deserve to be seen.

The new bill at the Columbia is completed by the customary short-reel subjects and a new issue of the "News of the Day."

RKO-Keith's

One of the unexpected, but most worthily deserved, successes of recent films, yesterday began its third week at RKO-Keith's Theater.

"Love Affair" is its unassuming title and a more faultlessly executed motion picture would be difficult to create. Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer are its central figures and are surrounded by sharply etched characterizations from Maria Ouspenskaya and some expert "bit" players.

The delicacy with which the story is told makes it the remarkably fine work it is, for the chance meeting of two people on shipboard, who plan a meeting in six months only to be pulled apart by accident, seems scarcely unique. But its presentation is. The gay humor of the early reels gives way gradually to a depth of feeling in the later footages.

"The March of Time's" release on the Mediterranean and Walt Disney's "Society Dog Show" also are held over.

Gen. Jackson Rode Borrowed Horse, Dispute Reveals

Richmond, Va., April 7 (AP).—A new angle to the controversy over a design for the Jackson statue on the Manassas battlefield took the form of a statement today that Jackson rode a borrowed horse and not Little Sorrel in the Battle of First Manasses.

G. Gibson Worsham, of Richmond, said Jackson used a horse loaned by Capt. James Thomason of the Stuart horse artillery.

Meanwhile, Sculptor Joseph Polia worked upon a new model which he hopes will silence the critics of his first small model.

Little Hope Held For Mrs. Robertson

Mrs. Ann Peyton Robertson, who was shot in the chest and head by her husband shortly before he killed himself Thursday night at their Hickory Grove (Va.) home, was still unconscious at George Washington Hospital last night.

Doctors held little hope for Mrs. Robertson's life. Her husband, Rolfe Robertson, 42-year-old sportsman-farmer, from whom she was estranged, died instantly from a self-inflicted bullet wound in the heart.

Prince William County Coroner Dr. E. H. Marsteller said yesterday the case would be listed as attempted murder and suicide.

Easter Hike Arranged

The Wanderbirds Hiking Club will take an Easter jaunt to Seneca, Md., Sunday over new territory and will return via the tow path along the old Chesapeake & Ohio Canal. The hikers will leave for the 7-mile walk from the National Theater Sunday at 9 a. m.

Aeronautics Tour Scheduled May 2

Two new airplane test tunnels will be dedicated by the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, at Langley Field, Va., May 2, during the fourteenth inspection tour of the N. A. C. A. laboratories.

Officials announced yesterday executives and engineers of aircraft firms, and Government departments would join the inspection tour. The group will leave Washington from the Seventh street wharves May 1. They will hold a morning conference May 2 at the Post Theater, Langley Field.

Gorgas Laboratory's Work to Be Discussed

Research progress in the Gorgas Memorial Laboratory will be discussed at 4 p. m. Monday at a meeting in the American Red Cross headquarters building, sponsored by the Gorgas Memorial Institute. Speakers will be Dr. George Crile, of Cleveland; Dr. Herbert C. Clark, of Panama, and Rear Admiral E. R. Stitt, of Washington.

Club Session Tuesday

A delegation from the Washington Chapter of the Reciprocity Club will go to Baltimore Tuesday at 5 p. m. to attend a joint meeting with Baltimore and Richmond chapters, W. K. Norwood, corresponding secretary, announced yesterday. Other officers of the local chapter are A. G. Dezendorf, president; T. S. Grape, first vice president; F. A. Wetzel, recording secretary, and Dr. S. L. Hilton, treasurer.

Police Boys Club Fund Campaign Quota Is Reached

The $75,000 Metropolitan Police Boys' Club drive has "gone over the top," Campaign Manager L. Gordon Leech announced at a Cosmos Club luncheon yesterday. Later returns, he said, may raise the present total by $500.

Police Chief Brown expressed himself as "more than gratified" and predicted a record-breaking year of attendance at the five club units and summer camp.

Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, who presided at the luncheon, thanked volunteer workers, policemen who solicited contributions, the Big Sisters unit and Women's Auxiliary.

CityCouncil Plan Backed By Hotel Workers Union

Election of the city council, proposed in the Griffenhagen report on reorganization of the District government, and establishment of a labor department for the National Capital won the unanimous support yesterday of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes Alliance, Local No. 781.

The union went on record opposing "the breaking up of the administration of Washington's many labor laws among several agencies, as now provided in the Griffenhagen report" and concluded that "labor laws can best be administered under the organization of a labor department, as experience in many States shows."

Pine, Aides Expect To Have All Cases Ready for Court

District Attorney Pine and his staff yesterday drafted a program designed to have all pending criminal cases ready for trial when the Criminal Court resumes sessions April 17.

There were 198 cases awaiting disposition when the court adjourned Thursday. Most of these were ready to be settled when the courts had time to hear them. The exceptions were cases arising from indictments presented by the retiring jury last Friday.

Trial dates have been set, and Pine said he expected the prosecutors would be able to adhere to their schedule unless some case ran longer time allowed for it.

The District attorney's staff also discussed the agenda of the conference of United States attorneys called by Attorney General Murphy April 19 to 21.

Benefit Arranged

Si-lin Chen and Lily Mehlman will present a dance program for the benefit of the Chinese Red Cross at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday in Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard streets northwest. The program is sponsored by the Washington Committee for Aid to China.

Four Services Scheduled at Reformation

Members of Church To Have 'Emmaus Suppers' in Homes

Four services will be held tomorrow at the Lutheran Church of the Reformation.

At the 6:30 a. m. Easter dawn candlelight service Rev. Ralph W. Loew will speak on "A Song for the Ages." At this service 25 young people will present the Easter Story in Drama, and the Holy Communion will be administered.

The matin service at 8:30 a. m. will feature special music by the Matin Choir and the Rev. Mr. Loew will speak on "Christus Victor," after which Holy Communion again will be administered.

At the 11 o'clock service Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, pastor, will speak on "The Ultimate Purpose of Life."

At 12:15 p. m. the third service of Holy Communion will be held.

Reformation is co-operating in a congregation-wide "Emmaus Supper" on Easter evening. Patterned after Christ's supper in Emmaus on the first Easter evening, many homes of the church will be opened for supper guests.

At 8 o'clock Dr. Blackwelder will speak on "The First Easter Evening," after which the closing service of Holy Communion will be held at 9:15.

Luther Place Memorial. Services begin at 7:45 a. m. with a Holy Communion, at which time Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, the pastor, will preach on "He Is Risen."

At the 9 a. m. service, Dr. Rasmussen's subject will be "I Saw the Holy City" and at the 11 o'clock service, he will speak on "Behold, I Am Alive for Evermore." Dr. Gould N. Wickey and the Rev. Fred J. Eckert will be assisting ministers and new members will be received.

The Intermediate Luther League at 4:30 p. m. will hear Miss Vivian Wickey speak on "Our Triumphant Saviour." The Rev. Mr. Eckert, of Gettysburg Seminary, will speak to the Senior League at 6 o'clock on "The Victorious Word." Dr. Gould N. Wickey, executive secretary of the board of education of the United Lutheran Church, will speak to the Young People's League at 7 p. m. on "When Christianity Conquers."

Concordia. The Rev. Charles Enders will preach on "Fear Not." In the German service at 10 a. m. the Davison Glee Club will furnish special music. The English service at 11:15 a. m. will be followed by Holy Communion, in which the confirmants will participate for the first time.

The annual congregational meeting will be held on Tuesday at 8 p. m.

Atonement. Services will open at 7 a. m. Communion will be administered both at this and the service at 11 a. m. At the latter the confirmation class will receive its first communion.

The Sunday school will conduct its Easter service at 7 p. m., replacing evening worship.

St. Paul's. Culminating his sermon series on "Greater Things," Dr. Henry W. Snyder, pastor, will preach in the morning on "Greater Life."

At 7:30 p. m. the Sunday school, under the direction of Lindley G. Schmidt, will present a pageant, "The First Easter" written by Dr. Snyder, enacted by a cast of 20.

Christ. At 10 a. m. there will be an Easter communion. The festive service will be held at 11 o'clock.

There will be selections both by the senior and junior choirs. Sunday school exercises will take place at 6 p. m. under the direction of Martin Behrens.

St. Mark's. "The Assurance of Easter" will be the theme of the sermon by the Rev. J. Luther Frantz at 11 a. m.

The Young People's meeting will be held in the church auditorium at 6:30 p. m. Miss Margaret Buckholtz will present the topic, "The Victorious Christ."

Takoma. Three services have been especially designed for different groups of the church. At 7 a. m. a sunrise communion will be held under auspices of the Senior Luther League. The vice president of the League, Byron Souder, will conduct the service, assisted by Donald Baus. The pastor of the church, the Rev. J. Adrian Pfeiffer, will officiate at the altar.

A special children's service has been arranged for 9:45, with Fred Johnstone in charge, assisted by Rudolph Mueller and Jean Hickman.

The main service with communion will be held at 11 o'clock. "The Living Christ" will be the subject of the sermon by the Rev. Mr. Pfeiffer.

Grace. Under the leadership of the pastor, Dr. Gerhard E. Lenski, at 9:45 a. m. members of the Sunday School will meet in the church hall and will be led in worship by the superintendent, Frank Stutz.

At 10 a. m. a preparatory service for Holy Communion will be held under the leadership of the pastor.

The Easter service for the congregation will begin at 11 a. m. Dr. Lenski will preach on "Easter's Triumphant Assurance." At this service for the first time 18 young people, confirmed on Palm Sunday, will partake of the sacrament.

St. Stephen's. In a sunrise service at 6 a. m. the Rev. Sam H. Kornmann will have for his sermon subject, "Very Early in the Morning."

At 11 a. m., there will be baptism and reception of members, with communion service for the confirmation classes of this and previous years. The Sunday School will render their Easter program at the 7 p. m. service.

Dr. Simpson Daugherty To Speak on 'Go! Tell!'

To accommodate the large congregations, two morning services will be held at Memorial United Brethren Church tomorrow at 8:30 and 11. Dr. Simpson B. Daugherty will preach on "Go! Tell!" The reception of members will take place at the second morning service.

At 8 p. m. the final message will be delivered on "Beyond This World."

Church of the Week

Georgetown Church Looks After Its Own

$3,000 Ear-Marked For Unique Social Service Project

Through participation in the spring tour of Georgetown homes on April 21 and 22, Washingtonians will be helping to maintain one of the city's most unique enterprises—the social service project of St. John's Episcopal Church, Georgetown. Mrs. C. M. Scharest is tour chairman.

Material assistance, counsel, transportation to clinics and other centers, entertainment for children and adults and various interest groups are among features of the project, launched in 1932 by the Rev. F. Bland Tucker, rector since 1925.

Reviewing the background of the enterprise, the cleric, acting chairman of the Social Welfare Department of the Washington Federation of Churches, and social welfare committeeman of the Washington Diocese of the Episcopal Church, said yesterday that the idea sprung from realization that church facilities were inadequate to meet the material needs of the congregation, some of whose members—like millions of others—were engulfed by the depression.

Mr. Tucker

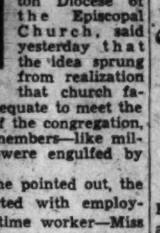
Consequently, he pointed out, the project was started with employment of a part-time worker—Miss Eliza T. de Saussure, who has served as full-time staff member since 1936.

Encountered yesterday while conducting a children's hour in the parish hall at Thirty-first and O streets northwest, Miss de Saussure graciously outlined progress and significance of the movement to "help people help themselves."

"It is surprising," she declared, "how the people out here have kept their 'chins up' despite their troubles." It is also astounding, she hastened to add, how conscious some of them are of people in the "same boat," and how eager they are to sacrifice in helping others.

One of the most interesting phases of the program, she explained, is the motor corps, which transports families to clinics. Supervised by the Junior Unit of the Woman's Auxiliary, of which Mrs. William Stanley is president, the corps also takes aged and incapacitated persons into the city to other agencies.

Another popular activity in the St. John's "Friday Night Club," which, the social worker declared, brings as much diversion to adults as youngsters.



Miss Saussure

"Some mothers were prevented from attending because of babies at home," said Miss de Saussure, "so a nursery was established in the parish hall, conducted by the younger girls of the congregation.

Serving as a co-ordinating agency and working in close co-operation with the Washington Self-Help Agency, the Council of Social Agencies, the Social Welfare Department of the Church Federation, the Community Chest and similar organizations, the project is teaching people to use local agencies best suited to their needs.

Some parishioners drop into the collection plate scrip given them for services at the Self-Help Agency, which the church redeems for fuel and other necessities.

While the project—for which $3,000 annually is allotted in the church budget—is primarily for St. John's parishioners, emergency cases are never turned down, said Miss de Saussure, who lauded the co-operation of other individuals and organizations, among these a Connecticut avenue shop, which donated 300 new hats, and several physicians who are assisting free.

Formerly a physicial education instructor in Greenville, S. C., High School, and a graduate of Winthrop State Teachers' College for Women, Miss de Saussure performed social service work in New York City before coming here.

Second oldest Episcopal Church in Washington, St. John's boasts many other activities, including the Girls' Friendly Society, led by Mrs. J. B. Wyckoff; Brotherhood of St. Andrew, with Russell Hillary as president, and the Sunday School, of which the Rev. Mr. Tucker is superintendent. G. L. Nicolson is senior warden of the vestry.

Founded in 1796 by the Rev. Walter D. Addison, the church had as one of its early vestrymen Francis Scott Key, of "Star-Spangled Banner" fame. John J. Sayrs was first rector. The Right Rev. Frederick Howden, present Bishop of New Mexico, was rector from 1902 to 1914.

The Rev. Mr. Tucker came here from Lawrenceville, Va. He is a brother of the Very Right Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church in America.

John Wesley to Hear Bishop C. C. Alleyne

Bishop Cameron Chesterfield Alleyne, former pastor of John Wesley A. M. E. Zion Church, now bishop of the conference, will deliver the Easter sermon at John Wesley tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "When the Cross Conquered."

At 8 a. m. the Rev. Stephen Gill Spottswood, pastor of the church, will speak on "I Am the Resurrection."

At 8 p. m. a special service will be held for induction of 50 members into the church and installation of trustees, elders, deacons, clerk and auditor for the coming year. The minister will preach on "Crosses and Crocuses."

The Sunday school will present a special Easter program at 9:45 a. m. tomorrow, sponsored by the Fields Class, headed by Mrs. Thomas L. Coyle, and under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth Burton.

Westminster Church Memorial. The Rev. Harry V. Porter will conduct the Easter morning worsihp and administer the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. The subject of his meditation will be "Flaming Windows." In the evening an Easter cantata will be presented by the adult choir, "Death and Life," by Shelley.

Metropolitan. At 11 a. m. Dr. G. N. Luccock, second pastor in the history of Metropolitan Church, will speak. His subject will be "Easter and a Bewildered World." New members will be received and there will be a baptismal service for adults and infants.

At 7:45 p. m. Dr. J. L. Fendrich, jr., will speak on "The Power of His Resurrection."

Bethesda. Dr. W. L. Darby, D. D., LL. D., executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, will be guest preacher at 11 o'clock. His subject is "Jesus and the Resurrection."

Dr. Darby will also welcome the new members into the fellowship of the church and serve the Communion of the Last Supper.

In the evening the Rev. George H. Pigueron, of the Church of the Pilgrims, will preach on "Who Is This Man?"

Garden Memorial. The Rev. Philip Goertz, pastor, will take as his theme "Easter Joy." The choir will present special music for the day. At 7:30 p. m. the choir will conduct a service of music.

Dr. O. J. Hart's Theme Will Be 'Immortality'

Rev. N. C. Acton to Conduct Children's Festival at 3 P. M.

At St. John's Episcopal Church there will be choral celebrations of Holy Communion at 9 and 11 a. m. tomorrow. The Rev. Oliver J. Hart, D.D., rector, will preach at both services on "Immortality."

Early celebration of Holy Communion will be at 7:30 a. m.

The church school will have its festival service in the church at 3 p. m. with an address by the Rev. Nathaniel C. Acton, curate. At this service flowers will be presented to each child.

Evening prayer will be said at 8 p. m. with sermon by the Rev. William Curtis White, curate, whose subject is "He Is Risen."

Epiphany. Services on Easter Day will be Easter hymns on the McKim Memorial Chimes from 7:15 to 7:30 a. m. The first celebration of Holy Communion will be at 7:30; second celebration at 9 o'clock, and at 11 o'clock the regular festival service, Holy Communion and sermon by Dr. Z. B. Phillips, rector.

At 4 p. m. the festival service will be held for the church school with presentation of flowers and Easter offering.

At 8 p. m. there will be special music and sermon by the Rev. Duncan Fraser.

Rock Creek Parish. There will be three services in the morning. Holy Communion will be at 7:30 a. m., at which the junior choir will lead the music. At 9:30 a. m. there will be the children's festival service of the church school. The junior choir will lead the service at this time and Dr. F. J. Bohanan will preach.

At the 11 a. m. service there will be holy communion and another sermon by Dr. Bohanan.

There will be baptismal service today at 4 o'clock.

The Young Peoples Fellowship will meet at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening at which time a supper will be served. On Monday night will be the usual election of officers of the parish.

Trinity. There will be three services of the Holy Communion, the first without music at 7:30 a. m., the next especially for young people of the parish at 9 a. m., when the Rev. Reno S. Harp, jr., will preach on "Seeing the Invisible."

The festival service will be at 11 a. m. and the Rev. Mr. Harp will preach on "Things Not Seen."

Methodist Union and Home To Hold Joint Banquet Here

The Golden Jubilee of the Methodist Home of Washington and the annual meeting of the city's Methodist Union will be celebrated jointly at a banquet Tuesday evening at the Willard Hotel. Mrs. Harry Hoskinson, president of the board of managers of the Methodist home, will preside.

Music will be furnished throughout the evening by the Hamline Quartette, under direction of John Marville, and by the Kanora String Quartette, with Dr. Clarence A. Ransom leading.

The address of the evening, on the subject: "A New Church and Its Mission," will be delivered by Bishop Ivan Lee Holt, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, of Dallas, Tex.

Other speakers will include Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, of Washington; Dr. Edgar C. Beery, presiding elder of the Methodist Episcopal Church South; Dr. G. Ellis Williams, Washington District superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal Church; Walter M. Bastian, president of the Methodist Union; Harry Hoskinson, president of the board of trustees of the home, and the Rev. Klein M. Haddaway, president of the Methodist Ministerial Association of Washington.

Some of the older guests will recall the early history of the home, since its establishment in 1889 at Twelfth and N streets northwest, under sponsorship of the Methodist Union, then known as the Methodist Alliance. The present home at Connecticut avenue and Ellicott street, was dedicated on November 28, 1926. Under the superintendence of Mrs. Lucretia Knoke it now has 59 residents, ranging in age from 65 to 96 years.

Banquet guests will include Mrs. Fred S. Cawson, charter member and former president of the home's board of managers, and, in addition to Mrs. Hoskinson, the following officers of the board of managers: Mrs. William A. Haggerty, Mrs. J. Frank Campbell, Mrs. Harry L. Underwood, Mrs. Howard Bartle, Mrs. H. L. Buell, Miss Bertha Gray, Mrs. Edward Ross, Mrs. Dudley F. Holtman, Mrs. Edward M. Hall, Irving O. Ball and Paul B. Cromelin.

Representing the Methodist Union among the honor guests will be its officers: Samuel W. McIntosh, O. O. Thomen, Edwin Dice, William E. Springer, C. Wendel Shoemaker, Charles H. Gray, the Rev. H. W. Burgan, Renah F. Camalier, the Rev. Clarence H. Corkran, the Rev. John R. Edwards, the Rev. W. C. Main, W. W. Marlow, the Rev. Ralph D. Smith and J. Mark Trice.

Dr. F. B. Harris Speaks Twice Tomorrow

Other Ministers to Participate in Morning Services

There will be at Foundry Methodist Church identical morning services of worship tomorrow, at 10 and 11:30 a. m., in which several ministers will participate.

The sermon will be given by Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, minister, on "What We Shall Be." New members will be received at all services of the day, and following the custom established early in the present pastorate, the pulpit and altar flowers are given as memorials for relatives and friends now deceased and will be distributed to sick and shut-ins in hospitals and homes on Monday by the ladies of the church.

"Easter Chimes" is the subject of the address by Dr. Harris at the 8 p. m. service.

Calvary. There will be identical morning services, at 9:30 and 11 o'clock, with the sermon by the Rev. Orrie Gravenor Robinson on the theme: "Death Is Not a Calamity." This is the closing sermon in a series on "The Fundamental Belief of Jesus."

At 7:30 p. m. there will be an Easter Evensong service, with all choirs participating, including the children. The minister will conduct the service of worship. Service with this church service, with several of the young people participating.

Hamline. "Mistaken for the Gardener" will be the subject of the Easter sermon of Dr. H. W. Burgan at 11 a. m. An Easter vesper service will be held at 5 p. m., when the minister's theme will be "On the Emmaus Road." This vesper service will be substituted for the regular evening service.

The Epworth League and the Junior High League will sponsor an Easter fellowship tea in the social hall at 6 p. m., after which the two organizations jointly will hold an Easter candlelight service. Mrs. Dwight Ellis will be worship leader.

Metropolitan Memorial. The 11 o'clock service will be carried to the vestry for an overflow service by electrical amplification. The sermon will be by the Rev. William Andrew Keese, on "Easter—The Ultimate Goal," the seventh in a series on "Discipleship."

Wesley. The Rev. J. Luther Neff will preach at the 11 a. m. service on "The Easter Assurance." The choir, under the direction of Marie Little, organist and director, will sing two anthems, "The Sunlit Hill," by Scholin, and "Regina Coeli," by Giorza. The Easter solo, "The Angel's Message," by Loud, will be sung by Eleanor Bourdene.

Lincoln Road. A class of adults will be received into membership at 11 a. m. and the sacrament of baptism for infants will be administered. The Rev. Reginald Heber Stone will speak on the topic, "The Risen Christ."

At 8 p. m. the choir will present a cantata, "The Day of Resurrection," by J. Stanley Hall.

Easter Theme At Calvary Is 'Dawn Came'

Rev. W. S. Abernethy To Speak in Identical Baptist Services

The Rev. W. S. Abernethy, minister at Calvary Baptist Church, will preach tomorrow morning on "Dawn Came at Last." There will be identical services at 9:30 and 11 a. m. The entire Sunday school will meet at 9:30 o'clock in order that its personnel may attend the first service and make room for visitors at the second.

The subject at the evening service will be "I Know." The minister will be assisted by Miss Bernice Crowell and Dr. John A. Swartout at the evening service. The ordinance of baptism will be administered at 12:15 and 8 p. m.

The junior church service will be merged with the main church services tomorrow morning.

First. For his Easter sermon Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor of the First Baptist Church, has selected the topic, "Belief in Immortality: A Personal Testimony."

Instead of the evening service there will be a program of Easter music by the choir at 4:30 p. m.

Fifth. "The Living Christ" will be the subject of the Easter message which Dr. John E. Briggs, pastor, will bring at the 11 a. m. service. At 7:45 p. m. he will speak on "An Easter Afternoon Walk and Talk With Jesus." The ordinance of baptism will be administered in the evening.

Metropolitan. Tomorrow will be marked by the third consecutive reception of a large group of new members. Tomorrow's group will complete a total of 200 who have united in membership since November 1, 1938.

Dr. John Compton Ball, pastor, will preach an illustrated message at the 11 a. m. hour on "The Power of the Resurrection." The Rev. Robert Savage will preach at the 7:45 p. m. hour on "The Gladdest Day in History."

Chevy Chase. Two morning worship services will be held, with the Rev. Edward O. Clark speaking on "A Rendezvous With Christ" at the 9 o'clock service and on "What We Believe About Immortality" at 11 o'clock.

A special service of Easter music will be rendered by the choir at 8 p. m., when the pastor will give a brief message on "Light at Eventime."

Bethesda First. At 11 a. m. Dr. J. Raymond Nelson, pastor, will speak on "Discovering the Risen Lord." His topic for the evening service at 8 p. m. will be "The Resurrection in Perpetuity."

First, Hyattsville. Dr. R. W. Weaver, executive secretary of the Columbia Baptist Convention, will preach at 11 a. m. The Leavell B. Y. P. U. will have charge of the evening service. The B. Y. P. U.'s will meet at 6:45 p. m.

Redeemer (Italian). The Rev. Olindo Marseglia, assistant pastor, will preach at the 10:45 a. m. service. He has chosen as the topic of his sermon "Easter Rejoicing and Its Message of Christian Duty."

In the B. Y. P. U. at 6:30 p. m. a religious drama, "Way of Life," will be presented.

The Axis Strikes Back

Mussolini has used a sledge hammer to drive a nail. For 12 years Albania has been bound to Italy by the closest political, economic and financial ties. She has been in fact, if not in name, an Italian protectorate.

Nonetheless, the Duce has now seen fit to invade Albania and bombard her towns. Apparently he seeks to incorporate that nation in the Italian empire. His action is the companion piece and sequel to Hitler's equally flagrant and indefensible destruction of the independence of Czecho-Slovakia. It is also the sequel and answer to the recent efforts made by Great Britain and France to bar the way to further aggressions in Europe.

The fact that Albania was already within the orbit of the Berlin-Rome axis certainly did not save her from attack. On the contrary, it made her the kind of easy victim which the fascist powers needed to demonstrate that they have been neither cowed nor intimidated by London and Paris.

Over a period of several months, Mussolini has sought to bulldoze the French into making far-reaching concessions in Tunisia, Djibouti and elsewhere. His failure has been complete. Premier Daladier refused to give way to threats and blustering and announced that not one inch of French territory would be ceded to Italy. Mussolini, in turn, realized that a frontal attack on France or the French empire would lead to a war from which Italy could hardly emerge victorious.

Thwarted in north and east Africa, the Italian dictator has followed the line of least resistance by invading Albania, surrounding this cheap and cowardly gesture with the trappings of war. For he knew that neither Great Britain nor France nor any other nation would or could lift a finger to aid his victim. The attack on Albania was intended to assuage his pride, which had been wounded by the long succession of German triumphs with no parallel triumphs secured by Italy, and to serve notice on Italy's rivals and their satellites that Italy is still on the map.

His action also suits Hitler, who may have been instrumental in instigating it. The violent blows struck at the helpless but courageous Albanians may serve as a warning to Greece, Yugoslavia and other small nations that while Paris and London talk, Rome and Berlin act.

Mussolini's move, therefore, is partially designed to demonstrate to these small nations that it is dangerous to incur the hostility of the totalitarian states. In that way the efforts of the British and French governments to create an antiaggression bloc may be handicapped by the refusal of the nations in the path of Hitler and Mussolini to co-operate with the democratic powers. Thus the destruction of Albania's independence, for 12 years more apparent than real, is less important than the deliberately violent manner in which it was brought about.

Trade With Manchukuo

Nothing is more difficult than to determine the reasons for year-to-year fluctuations in the value of trade between countries. That fact is strikingly emphasized by the very different conclusions which Senator Nye and Secretary Hull have drawn from their study of our export trade with Manchukuo.

Because our sales to that country have risen rapidly during the last few years, reaching a record high figure in 1938. Senator Nye infers that the Department of State was somewhat rash in accusing Japan of closing the open door to American trade in that area and of discriminating against American business.

In reply to this criticism, Secretary Hull indicates how misleading it would be to rely upon trade figures as a clew to what is happening within Manchukuo. The doctrine of the open door implies that American enterprise will have full equality of opportunity to operate within the country. Instead, the Department of State says that the Japanese have taken steps to discriminate against American concerns operating in the puppet state, with the result that many of them have had to withdraw.

The benefits to American exporting concerns resulting from preparations for Japanese military operations in Manchuria are no compensation for the loss of future developmental opportunities for American capital within the country. Furthermore, buying for military purposes provides only temporary and highly uncertain benefits for American trade. When these abnormal demands for our goods are satisfied, there is every reason to suppose that buying will decline.

Indeed Japan's control over Manchukuo's foreign trade makes it virtually certain that American exports will be displaced by Japanese goods whenever that is possible. The Department of State is, therefore, properly concerned over what it calls the "long-swing" as contrasted with "the short-swing effects" of Japanese control in this potentially rich area.

Conflicting Objectives

During the debate on the deficiency relief bill a number of Senators who favor raising the appropriation to the $150,000,000 requested by the President made it clear that they regard the WPA as a pump-priming agency as well as a relief organization. For example, Senator Pepper believes that any reduction in the amount of Federal expenditures would have an adverse effect upon the national economy. And Senator Mead thinks that the proposed lowering of the WPA appropriation is a "tragic gesture" that would "augment the drive for a mistaken economy and result once again in disastrous deflation."

For those legislators who reason in such fashion, it is immaterial whether the WPA really needs an additional $150,000,000 or can manage to get along with a lesser sum. From their viewpoint, the more relief agencies spend, the better it will be for business and the country.

If the WPA had been regarded from the beginning solely as an instrumentality for taking care of the needy, it would have been organized on a more economical basis and no opportunity would have been lost to find openings for beneficiaries in private employment. But it has always served a dual purpose—that of making work for the idle and also affording a stimulus to business. In this confusion of objectives lies one of the chief reasons for its failure.

Senator Pepper seems to think that every WPA worker dropped from the rolls means a loss of buying power and hence a loss of custom for private business. Moreover, he is convinced that private industry is incapable of providing employment for millions of the idle whose ranks are being daily swollen by the introduction of labor-saving devices in industrial processes.

To the Senator from Florida and those who share his views the fact that we still have an acute unemployment problem after spending many billions of dollars to relieve distress is not a reflection upon the Administration's relief policies. On the contrary, they conclude that too little rather than too much has been spent. So they favor a scale of spending that would provide Government work for all instead of only a part of the surplus labor army.

Senators who hold such opinions are naturally uninfluenced by the arguments of colleagues who believe that the road to recovery and a solution of the unemployment problem lies in retrenchment, budget balancing and a consequent revival of business confidence. They are seldom willing to consider the ultimately disastrous consequences of long-continued deficit financing. But they should be able to realize that confusion of pump-priming and relief is also disastrous from the viewpoint of the unemployed. What jobless men need is temporary aid plus training for a resumption of private employment—not the prospect of continued support from the Government. So long as the pump-priming aim is retained, there will be little incentive for the WPA to devise ways and means of returning its employes to private jobs at the earliest practicable moment.

Sulfanilamide Again

It is much too early for generalization, but if all its promises become realities this marvelous new drug, sulfanilamide, may yet prove a discovery second in importance only to that of the bacterial origin of infectious disease.

This wonderful newcomer to the materia medica and its derivatives have proved their efficacy in the treatment of one germ disease after another—pneumonia, gonorrhea, erysipelas, malaria, sundry forms of streptococcus infection, gas bacillus infection and meningitis. Now comes a report from Baltimore that a compound of sulfanilamide and fat from coconut oil has arrested the development of tuberculosis in guinea pigs.

While the researchers who made this report were careful to state that their findings up to now do not permit any conclusions "concerning the treatment of diseases in man" the hopeful implications are inescapable. Nor do these implications involve merely tuberculosis, which, despite all progress in prevention, remains one of the four great scourges of humankind. There is also the ancient and terrible disease of leprosy, the bacillus of which, like that of tuberculosis, is sheltered beneath an armor of wax. Tests, it appears, have shown that the new compound is somehow capable of penetrating this hitherto impervious armor.

Perhaps the most wonderful thing is that nobody yet seems sure of just how sulfanilamide works to perform its miracles. The mystery surrounding its properties, and the cyanosis that it induces in most patients to whom it is administered, have caused many to regard it with much apprehension. Many, too, are still unaware that it was not the sulfanilamide but diethylene glycol, which had been used as a solvent, that caused the deaths of 73 persons in the notorious "Elixir Sulfanilamide" cases about a year and a half ago.

Administered by an inexpert hand, sulfanilamide is capable of causing some damage to tissues. But in the hands of the physician it seems a magic weapon indeed. It has already rescued many from almost certain death and its wonders continue to multiply.

Missing The Point

The citizens, legislators and tax experts who have spent months working out a new revenue system for the District must have been surprised to hear from Representative Collins that their efforts have probably been unnecessary. As chairman of the subcommittee on District appropriations, Mr. Collins offers a formula by which the budget could be balanced without any major revenue legislation. But he seems to be unaware of the chief reason why revision of the local tax laws has been undertaken.

Representative Nichols' subcommittee has not been seeking an expedient that would tide the District over for another year. Such legislation has been enacted too many times recently because Congress has refused to face the larger problem of tax reform. But that would be no excuse for another evasion of responsibility. It is a modern revenue system, as well as additional revenue, which is so urgently needed here.

Mr. Collins' plan is simply to enact once more an exorbitant real estate and personal property tax. That expedient has been used so many times in the past that home owners bear a disproportionate part of the burden of financing the local government. One of the primary objectives of the new tax program is to transfer part of this obligation to other groups who are not now contributing their share. Another reason for the change, of course, is to remove the inequitable and unenforceable tax on intangibles.

It is nearly always possible to load a heavier burden upon a few groups already overtaxed. But the cut which the Collins subcommittee made in the local appropriation bill certainly cannot be regarded as justification for further pursuit of that policy here. The need is for a tax program that will distribute the burden equitably and supply the District with ample revenue for a number of years.

There should be frank recognition of the fact that no combination of levies will produce the exact amount of money needed by the District every year. That, however, is not an argument against a balanced tax structure. It simply means that the levies adopted by Congress should be made flexible enough to keep the District out of debt without piling up surplus funds. Congress has previously recognized this principle by requiring the District Commissioners to adjust the real estate levy so as to maintain a balanced budget. If the income tax is adopted, its operation could be made similarly flexible.

The trimming of the local budget should have no effect, therefore, upon the progress of the proposed tax bill. And, of course, it in no way minimizes the desirability of the Overton bill to fix the fiscal relationship between the Federal and District governments. With a sound fiscal formula and a modern revenue system in effect, tax rates could be properly adjusted to the figure necessary to keep Washington on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Restraint

From the Detroit News.

"The land is thickly populated and its resources are not great. With the exception of tracts that may be developed by afforestation, the remaining territory is already under cultivation and cannot be extended, though better irrigation may improve the yield of parts of it.

"The mineral wealth of the country, though not wholly ascertained, must be considered small; this is especially true of minerals which should be extracted in large quantities and are most required for modern industry. The climate is excellent for living, but not so good for producing. The rivers are an irregular force, and the sea is not always generous and friendly."

It sounds as if a new Caesar were working himself up to the point of wanting more land. In fact, it is Dr. Oliviera Salazar, the quasi-dictator of Portugal, describing Portugal. We offer it only as the month's high in restrained patriotism. In but one respect does it hold to the familiar California pattern for boosting the local scene. It makes no mention of the great Lisbon earthquake.

Her face may be her fortune, but back of it is nothing but frozen assets.

The greatest objection we have to work is that it consumes so much time.

The Sumners Resolution

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: No doubt many will agree, as stated in your editorial of today entitled "Mr. Sumners Steps In," that the introduction of his District suffrage amendment to the Constitution "becomes an important milestone in the movement to secure fair play for this disfranchised community" and that it "ought to stimulate rather than retard the reorganization movement led by Representative Kennedy." But, in view of your known opposition to any home-rule provisions in the reorganization bill, it is difficult to see how you can support your statement that "the two measures are complementary."

I do not believe, and I doubt if you believe, that an American statesman of the high caliber possessed by Judge Sumners would lend his name to a proposal under which Congress could or would delegate any or all of its legislative power over the District to a local Legislature if the members of such Legislature are to be Presidential appointees rather than duly elected representatives of the people of the District.

There does not, therefore, seem to be that necessary meeting of the minds between the Sumners suffrage proposal and your idea as to the trend the so-called Kennedy reorganization movement should take to make them complementary. The only way the reorganization proposal can and should be complementary to the Sumners suffrage proposal is for the former to provide the machinery whereby the principles of the latter may be carried out.

I do not hesitate to predict that, if a new organic act for the District is passed without any suffrage provisions, it would not only be a defeat for the local suffrage movement at the moment, but would seriously retard, if not completely block, for this generation, at least, the movement for national representation as well, including the more recent Sumners proposal. For certainly, if Congress is unwilling to give the people of the District the meager political recognition involved in municipal self-government, it is obvious that it would be even less willing to grant these same people the more dignified political recognition in the national sphere.

And those who wish political recognition of any sort within the reasonably near future had better get behind the movement for the election by the people of the District of the members of the governing body proposed in the Griffenhagen plan, or forever hold their peace. Don't put off until tomorrow what you can do today, for tomorrow will be too late. WILBUR S. FINCH,

Dr. William H. Park

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A truly great soldier of the common good has fallen in the passing in New York of Dr. William H. Park. With fine courage he originated, adapted and proved out many of the highly effective health measures now in use throughout the country.

Now when the press generally is crammed with the doings of the world's foremost killers it is fitting to reflect upon the career of one who strove that men and women and little children might live.

Hundreds in scientific Washington who admired the brilliance of his mind and loved the modest gentleness of his character will pay tribute to Dr. Park.

Origin Of 'The Star-Spangled Banner'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your supplement which carries "The Star-Spangled Banner" and a story of how the poem came to be written, is opportune and interesting. However, there is another account of the event which greatly varies from the one you have published. I refer to an account in the book "Early Days in Washington," by E. Somervell Mackall, published in 1890. In his chapter on "The Star-Spangled Banner" Mackall quotes from a "History of Prince Georges County," and this is the story told:

Dr. Beanes, uncle of Francis Scott Key, was dining some convivial souls at his residence in Upper Marlboro when they were annoyed by stragglers from the British army. They sallied forth and caused the arrest of the red coats. One of the latter escaped and reported to a commanding officer in camp five miles distant. A squad was sent to Upper Marlboro and Dr. Beanes and his friends were placed under arrest. As part punishment the doctor, half-clad, was compelled to ride a horse bareback to Benedict, where the British fleet was anchored in the Patuxent.

A messenger was sent to Georgetown, and notified Mr. Key of his uncle's plight. Obtaining the President's permission, Key rode to Baltimore, and chartering a small vessel, sailed to the mouth of the Patuxent, where the fleet had now arrived.

He went on board the flagship, which continued with other vessels on to Baltimore. Key learned that his uncle had been sentenced to death by hanging. He was able to prove that Dr. Beanes had been of service to several British subjects, and the sentence was commuted to imprisonment, the term to be determined later. Key was then told that he must remain on board that night as important events were pending. The night was spent by him, pacing the deck of the warship while Fort McHenry was being shelled. He was released in the morning, but Dr. Beanes was taken to Halifax, where he remained in jail a year and a half.

Key immediately returned to Georgetown. At the first meeting of the Georgetown Glee Club, of which he was a member, he told of his thrilling experience. Somebody suggested that he tell the story in verse and Key agreed to do so. At the next meeting, a month later, he read "The Star-Spangled Banner" "amid great applause." It was then sung by the Glee Club to "the music of an old Lutheran hymn."

Anyone interested in this subject would do well to read the chapter in Mackall's book which treats of the episode. If the book is obtained from the District Library it must be noted that certain pages have been transposed in the binding. After reading the first page of the chapter one must turn back, not forward for the conclusion.

The account taken from the Prince Georges history seems to be more probable than the other version. When one bears in mind that Key had spent a night of terror, following several days of worry and long travel on horseback, then by vessel, it is difficult to believe that upon coming ashore he could pen such heroic verses, even if he had worked on them during the night, which is not likely.

It might prove illuminating if readers of The Post who have knowledge of the subject would lend aid in clearing this uncertainty. Perhaps a resident of Upper Marlboro has a copy of that Prince Georges' history referred to by Mackall. C. H. WETMORE.

Social Security For Schools

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Bringing private and sectarian colleges and schools and even churches and their lobbies within the social security act is not taxation of churches. It is to some extent regulatory. It is to the advantage of these organizations. They receive aid in the way of no taxation and favor under the income tax law.

True, rabbis, ministers and priests are taken care of in illness and old age. They are partners in the system. But how about the employes of churches and schools—janitors, professors, stenographers and laborers? They are unorganized. They have no security of tenure. They are hired at minimum wages.

They are hired and fired at a moment's notice and at the whim of some petty boss. When fired they and their families take to public relief or secure temporary assistance from private agencies. They are like casual workers. They are afraid to organize lest they be fired. They should be protected by Social Security. They are citizens and should have protection of their Government. Why do they not receive that protection? PEDRO UNIVERO.

"Not Just A Favored Few"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I be permitted to defend myself against the remarks of Beverly Roberts on my attitude on the war-tax profits bill?

My remarks were not made against the rich. Bless their souls, I hope to be one of them some day. Nor do I find where I stated they would be exempt from service in time of war.

Dorothy Thompson's type of propaganda was the cause of my protest. I agree with Miss Thompson that Senator Bone's bill is not good. I can't imagine why, in time of war, there should be any profits to tax.

I can't understand why, in time of war, there should be any necessity or justification for laboring man or millionaire to make a profit.

I can't understand why every man, woman, child, horse, cow and blade of grass isn't drafted to serve the country until peace is restored.

I can't understand why some of the brains of this country can't figure out a way so that when war comes we all share the hardships, and not just a favored few.

Relief And Politics

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In regard to the Gallup Poll in your paper of April 5, I wish to state that all the underdogs got the impression they would starve if Roosevelt were not elected; so they elected him, but starved anyway. Likewise, those on relief were told they would lose their jobs if they did not vote the same way; so they did, and many of them lost their jobs also.

It should be against the law to purchase votes at any time or in any way; that should be a fraud, and I think at this time is a fraud.

Relief should be turned back to the States, where it belongs, and not employed as a "steamroller" to elect Presidential candidates to office, since in that way anyone can be elected, which is very unfair to the people. W. W. GARDNER.

The Post Impressionist

Sightseer

THE OLD MAN stood at the corner of Twelfth and E streets, tapping on the curb with his cane. There was a mist falling and Washington motorists were hurrying homeward, in the impatient way that they have when there is a threat of rain.

You know how the mist stills things. You know how it seems to make time slow a little, make each horn-blast seem less like a warning and more like a lasting and importunate demand. Well, that is the way it was when the old man stood on the corner and the mist fell in the early spring night.

I was standing in a drugstore doorway, smoking a cigarette and wondering when a bus would come along to take me home. Idly, I watched the old man, watched him tap his cane in the mist, tap it futilely against the hushed and Judgment Day blare.

The man was little and old but he was obviously out for fun. There was eagerness in every line of his frame; the frayed velvet collar of his Chesterfield was brushed, his carefully pressed trousers hung neatly above shoes whose shiny black was being dimmed by the mist.

With a kind of slow ticking of the clock, with a pendulum-like measure of eternity, the traffic lights registered their deliberate red and green. Red and green. Red, green. Red, green. The old man tapped, ventured into the street, was pushed back each time by imperious honks, by the death-laden whoosh of passing vehicles, geared fast into high and in a hurry.

When you are a little bit more than young, you begin to understand that good times are not an enduring part of one's heritage, that sometimes they have to be fought for. I saw that that was what the old man was doing and I went to help him win his fight.

"If you would be so good, sir," the old man said when I took his arm. I took him across the street and asked him where he wanted to go.

He didn't answer right away. Instead, as I walked along with him, we chatted about this and that.

"I came here yesterday with my daughter," he told me. "With my daughter and my three grandchildren. We drove here from Iowa." He mentioned a town; I had never heard of it.

"But," he went on, "the young people went to see the sights. They've never been here before, you see. I was here once, a long time ago," he said dreamily.

"Yes," he continued, "I was here last just after the War—the Civil War, I mean—we were on our honeymoon. Washington looked a lot different then.

"There was a different sound in the air; there was a different feeling, somehow. I don't know just how to explain it.

"But things went along slowly, with a different rhythm, a slower beat."

"They were dancing the waltz, then, not swing-music," I suggested.

"Yes, that is the way it was—Washington sounded slow-like—and carefree. And the air felt more the way it does in the West.

"It is different now. The autos rush past. The drivers blow their horns. Nobody stops now, nobody waits."

I walked along with the old man for a while. We went by The Post, where the presses were humming out the early edition. At the corner the old man said, "Well, that's the Willard. I remember that hotel." I took him to an F street theater.

He bought his ticket and then turned toward me. "Thanks very much," he said. "I like to go in and listen." The old man was blind. HETER O'DOX.

District Relief

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial dealing with the resignation of Miss Alice Hill and her aide, May O. Hankings, from the Public Assistance Division poses before the entire city a question of first magnitude, a question which simply can no longer be evaded.

For several years now the Public Assistance Division has been wrestling with the impossible task of providing for an ever-increasing number of unemployed with utterly inadequate and constantly decreasing appropriations. In response to the cry of many civic-minded groups, including the District Communist Party, who exposed the barbarous treatment of the unemployed in the District and its effect in increasing crime and sickness, Congress ordered Mr. Burdette Lewis to investigate the entire relief situation in our city. However, when the Lewis investigation established the fact that there are 50,000 unemployed in the District, 30,000 of whom are totally unprovided for, it now appears that the sub-committee on appropriations decided to ignore the recommendations of its own sub-committee.

If a fleet of enemy bombers would swoop down upon our city and kill and maim thousands of our citizens, the entire country and even our complacent Congressmen would be aroused as to the plight of the citizens in their Nation's Capital. But when heartless reactionaries doom to wretched existence thousands of our unemployed citizens, then the matter is being handled by our legislators and city fathers as a mere matter of organizational routine.

I think it high time that a stop be put to exploitation of our voteless, inarticulate citizenry. I think it high time the powers that be in the District cease treating the victims of a broken-down capitalist system as base criminals and fall in step with the Federal Administration and with enlightened communities all over the country who consider their responsibilities to the unemployed as paramount to any other social problem, yes, even more important than constantly increasing the police force or care for the cherry blossoms.

The Once Over

The Old Locomotive Whistle

When the locomotive whistle
Used to reach me in the night,
It once seemed to be a symbol
Of all progress swift and bright;
Strength, stability and power
Seemed to leave a lasting mark
When the engine blew the whistle
And the train pulled through the dark.

II

When I heard the distant huffing
Of a locomotive I
Thought of wealth and soaring profits
And of industry "in high;"
There was then no "railroad problem,"
And the far-off clanging bell
Of an iron horse was something
To convey that all was well.

III

Then I felt the road was thriving,
And each blazing coach proclaimed
That the line was in the money
And was very widely famed;
There was something fine and stirring
In a train's strange far-off roar,
And I thought, "Well, there is something
That will prosper more and more."

IV.

Now I hear the engine screaming,
And a new thought it conveys—
(One that no one ever thought of
In the so-called good old days;)
"Just another bankrupt system,"
Is the message that I get.

V

Now the whistle's note is plaintive
And each toot's a sort of yelp,
Sent across the fields for succor,
Sent across the land for help;
And the picture once so stirring
Now is dull and dark and drab;
Casey Jones I now can picture
Sobbing in his engine cab.

VI

Now the picture seems so shabby—
Gone the romance and the spell;
Like the gong that marks a knockout
Is the locomotive bell;
Once the clanging deeply stirred me,
And it all seemed very sweet—
Now I only see a railroad
That cannot make both ends meet.

VII

When I hear the distant grunting
Of a train across the hills,
All it now conveys is merely
Just a fight to meet the bills;
Once I knew the engineer found
Every trip a lot of sport;
Now he knows his destination
May be in the bankrupt's court.

VIII

Once the brakeman seemed light-hearted
And a man not quickly vex'd;
Now I seem to hear him asking,
"What the hell will happen next?"
Once the flagman took his flag and Went to guard the big train's rear;
Now I fancy that he wonders

L'Envoi

Ah, those days when I could listen
To the big steam engine's call,
And see romance, joy and progress
Linked securely, one and all!
Gone they are, and, at the whistle,
These cold nights when I'm in bed,
I just sigh and say, "Another

40 of 63 Salaries More Than $200,000 Paid in Movies

By the Associated Press.

The Treasury gave Congress a peek at 1937 salaries yesterday revealing that the big money is in the movies.

Top figure for the year was $1,161,753, paid Louis B. Mayer by Loew's, Inc., to which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corporation added $134,750 for his services as vice president.

The list showed 63 salaries greater than $200,000, of which 40 were paid in motion picture companies.

J. Robert Rubin, vice president of Loew's, Inc., received $851,123, and N. M. Schenck, president of the company, drew $489,602. Greta Garbo's compensation for the year was $472,000, Marlene Dietrich's $370,000, Joan Crawford's $351,538, and Frederic March's $334,687.

'Yellow Light' Policy

By Livingston Hartley

How It Works Against War

THE PRESIDENT and Secretary Hull have repeatedly stressed how another great war abroad must damage us even though we escape involvement. More ominous is the Gallup Poll finding of January 28 that no less than 57 per cent of our people now believe we could not escape involvement. And equally significant is the warning of Mr. Hoover, in a political speech on February 2 attacking the Administration's foreign policy, that popular indignation over wholesale air attacks on European cities might well sweep America into the conflict. Few who have observed the rising tide of American feeling against the Hitler regime in recent months would disagree with Mr. Hoover here.

Since we have no political commitments outside this hemisphere, the whole field of action is open to us to protect our stake in peace beyond the Atlantic. This may be divided into three alternative lines of policy.

There are some who favor taking a definite stand on this issue and showing a clear red traffic light to the warmakers. From a purely theoretical standpoint, a case can be made for such a policy. Due to the great potential strength and the vast resources of the United States, it can be argued that it would be far more likely than not to assure peace at the cheap cost of action confined to words and paper.

Is Isolationism Making For War?

BUT FROM a practical point of view, this policy appears out of the question. Great as is our stake in European peace, it is not as great as the stake of the European powers, and we cannot reasonably be expected to incur risks voluntarily for its preservation as far-reaching as those they are compelled to face. And there is little likelihood that American public opinion would be willing to adopt the overseas commitments firm pursuit of this course would entail.

The extremists of the opposite camp would show a green traffic light to the warmakers, by passing laws which would assure them that the United States will place no obstacle in their path whatever they might do.

This policy is tempting to some of our people, since it appears to set up legal bulwarks around the peace of the United States. But it automatically promotes aggression abroad by clearing the path as far as the United States is concerned, and, by playing into the hands of the warmakers, makes it more probable that Europe will be engulfed in war. For this reason, unless a majority of our people are wrong and Mr. Hoover's warning has no valid foundation, this policy gives America a decisive push along the road to war.

Pursuit of this policy under present world conditions tends directly to smear the hands of its sponsors in blood. And we can have no assurance, according to the views of a cross-section of public opinion and the judgment of many of those well qualified to judge, that the blood will not be American as well as European.

How Our Present Policy Aids Peace

OUR NEUTRALITY legislation has so far followed this green light policy in relation to export of arms and airplanes to belligerents. It has aided the well-armed aggressors abroad to achieve their aims through force by denying such exports to the less militarized nations who stand in their path. Should this part of the 1937 neutrality act be left unchanged by Congress now, it will both make war abroad more probable and assist Hitler to dominate Europe, and perhaps the eastern Atlantic, by reducing the defensive capacity of Britain and France.

FINALLY THERE is the yellow traffic light policy, which our Government has developed more and more in these recent darkening years. This implies no commitments abroad of any kind, maintaining entire freedom of action for the future. It merely sets up a warning to the warmakers that if they cross the road which divides peace from war the American traffic light might change color. It makes the United States a "question mark" in world affairs, a factor upon the quiescence of which no aggressive government can count, and which, because of our great power, must exert a restraining influence upon the most warlike dictator.

Were the United States only another Italy, this policy would have little effect. But since the United States stands pre-eminent in intrinsic national power, since it is so well endowed with the economic resources the European powers must obtain from outside to wage an extended war, and since the dictators know that the United States could, under most conditions, decide again the issue as it did in 1918, this policy can function as a sturdy bulwark of peace.

Even in its psychological influence, it is a powerful deterrent to war. The series of pronouncements the President and Secretary Hull have made, setting forth America's belief in peace, law and decency and her opposition to the use of force, send their influence far and wide. In the overseas democracies they encourage those who favor a firmer stand to halt aggression. In Germany they are reported on good authority to be read by Hitler in full. Their meaning is brought home to the German people by the violent campaign of the controlled Nazi press against the United States.

U. S.-German Hostility A Deterrent To War

HERE WE FIND the strange paradox that the international friction betwen the United States and Nazi Germany is more of a contribution than a danger to peace. Marked by mutual recriminations and withdrawal of ambassadors, it makes known to the German people the innate antagonism of powerful America, and makes them more loathe than they otherwise would be to follow their Fuehrer into another World War.

THE MORE this psychological pressure for peace can be supplemented by concrete measures to make successful aggression abroad more difficult, the more effective a deterrent to war it will be. Measures which build up the resisting power of the Atlantic sea powers while peace yet reigns, such as selling them American airplanes, are a direct contribution to this end. And measures which would enhance their resisting power during war are a most practical and valuable means of making war less likely.

Here is where provident neutrality policy can do so much to insure that our yellow traffic light will never be forced by circumstances we cannot control to turn stark red in the midst of overseas hostilities, to insure that the history of 1914 to 1917 will not be repeated.

We have an opportunity now to do a great deal to achieve this purpose by one simple change in our neutrality law. We can place arms and airplanes on "a cash and carry" basis, the same basis on which the President is now empowered to place oil, steel and other products as essential as armaments for war, as is proposed in the Pittman bill.

Turning Scales For Peace

THIS CANNOT re-create the neutrality dangers of 1914 and 1917 because such exports would neither be American property nor be carried abroad in American ships, and their sale would take place within our borders, out of reach of belligerent intervention. But it would contribute so directly to the resisting power of the European nations which seek to block aggression as to reduce materially the probability that the warmakers will subject them to assault.

In the critical condition of Europe today, such a development of our yellow traffic light policy may turn the scale for peace. And that, we must admit, is the only sure and certain safeguard of the peace of America.

Speelman Heads G.P.O. Insurance

Martin R. Speelman of the purchasing office of the Government Printing Office, has been elected president of the G. P. O. Group Life Insurance Association for the coming year it was announced yesterday. Other officers chosen were: Vice president, Thurston C. Brown, delivery section; secretary-treasurer, Ernest C. Mellor, chief clerk's office; directors, Ruby C. Finley, T. Homer Hall, Ernest W. Pinn and John H. McLean.

The officers were elected at a dinner in Harding Hall, where addresses were made by A. E. Giegengack, the public printer, and by Former Gov. E. Lee Trinkle of Virginia.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Peace in Our Own Time

DURING THE HEARINGS this week before the Foreign Relations Committee the defenders of the existing neutrality legislation gave the impression that they have given up all hope of averting a world war. Let us hope that this is a false impression. But the fact is that they are talking as if they regarded war as inevitable, as if nothing could be done, as if nothing should be done, to prevent war. They talk like men who are hopeless, fatalistic, passive and resigned before as stupendous and horrible a catastrophe as ever threatened the world.

There is no doubt that Senators Borah, Johnson, Clark and Nye desire peace. But in the face of a situation which threatens to destroy peace throughout the world, they are in effect saying that they think nothing can be done and that, insofar as they can obstruct it, nothing shall even be attempted which could avert the tragedy. They are brave, honorable and sincere men. But the fact is that not one of them has as yet suggested a single constructive idea, a single principle, any policy, any program, for doing anything now to prevent the outbreak of a world war.

War Unavoidable; Is That U. S. Stand?

CAN IT BE that they really feel they represent the will of the American people, or that they are protecting the interests of the American people, when they put the world on notice that they think war unavoidable, when they declare that they will tie the hands of the President if he tries by the means within his power to prevent war? Do they intend to insist that this nation must sit still and that it can do nothing until hell breaks loose, except try to decide whether the flames of hell will be hotter in one corner of hell than in another?

If this is not what they think, if they care enough about peace to do something to preserve it, if they do not trust the President of the United States to conduct the foreign policy of this Nation, then the very least they can do is to offer some policy of their own which is intended to prevent war. They are denying to the President his constitutional authority and constitutional responsibility in the conduct of foreign relations. If they think that is justifiable, proper, and necessary, though it subverts the American constitutional practice since the foundation of the Republic, then to prove their case they should come forward with a constructive policy of their own. They should say what they would do to prevent a world war. Failing that, they should confess they do not know how to prevent war, or that they have no hope of preventing it, or that they will not try to prevent it.

This is the crucial question from which American opinion cannot afford to let itself be diverted. Senator Borah and his associates talk as if the issue before Congress were whether the United States will go into or stay out of the next war. That is not the issue. The issue is whether there is or is not going to be another world war.

Two World Wars Involved U. S.

THAT IS THE question before us. The question is whether the power and influence of this Nation can be used now, now before it is too late, to prevent the war, to prevent the hideous consequences of a war, to prevent our having to make the horrible choice which will confront us if war breaks out, the choice which will haunt us as long as it lasts.

For let us have no illusions about it. If there is another world war, it will not be fought in Albania alone or in the Polish Corridor, or in the African desert. It will be fought on every continent and in every ocean and with every weapon of destruction that the ingenuity of man has devised. It may be that Mr. Nye and Mr. Borah can write a law which can keep us out of it. But let them not be too sure.

There have been two world wars since the American Constitution was adopted. The United States has been involved in both of them. Mr. Nye seems only to remember the World War of 1914-1918, and he remembers that we sold munitions to the allies and became entangled in the war, and loaned money which has not been repaid, and lost men and got a wretched peace. But if he would remember the other World War, that of Napoleon, he will recall that in that war we adopted his policy. We had an embargo. We had such a strict embargo that it ruined New England and nearly caused secession. And in spite of the embargo we were drawn into the war, and were invaded and the Capitol in Washington was burned.

It ought, therefore, to be fairly evident to any man that Jefferson's embargo was no more effective against entanglement in a world war than was Wilson's neutrality.

Diplomacy Needed To Prevent Conflict

THERE IS NO guarantee against entanglement in a world war except successful diplomacy which prevents the war. Fire escapes may be necessary. But the important thing is not to have a fire. Life boats are excellent. But it is safer to keep the ship from foundering on the rocks. A bomb-proof shelter is a good thing if you have to be bombed. But it is better to prevent air raids. No one ever prevented fires, shipwrecks and bombardments by devoting his whole attention to fire-escapes, lifeboats and dugouts.

There will be time to decide how we shall protect ourselves if and when a world war breaks out. But there may not be much time left to do all that it lies within our power to do in order that a world war shall not take place. There is some time, however, and we have much power. The decision has not yet been taken. The die is not yet cast. And as we have great authority in the world, great resources and great strength, surely it is the part of prudence and wisdom and elementary common sense to do what we can, soberly, resolutely, calmly and unfledly, to save ourselves from the ordeal of living through another world war. We have gone through that ordeal once in our generation. How shall we answer to our own consciences, what shall we say to the youth of the world who stand in mortal jeopardy; what shall we plead at the bar of history, if we do not do what we can to prevent the horror that hangs over us?

purchase of land at a cost of $125,000 for a naval radio station at Annapolis. It was declared in former hearings that the station at Arlington probably would be transferred to the new site, to clear entrance to the Gravelly Point Airport.

Pay Crisis Averted

Officials of the Federal Social Security Board yesterday announced funds for the administration of the District Unemployment Compensation Board were available, averting a pay crisis.

The Security Board said it was advanced $13,000 to meet the pay roll for the next two weeks and that a similar sum probably would be available for the last two weeks of this month.

Officials declared the pending social security supply bill which raises the maximum limit on administrative expenses of the Federal board from $49,000,000 to $80,000,000 would be acted upon by Congress before the end of the month. The bill has been passed in the House and is awaiting action in the Senate.

161 Measles Cases in District, Parents Warned

Increasing cases of measles yesterday brought a second warning from Health Officer George C. Ruhland to parents to immunize their children immediately. He urged them to call a physician upon detecting symptoms of the common cold, which are very similar to measles.

"It is rather unfortunate that the public holds to the belief that measles are a harmless disease of childhood," he said.

Thus far this month, 161 cases, or an average of 21 cases each day, have been reported to the department. Dr. Ruhland said this does not really represent the actual cases in the city. He asked doctors to report all cases immediately, as is ordered by law.

Ursebet Kol, of Hungary, who worked in Alaska under a grant from the institution, found the varicolored ise and snow. In some cases the color was produced by ice vegetation, and in others by snow fleas who presented a gray-violet appearance. In the same vicinity Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, curator of the division of anthropology of the national museum, continued his collection of skulls and bones in the Aeutian Islands, and reported that he had "paved with substantial facts a good part of a road which previously had been mostly but a trail of speculation," about Asiatic migrations to the American continent.

Va. Spider Catches Fish

A large proportion of the year's work was much nearer home. W. M. Perrygo, of the division of mammals, in Kentucky, collected a number of mice, including a red-backed one. C. R. Aschemeier went to Florida and came back with 28 turtles and 1,862 fish.

In Virginia Leonard P. Schultz observed a spider pick a minnow out of a stream and mount the bank with it, until he caught both of them in a collecting can. This occurred, he reported, in Marsh Run, about 9 miles west of Orange. And T. D. Stewart, of the division of physical anthropology, spent some time last summer 60 miles from Washington excavating and rediscovering the Indian village near Marlboro Point, Stafford County, where Capt. John Smith made the acquaintance of Pocahontas.

Pre-Indian Bones Found

Other scientists spent pleasant months collecting the skulls and skeletons of broad-headed people and long-headed people who preceded the Indians in Platte County, Missouri, southwestern Texas, and in Saskatchewan. John R. Swanton, on the other hand, spent some pleasant weeks in trying to retrace the path taken by the Spanish explorer De Soto in 1539.

It was all done in the spirit that President Roosevelt put into words in a foreword he wrote for this year's report. "We cannot know," he stated," too much about the natural history of this world of ours. We should not be satisfied merely with what we do know."

Neutrality: Pro And Con

By Mark Sullivan

Pittman's Proposal

WHAT AMERICA is doing right now—in the Senate committee hearings and generally—is making up its mind whether, in a war in Europe, we will be of help to Great Britain or to Germany. That is not what we say we are doing. We say we are deciding how best to be neutral. And we mean that. No one is in bad faith. No one is trying any trick. All the same, we are deciding whether we will be of help to Britain or to Germany. We can see this if we look at the existing neutrality law, and then at the changes proposed in it.

The existing neutrality law has several provisions, dealing with different subjects. The principal one is the one dealing with arms. This provision is—I condense: No arms made in America shall be sold to any nation at war, under any conditions. From the moment war is on, no arms shall leave America.

That looks like neutrality. It is neutrality. Before any judge it can be defended as neutrality. Righteously we can raise our eyes to heaven and declare that we treat all nations at war absolutely the same.

Nevertheless, that provision is a help to Germany. It is a detriment to Britain. For it deprives Britain of an advantage she possesses.

Britain has merchant ships and a navy to protect them. In a war, Britain could send ships to America and buy our arms and carry them home, if our law permitted her. But for our existing neutrality law, Britain at war would have access to the enormous supply of arms we could make, the greatest supply any nation could make. But by our neutrality law we deprive Britain of that advantage.

GERMANY, on the other hand, has no merchant ships and no navy that she could use in time of war with Britain. What ships and navy Germany has would be sealed by the British navy the day war is declared. Our neutrality law deprives Germany of nothing.

By our neutrality law, Germany is enabled to fight a Britain confined to what arms Britain can make herself (or get from nations having less scruple than us.) But if we did not have our existing neutrality law, Germany would be obliged to fight a Britain equipped with all the magnificent supply of arms our manufacturers could provide.

(Pause at this point to reflect on the paradox inherent in any neutrality law we can pass. In words, it may be the most neutral law ever penned by the hand of man. But in actuality, it will work to the advantage of one nation or another. There is no such thing as a neutrality law that will bear with absolute equality on every nation at war.)

Consider now the changes proposed to be made in our neutrality law, upon which the Senate committee is at work. I deal here with only one—the one that has a kind of authoritative standing. It is proposed by the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Mr. Pittman, of Nevada. Senator Pittman would change our existing law so as to make it read in effect:

America will sell arms to any nation whatever, provided the purchasing nation pays cash for them and carries them home in her own ships.

THIS LOOKS LIKE a perfect neutrality law. It treats all nations the same. Besides, it tends to keep America in a neutral state of mind. The provision about paying cash prevents any American seller of arms, and America as a whole, from becoming a creditor of a nation at war. Hence it prevents us from having an interest in seeing one nation win. Thus it takes away from us any temptation to join the war in order to help our debtor win.

It looks like a perfect neutrality law in every respect. It seems to treat all nations the same. But consider:

Germany could not come to America and buy our arms. She probably has not the cash, and she certainly has not the ships, or would not have them during a war.

Britain, on the other hand, has the cash and the ships, and the navy to protect the ships. Britain, at war, could rely upon America as an unlimited source of arms.

I have spoken only of the provision of the existing neutrality law that applies to arms. Another provision applies to goods other than arms—to foodstuffs, cotton, steel and the like.

The existing law permits nations at war to buy this kind of goods on the cash-and-carry basis. In this provision of the existing law, Senator Pittman would make no change.

THIS PROVISION, both in the existing law and in the proposed one, would work to the advantage of Britain. For, as in the case of the arms provision, Britain alone would have the ships to take advantage of food and other ordinary goods from America.

In all this, we face the question: As between Britain and Germany, which do we prefer to be of help to? The Roosevelt Administration wishes to be of help to Britain. Most Americans agree.

We can be of help to Britain (and at the same time remain neutral) by saying that any nation at war can buy from us if she pays cash and carries the purchases home in her own ships.

From another point of view, if we wish to be very moral, and take the position that sale of arms is always odious—in that event, we might make a distinction between the two kinds of goods. As to arms, we might say we will not sell to any nation under any circumstances. As to ordinary goods, we might say we will sell to any nation on the cash-and-carry basis.

Mussolini And Albania

IN THE PAST few years both Hitler and Mussolini have won spectacular victories in the foreign field. But Mussolini's triumphs have always been achieved the hard way.

The conquest of Ethiopia, intervention in Spain and now the invasion of Albania ahe involved actual war measures and have cost Italy much blood and treasure. Hitler's victories have been far less expensive. The reoccupation of the Rhineland, the absorption of Austria, the seizure of Czecho-Slovakia and Memel, were brought about through intimidation alone.

In each instance, however, Mussolini unwittingly helped clear the path for his partner. It was Europe's preoccupation with the Ethiopian war that made it possible for Germany to militarize the Rhineland. It was the circumstance that Mussolini was knee-deep in his Spanish adventure that permitted Hitler to destroy the independence of Austria. And it was, in part, the existence of the Berlin-Rome axis that paved the way for Munich and its grim aftermath.

NOW MUSSOLINI apparently has no choice but to serve as the trail blazer for the Third Reich. That is the basic significance of his otherwise inexplicable action in suddenly pouncing on Albania to secure through force what he had already won through political, financial and economic means.

Nothing more clearly demonstrates, than does this wanton attack on a weak and backward nation, how much Mussolini has become the prisoner of the axis.

Albania has been for all intents and purposes an Italian protectorate since 1926. To be sure, by no means all Albanians relished the role assigned to their nation. Again and again the feud spirit which is strong in that country flared up in opposition to a monarch believed to have become Rome's pawn. But this opposition always managed to be put down and Italy's hold on Albania steadily grew.

The roads that were built across the trackless mountains of the little Adriatic state were largely designed by Italian military engineers for Italian military purposes. The harbor works built at Durazzo and other Albanian ports with Italian loans far beyond Albania's capacity to repay, had Italian strategic purposes in the background.

Almost 60 per cent of Albania's meager trade was with Italy and its banking system was basically in Italian hands. Moreover, by the 1927 treaty of alliance, Italy was practically given the right to use Albania as a base of operations in the event of war.

Italian People Dislike The Axis

WHY, THEN, has Mussolini gone to the trouble of brutally underlining the obvious and with so great a flourish seizing what was his already?

The prestige reason cannot be ignored. What Hitler has done, Mussolini must also do. But that cannot be the only reason. No amount of propaganda has been able to hide from the Italian people the fact that Hitler has played Mussolini for a sucker. The Italian people, by and large, are not enthusiastic about the axis.

The axis has enabled the Third Reich to expand to ominous dimensions. Italy has only casualty lists, a bankrupt treasury, tightened belts and vague promises of future gains to show for her efforts. And the fact that a very powerful Germany now adjoins the Brenner and is within striking distance of Trieste and the Adriatic has only added to Italian disquiet.

THE ADDITION of Albania to the Italian empire would have a slight strategic value for Italy. In possession of both sides of the narrow Strait of Otranto Italy would seemigly be in a better position than she is now to control the Adriatic. But yet Albania was already in Mussolini's pocket before the attack on Zog's kingdom began. And with modern long-range artillery and modern bombing planes capable of making that strait a very unhealthy place for an enemy, even if Albania were neutral, the transformation of Durazzo, Valona and other Albanian harbors into Italian ports and naval and seaplane bases should not make any material difference in the situation.

On the other hand, it is doubtful whether Aibania can be made a base for Italian commercial and political penetration of the Balkans. Such penetration would cut athwart the plans of the other member of the axis. Germany already takes a large part of the exports of the Balkan states and supplies them with a considerable percentage of their imports. Germany's economic situation is hardly such that she can afford to turn over those hard-won markets to Italy as a gesture of amity.

Albania Attack An Answer To Britain

THE REAL REASON for the sudden and brutal attack on Albania is to be found elsewhere.

The real reason has much more to do with the needs of the axis than with the direct needs of Italy. Because of the efforts of Great Britain and France to create an anti-aggression combination, Germany finds her plans of further expansion in danger. In the meantime, Italy has run up against formidable French opposition to her plans of dominating the Mediterranean.

For Germany to continue to go forward, in Europe, Hitler must disrupt the slowly developing anti-aggression bloc or at least prevent it from growing. For Italy to make any progress in the achievement of her imperial ambitions, it is necessary, Mussolini feels, to prevent the encirclement of Germany, through whom alone, he believes, Italy can achieve what she is after.

The attack on Albania is thus a warning to Yugoslavia, Greece and other nations not to fall in with the plans of Great Britain and France.

It is also much more than that. It is also a notice to Neville Chamberlain that Mussolini's attitude regarding appeasement is no more co-operative than Hitler's has proved to be.

To appease Hitler, Chamberlain consented to the partition of Czecho-Slovakia. We know what happened.

To appease Mussolini, Chamberlain agreed to the destruction of republican Spain. Republican Spain has now been destroyed. But Italy's troops are still in the Iberian peninsula, and the Italian garrison in Libya has been increased, despite treaty pledges to the contrary. Now, also in defiance of the Anglo-Italian Treaty of 1938, Italy is upsetting the status quo in the Mediterranean.

Senate Defers Vote on Relief Fund Increase After Deadlock

minority, but claim to have gained votes for the higher figure in the last two days. Impartial observers agreed, however, that there was practically no chance of their success against a coalition of Republicans, conservative Democrats and those Administration Senators who have bound themselves to support the committee bill.

The charge of filibuster, first heard Thursday, was freely made yesterday by advocates of the $100,000,000 grant. It was alleged that Pepper and his group are attempting to delay a vote until President Roosevelt returns from Warm Springs. The President is expected in Washington by Monday.

It also was charged that the relief bloc hopes by delay tactics to create an opportunity for exertion of home-State pressure upon wavering Senators. The charge, however, was denied by several members of the relief group.

During the struggle to reach a unanimous consent agreement on a time to vote on Pepper's proposal, McNary, observing he would like to vote "at the earliest possible moment," said, "It is amazing to me that there should be continued delay on the part of those who seem to be anxious for the measure to pass."

Several Want to Speak

Pepper pointed out that several more Senators, including Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota; Bilbo, of Mississippi, and Neely, of West Virginia (Democrats), wish to speak in favor of giving the WPA $150,000,000 to carry it through to July 1. Barkley had earlier protested that "no votes are going to be changed by debate."

Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, floor manager for the $100,000,000 bill, alleged that "those whose hearts are bleeding for those in distress are the ones who are unwilling to have a vote today." He added, "I simply want the responsibility placed where it belongs."

Senator Norris (Independent), Nebraska, appealed for the increased relief appropriation as "a question of humanity." He said he thought "we ought to stop the spending campaign as soon as we can."

In his maiden speech, Senator Downey advocated the "comparatively insignificant" increase of $50,000,000, but warned that "beyond doubt," the country would be plunged into a depression within two or three years. He said that a continued deficit would "imperil every bank and insurance company in the United States."

Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, told reporters he would vote for the Pepper amendment. "I don't want to economize at the expense of other people's wants and necessities," he said. "No one need to talk to me about economy, when there is no sign of economy at Washington except where distressed men and women are asking for food and shelter."

Col. F. C. Harrington, WPA administrator, announced yesterday that 45,529 aliens had been dropped from the WPA rolls, in accordance with Congressional mandate. About 10,000 of these, he said, probably will be eligible for reinstatement later.

Of the number dropped, 68 were in the District, 197 in Maryland and 44 in Virginia. Smallest number of aliens dropped was 6, in North Carolina, while the largest was in Illinois, 9,839.

House Group Set To Start Writing Security Revision

Concluding 48 days of hearings, the House Ways and Means Committee last night announced it would meet Wednesday to prepare a bill calling for revision of the social security act.

Chairman Doughton (Democrat), of North Carolina, expressed hope the bill will be ready for House action by May 1. Important decisions to be made by the committee include:

Whether pay-roll taxes on employes and employers will be increased next year or retained at 1 per cent.

What to do about the Townsend and General Welfare Association old-age pension proposals.

8 Hurt in Crash Of 2 Trolleys On Capitol Hill

Runaway Work Car Strikes Streamliner; Taxi Sideswiped

Out of control and racing wildly down Capitol Hill, a street car yesterday rammed a second trolley, injured eight passengers and shook up 25 others.

Driven back 30 feet by the impact, the second street car, a streamliner, sideswiped a taxicab, and only quick action by a student motorman averted further crashes.

A workcar, running uphill on steep-graded Independence avenue southeast, stalled, and when the air brakes apparently failed, the car started to roll backwards downhill. William G. Matthews, 29, of 910 Rhode Island avenue northeast, operator, raced to the rear of the car and attempted to apply the hand brakes, but he was too late to avoid the smash-up.

Taxi Driver Unhurt

The streamliner struck a taxicab driven by Carl H. Doney, 31, of 914 F street northeast, who escaped unhurt. A student motorman, J. P. Conley, riding in the streamliner, saw the impending crash, dashed to the back of the trolley and warned motorists to clear the track.

The injured included Matthews, driver of the work-car, who suffered face lacerations and shock; Alfred G. Pearson, 57, of 146 Bryant street northwest, lacerations and shock; William C. Truesdell, 45, of 111 B street southeast, sprained back and elbow; Mrs. A. K. Haynes, 42, of 540 Florida avenue northwest, shock and injured arm; Daisy E. Naylor, 62, of 524 Ninth street northeast, shock; Mrs. Thomas W. Gilmer, 71, of 545 Florida avenue northwest, chest injuries; Mrs. J. J. Waters, 53, of 5614 Third place northwest, fractured rib.

Company Investigates

Amelia Jones, 322 Fifth street southeast, was treated at home for shock. The others were taken to Casualty and Providence hospitals by passing motorists.

Otho Rowland, 38, of 20 Gallatin street northwest, operator of the streamliner, escaped injury.

A Capital Transit official said the accident "apparently" had been caused by brake trouble and added that an investigation was being made.

Meeting to Honor Tuskegee Founder

A mass meeting to honor Booker T. Washington, and celebrate his founding of the Tuskegee Institute, will be held at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the Vermont Avenue Baptist Church, Vermont avenue near Q street northwest.

Representative Routzohn (Republican), of Ohio, and Dr. G. Lake Imes, of Lincoln University, will be the speakers. John A. Lankford, chariman of the program committee, will preside.

The Tuskegee Chorus, led by Mrs. Emily V. Green, will sing the Tuskegee song. The program has been arranged by the Washington Tuskegee Club.

Anthropological Group Will Gather Tuesday

Members of the Catholic Anthropological Conference will hold their fourteenth meeting, starting at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday in the assembly room of McMahon Hall, Catholic University. Papers will be presented during the morning session by Dr. Regina Flannery Herzfeld and Dr. Martin R. O. McGuire, of Catholic University, and in the afternoon session by Dr. Julius Lips, of Howard University, and Dr. John M. Cooper, of Catholic University.

Navy Musician Cited By Swanson as Hero

Secretary Swanson yesterday commended Melvin Howard Walker, naval musician, for his "prompt and courteous action" in saving a woman from drowning last June 21 at Ocean View, Va.

The citation said Walker swam to her rescue about 150 yards from the Chesapeake Bay shore and brought her ashore. The woman was not identified. Howard, attached to the aircraft carrier Enterprise, gave his home as Norfolk, Va.

Dr. Bowman to Speak On 'Conquering Death'

At 9 and 11 a. m. services of the Church of the Brethren, Dr. Warren D. Bowman will speak on "Conquering Death." These services will be identical.

At 8 p. m. the pastor will preach on "The Lost Opportunity." At the close of the evening service the rite of baptism will be administered to a number of applicants.

Rep. Voorhis to Speak At Jefferson Rites

Huguenot Societies To Meet Here April 15

The Federation of Huguenot Societies in America will hold its biennial meeting April 15 at the Mayflower, it was announced yesterday. The business meeting, at 10 a. m., and luncheon will follow a reception Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Frank B. Steele, local society president.

Legislator to Speak

Representative Louis Ludlow, of Indiana, will speak Wednesday at the Ohio Society meeting in the Raleigh Hotel. The meeting will begin at 8:30 p. m. Officers will be elected.

Newsman Braves Fire to Save Two in Crash; Ensign Dies

Paper Route Agent Pulls Naval Academy Graduate and Friend From Wrecked Car; Third Occupant Doomed by Jammed Door

Hugh Ostermeyer, of Hall's Station, Md., Washington Post route agent, yesterday saved two former Naval Academy classmates when their automobile crashed into a pole and caught fire in front of his home. A third member of the party died.

Ostermeyer, who was leaving for work as the accident occurred, smashed in the front windshield and dragged to safety Jack A. Trethewey, 23, driver, of 4010 Calvert street northwest, and Ensign Alvin Francis Sbisa, 22, of the U. S. S. Pennsylvania. Ensign Richard B. Fincher, 24, also of the Pennsylvania, perished as the blaze thwarted rescue efforts.

Fear Neck Fracture

At Casualty Hospital, Tretheway, who resigned from the Naval Academy and is now employed by an oil company here, was feared to have suffered a fracture of the neck. Ensign Sbisa was confined at the Naval Hospital with back and head injuries.

Ostermeyer gave an eye-witness account of the fatal crash, which occurred on a dangerous turn.

"I heard the hum of the motor," he said. "I knew the road was wet from the rain and I was afraid something would happen.

"As the car hit the turn it swerved to the left side of the road, and when the driver cut back it skidded sideways, crashed into a pole and overturned on its right side.

"I started to run toward the scene when I heard the tires screaming."

Door Jammed Shut

"Earl Tenney, who helps me on my route, came running from the other direction and we reached the car at the same time. We heard the driver calling for someone to open the door, but it was jammed shut. I kicked in the windshield and helped the driver to crawl through. The fellow in the middle (Sbisa) seemed to be in a daze. I didn't see the third man until after getting the first two out.

"The flames were burning fast, probably from a short circuit in the battery connections. The third man had his arm caught in the door and we couldn't pull him out. He seemed lifeless. Finally, we righted the car, and Tenney got an ax. The driver chopped the lock off the door, but it still wouldn't open. By that time, the flames were so hot, we couldn't do anything more."

While at the Naval Academy, Fincher was center on the 1936 and 1937 varsity football teams and Sbisa was regular third baseman on the 1937 and 1938 baseball teams. Since graduation, Fincher has assisted in coaching athletics aboard the U. S. S. Pennsylvania.

An immediate inquiry into the crash was launched by a naval board, headed by Lieut. Comdr. J. W. Higgins, of the U. S. S. Pennsylvania. An inquest will be held by Acting Coroner J. R. Creecy and Dr. James I. Boyd, of Prince Georges County.

Humane Society To Elect Tuesday

The Washington Humane Society will hold its seventieth meeting at 5 p. m. Tuesday in the Hotel Carlton for election of officers.

Founded in 1870 as the Association for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, the organization later received broader powers to investigate cruelty to children. It was given its present name in 1885.

Officials said yesterday the society had investigated and remedied 624 cases of cruelty to animals and children in the District during the past year.

G. U. Law School Dance

Two Georgetown Law School fraternities, Delta Theta Phi and Gamma Eta Gamma, will hold their first jointly sponsored social event, a formal spring dance, Monday night at the Wardman Park Hotel. Only members, their "dates" and the law school faculty will attend.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will invite you to dances and parties.

BUT if you are cross, listless and tired men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. When they go to parties they want girls along who are full of pep.

So in case you need a good general system tonic, remember for 3 generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps build up more physical resistance and thus aids in giving you more pep and lessens distress from female functional disorders.

You'll find Pinkham's Compound WELL WORTH TRYING! (Advt.)

Your Figure, Madame!

—By Ida Jean Kain.

Designer Says Type Of Bust Should Guide Selection of Brassiere

NOW IT comes out! It was a mistake, one of the topflight brassiere designers tells us, to raise the line of the bosom too high. The correct position of the bust depends on whether it is small, medium or full, and the type should be considered when you shop for a bra.

Mrs. Leona Lax, a pioneer in brassiere designing and an authority on types, says that when the uplift movement first started all bras were fashioned to raise the bust regardless—and that in many cases they simply dragged the muscles upward and did as much harm as when they allowed the muscles to sag.

The old-fashioned trick of circling a tape around the bust to see which size is needed is too inaccurate, according to this authority. For example, a girl may have a large frame and a small bust, or a small frame and a well-developed bust. Both might measure 34 inches but, as Mrs. Lax points out, the same brassiere would not properly fit both figures.

Measure Under Bust

It is the measurement just under the bust which should be taken and then the garment should be fitted alphabetically, according to the size of the pocket required. The small bust would take the A type, the average bust the B type.

The A type brassiere is constructed for the small bust which lies flat against the chest and appears smaller than it really is. The pockets are small and, our authority warns, the small girl should not try to raise the bust too high but should try to maintain the natural line. For those who have practically no bust at all, a little padding is not amiss and there are gay deceivers which will give you as nice a figure as the next girl. These little gadgets are used by a number of the Hollywood stars.

The B type is for the medium or average bust. If slightly pendulous, it may be raised. The normal line for this type bust is slightly shorter from the center of the shoulder to the center of the bust than from the center of the bust to the waistline. By raising the bust, the waistline is made to appear smaller.

Muscles Should Be Firm

With the full bust, you should wear type C, which supports and molds without too much constriction. The pockets of the brassiere should be large enough to cover every part of the bust. Mrs. Lax cautions against attempting to raise the full bust too high, for although it may look all right when you are standing, it appears to be right up under the chin when you are seated. As the bust becomes heavier, there is a natural tendency for it to set a bit lower on the figure.

In D, the very pendulous type, the bustline should be even lower on the figure.

The reason older women do not have lovely busts is not to be blamed on age; they have not had sufficient activity throughout the years to keep the muscles firm and, more often than not, have worn brassieres which broke down the muscle tissue rather than those which support the bust to lovely line.

Headliners for Easter

Here are some fetching last-minute millinery suggestions. The exotic turban, pictured in the central Easter egg, is nothing more nor less than one of those wonderful fishnet scrafs that are so versatile and so kind on the budget. Shells of Eggs Only May Be Dyed

Hard-cooked eggs naturally are easiest for very small children to dye and handle without breaking. But, with some care, you can dye the shells only. Prick a smal hole in one end and a larger hole in the other. Blow out, through the larger hole, the contents of the egg. The shells may be used for dyeing and the eggs themselves for making cakes and desserts, even though the yolks and whites are not separated.

The Biography of

Her Majesty, the Queen

Lady Cynthia Asquith has written, with the complete approval of Queen Elizabeth, an intimate biography of Her Majesty from her childhood right up through her first year on the throne. Every woman will want to read this story about England's beloved ruler who is soon to be the first member of British Royalty ever to be a guest at the White House.

Mary Haworth's Mail

When Life Makes Greedy Demands Upon Time of Busy Men of Affairs, Must Wives Sit Alone?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I don't think my case is unusual, because many wives seem to be up against the same problem. I am hoping your suggestions may help them, as well as me, to meet the situation. My husband and I are middle aged; have always been, and are now, very companionable; but in these times of stress and toil, there doesn't seem to be enough evenings in a week to permit of one spent at home together by the fireside.

We are both home loving, yet it appears the years have added so many responsibilities that there is little chance of our ever being free in the evening. Our children are grown and away from home; all are married except one; and, frankly, I don't enjoy a number of evenings at home alone. Since neither of us belong to card clubs or go in much for games, much of my spare time is spent in reading or with needlework, occasionally varied by a trip to the theater, but even these become boring after a time.

My husband is a high official in the institution which employs him. He is an elder in the church to which we both belong, and consequently even our Sundays are not our own, since the afternoons usually are spent visiting "shut-ins" or hospitals. My husband is frequently asked to address public gatherings (a compliment which I appreciate as much as he) and he is always delighted to include me in the trip, although there are times when it isn't convenient for me to go along. He shows great interest in having me meet his friends; also in having them entertained in our home. By this time, you are surely aware that there is not much amiss with him. But if there seems to be some way in which I am falling down—please let me have it.

I do sincerely want to measure up to my job as wife of a busy, prominent and popular man, and I know that a good wife never nags in order to accomplish her purpose. The one thing which would greatly add to my happiness would be one evening a week at home. I shall be grateful for your suggestions. Sincerely yours,

W. A.

Keeping in Touch

DEAR W. A.: By the time a married man reaches middle age, it is rather late in the day for the wife of his youth to try to insert innovations into his social routine. If a fortyish man of affairs is to have the courage to defy the world to drag him forth on certain evenings obstinately reserved for carpet slipper ease, he must have become pleasurably addicted to the quiet and exclusive joys of the lamp-lit family circle over a period of years. He must be willing to sacrifice some social acclaim and professional prestige in order to invite his soul and call it his own.

In this sorely competitive era, the prevalent and strenuous principle of conduct seems to be that the person of consequence, by virtue of his eminence and in order to keep (or advance) his vocational standing, must run like a hare in all directions during his so-called leisure hours, in order to see and be seen; hear and be heard. But I don't think such caged-squirrel activity is always rooted in actual necessity. It is my impression that such demands upon one's time are usually in exact proportion to one's willingness to respond to (and even promote) such invitations. What it really amounts to, in the majority of cases, is self-promotion; the determination to make a bigger noise, socially, than one's rival noise-makers, similarly motivated.

There are notable exceptions, of course. Certain vocational and avocational pursuits of inestimable value to society as a whole can only be served by much running to and fro; by an infinite variety of "contact" activities; by the individual's acting as ambulatory teacher and ubiquitous organizer. But the more intelligent, broader-gauged and unselfishly sincere social servants engaged in this type of work invariably see to it that their immediate obligations are not sacrificed for more visionary or grandiose contributions. Whoever thinks to serve society (or even himself) at the expense of neglecting his nearest and dearest, is missing the bull's-eye; getting the cart before the horse; overlooking the mission of greatest importance that would yield him the deepest satisfactions, an constitute his finest contribution to the race in the end.

But to return to your immediate problem, namely: how to lasso your husband out of his socio-professional marathon, for at least one evening a week. Frankly, I doubt that an evening by the fireside would hold much appeal for him, by now. If you would get him off to yourself, I imagine you will have to maneuver it in the guise of week-end trips—once a month or oftener, as he can be induced. Only by lifting him completely out of his accustomed environment and habitual routine, can you hope to penertate his preoccupation with worldly matters and center his attention upon yourself and your mutual relationship.

Supposing you were to sell him the idea, on a trial basis, of spending one evening a week at home with you, it is probable that the world outside would be very much with you. There might be telephonic interruptions, or friends dropping in, or he might retire into his thoughts, organizing his forces for further forays into the world outside; or he might spend the time casting accounts, preparing lectures, etc. In other words, he might be a thousand miles away from you in spirit, while sitting within arm's reach, actually. And I am sure this is not what you want.

I talked this matter over with a busy man of affairs, who admits that the first three months of every year are an 'annual headache" to him, due to business reasons. Then he is forced to be away from home almost every night. He becomes an absentee family man, and a nerve-strained executive during the day. He is tired, tense, inclined to be irritable and preoccupied during the limited time he is at home; and he has found that week-end trips with his wife are indispensable for tiding his marriage harmoniously over that trying period.

"By getting out of town, you get away from it all. You get away from the telephone, away from reminders of your worries and responsibilities. Among strangers, you and your wife discover your common interests all over again," he explains. "It doesn't much matter what you do or where you go; whether you 'do the town,' see the shows, or simply rest, you cut the threads of all those routine demands that are pulling you apart, and by the time you come back to the old grind, you know once more where you stand with each other—and that's the important thing."

New Frock With Heart Pocket

HERE'S loveliness just designed by Claire Tilden! How about stitching it up for a quickly-made spring dress? Then you'll look at your daily round through rose-colored glasses—because you'll realize how pretty is makes you appear. Pattern 766 is far too nice to use only as a cotton home-frock. So why not select it also fo r a going-calling style, in spun rayon? Later on, it will come in handy for a volle summer frock.

Pattern 766 is cut in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards 35-inch fabric and 3¼ yards lace edging.

Send 15 cents in coins for this pattern. Write clearly size, name, address and style number. Send orders to The Washington Post, Patterin Department, 70 Fifth avenue, New York. N. Y.

Easter Parade

(An Advance Broadcast.)

"AND NOW, ladies and gentlemen, approaching in the Easter procession is Mrs. Buffington Birdhaven. Known as one of the best dressed women in Washington, Mrs. Birdhaven, this Easter is emphasizing the current note of femininity in an ensemble including a fuchsia print splashed with mauve poppies, pink flannel coat, silver fox neckpiece, bumper flower turban with fishnet snood and streamers of purple veiling, floating handblocked Surrealist scarf, multi-colored pink bubble beads with matching bracelet, rhinestone clips and earrings, yellow pigskin bag, flowered parasol, orchid corsage and gardenia boutonniere.

"And who is the lovely lady just behind Mrs. Birdhaven? Why none other than that exotic brunette, Mrs. J. Smythe Sallow, a symphony in charteuse frock and redingote with daffodil yellow hat, spinach green gloves and pocketbook and a gardenia sitting jauntily on her shoulder.

"Next we have Mrs. Mortimer Silo, who of course needs no introduction, and who is accompanied by her debutante granddaughter Eunice. Mrs. Silo has one of the new baby curl coiffures and is wearing a sweetheart bonnet with pink camellias under the brim. Her close-fitting trotteur suit has a knee length skirt. Eunice is in a Scotch Highlander ensemble with baby socks and a gardenia corsage.

Career Woman's Fetching Ensemble

"On they come, and here is Miss Begonia Hack, prominent career woman, in a beguiling black rabbit skin coat and a neat black plush shako hat—wait, wait a minute! What is that, Miss Hack? . . . Oh Miss Hack wishes to explain that this is not her Easter outfit! No! Miss Hack says her boss kept her so busy last week she didn't have time to do any Easter shopping. All right, thank you, Miss Hack.

"Ladies and gentlemen, it is now 49½ seconds after 10 o'clock Eastern standard time and here we have with us the devastating Titian haired Mrs. Byron Duffer, who is virtually stopping traffic in a Danger Red ensemble and who is balancing on her head with rare grace a flower pot of geraniums. With her is the tall—and of course distinguished looking—Mr. Duffer—what? . . . Oh beg pardon! The gentleman says he isn't Mr. Duffer. At any rate he is wearing a gardenia boutonniere.

"Beg pardon, Madam? . . . Oh yes, we don't want to forget Dr. Nannie B. Hopper, the celebrated club leader who is stepping along in a little gypsy outfit, a maharajah turban and a large corsage of gardenias.

Chubb Family Prefers Plaids

"Wait, wait a minute here! We almost missed Mrs. Broadhurst Chubb, who is prancing along in a little girl suit in window pane checks and a large wagon wheel hat. She wears a gardenia on her cuff. Mr. Chubb is in salt and pepper trousers, with contrasting brown plaid coat, red and white striped tie, and one of the new wide-brimmed fedoras with a jaunty gardenia in the band.

"Oh, yes, and here is Mrs. George Genteel in a conservative little black toque—surmounted by a gardenia—wait what is that, Mrs. Genteel? . . . Folks, Mrs. Genteel wishes it put in the record that this is her winter hat. Oh, yes, and she says further that she has not been able to find a spring hat she can wear . . . Well, anyway, thank you, Mrs. Genteel.

"Here's that luscious blonde, Miss Gracie Wiggle, is a snug-fitting, man-tailored gray suit, with lilac taffeta petticoat, frilly peek-a-boo blouse worn over a camisole with pink satin ribbon beading.

Mrs. Flagpole Goes High-Hat

"Oh, yes, and just behind is the divinely tall Mrs. Angus Flagpole in a stunning red hat with a stovepipe crown with Tower of Pisa grosgrain ribbon trimming.

"And now here comes the enchanting Mrs. Mae Sappington in a purple Schiaparelli print and her little Pekingese, Toto, in matching blanket and gardenia; also the glamorous Miss Eloise Waddle in a trim little dressmaker suit that comes nearly to her knees; and oh yes, the ever aristocratic Mrs. Horace Zan Zany in mink coat and gardenia, and Mr. Van Zany in silk hat, morning coat, cane, gardenia boutonniere and—wait, wait, wait a minute! . . . Ladies and gentlemen, Mr. Van Zany has just discovered that he has forgotten and left on his golf knickers and with Mrs. Van Zany is hurriedly returning home to correct the mistake. Thank you, Mrs. Van Zany.

"It is now 58 seconds after 10, Eastern standard time. Let me remind you again of the special offer for this week only of Zump's Gardenia Chigger salve. A full 2-pound can for only 79 cents! Prepare for summer."

Authentic Belts

Paris (AP).—An optimistic belt in Paquin's collection is worded "Joy," "Spring," "Sun," in gold letter on black leather. Other wordy details appear on printed crepes, where the artist signs his pattern and gets his name printed along with spring flowers and polka dots.

Removing Candle Stains

To remove candle grease from table linens, let the wax dry, then carefully lift off all you can with your fingers. Next, put the stained cloth between two white blotters, press gently with a warm iron until the stains are absorbed by the blotters. Finally, put the stained cloth on soft cloth, rub it with small sponge frequently dipped in gasoline or benzine. Work away from any flame.

Giant Evening Flowers

Paris (AP).—Giant flowers are featuring in new evening prints. These are chiffons or organzas and some of the out-sized flowers are lilacs, mimosa and wistaria. Red and pink chrysanthemums measuring 1 foot across, pattern a white organdie.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

Suggestions for Sightseeing in Manhattan Given Prospective World's Fair Visitors Rockefeller Center Is Thrilling Attraction

New York, April 7.

THIS IS Leonard Hall speaking, the little woman being laid out with a severe attack of the botts. Inasmuch as the World's Fair, New York type, is due to open within a month I feel it only fair to tell you some of the things you may expect when you pay us a visit, as, of course, you will. We hope.

ALICE HUGHES

In the first place, you will be forced to pass through the greatest city in the world before you reach the show, which has been built far out in the suburb called Flushing. And if you get through New York with enough folding-money to do the fair in a big way, you will be accomplishing a great feat. You will be greeted on your arrival by the two outstanding groups in the metropolis — namely, our cops and our taxi drivers. Our police force is a remarkable body of men. Unless you commit an outstanding breach of the peace, such as smashing a show window or kicking a copper in the shin, you will be treated with amazing courtesy. Our gendarmes, in the long and arduous course they receive during training, have the necessity of this virtue pounded into their skulls. If you want directions, advice or just plain conversation, they will be glad to oblige.

Moreover, you girls will be glad to know that the flatfeet with whom you come in contact in the dizzy middle of town are almost uniformly handsome. This is because a late commissioner organized what is technically known as the Midtown Squad, or as irreverent souls dub it, "The Courtesy Squad." It is composed of recent graduates of the Police Academy, and since many of our force consist of Princeton tackles and Phi Beta Kappas you will get good treatment as well as an ocular treat.

New York taxi drivers are a fabulous crowd. They are talkative and usually well-informed, and in my opinion they are the best drivers in the world. They may scare you half to death, but it is not probable that they will break your legs. A ride with them is a truly liberal education, and if you insist they will take you where you want to go. My hunch is to tip them about 20 cents. If you do they may even say thank you.

It may be trite but the best thing for visitors to New York is to go where all visitors go. There is a lot of cheap sneering at tourist trips and sights, but that is completely silly.

Other people profess to sneer at rubberneck buses, but that is also silly. There is no better way of seeing the high spots of any city than in one of these things, and often the spieler is a man of intelligence and humor. Even a glimpse of our Chinatown will do you no serious harm.

In June, 86 vessels of the United States Fleet will be at anchor in the Hudson River—one of the great streams of the world—and you can go aboard these battlecarts and at the same time get a good look at the famous Riverside Drive, which is a superb highway. I have only touched the high spots, and there are dozens more, but New York itself is certainly a great sight.

Diplomats, Officials To Spend Easter Away

Argentine Envoy, Wife Week-Ending at Pinehurst; Lindsays Entertaining Visitor; Secretary Woodring Returns to Miami

REUNION WITH FRIENDS or family, or brief trips out of town, will occupy prominent Government officials and members of the Diplomatic Corps during the Easter week-end. The current uneasiness in Europe has cast somewhat of a damper on all gayety, and official entertaining over the holiday is nil.

The British Ambassador and Lady Lady Lindsay have with them for Easter Mrs. Bayard James, of New York, an old friend of the latter's who visits her here from time to time. Today Lady Lindsay will gather in a few of her friends for luncheon at the embassy in honor of Mrs. James.

The Argentine Envoy and Senora de Espil are enjoying a golfing week-end in Pinehurst, but are expected back again at the embassy bright and early Monday. They made the trip by motor.

Spending the week-end quietly in their apartment at the Carlton are the Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull. The Cabinet officer is kept here by the current crisis in Europe, and Mrs. Hull always likes to remain with him. It is safe to predict that the hardworking Secretary will make numerous trips to his office, as not even holidays can keep him away from his chief interest in life—his work.

Several Diplomats Out of Town

The Yugoslav Minister and Mme. Fotitch leave today for Lebanon, Pa., where they will attend services at the Serbian Orthodox Church there, as is their custom every year. They will return to the Capital the first of the week.

The Latvian Minister and Mme. Bilmanis have with them for Easter Anatol Tinbergs, vice consul of Latvia in New York, and Mrs. Elvira Kreisler, secretary of the New York consulate general. The Minister and Mme. Bilmanis will take their guests on a tour to see the cherry blossoms. Miss Elosia Jimmez, of New York, who is visiting the Costa Rican Minister and Senora de Castro Beeche, will also, no doubt, be taken by her hosts for a drive around the Tidal Basin.

Out of town are the South African Minister and Mrs. Ralph William Close, who are at Atlantic City for the week-end. The Minister is convalescing from a severe attack of influenza, which has kept him out of circulation for the past few weeks. The Rumanian Minister and Mme. Irimescu are spending the holiday in New York, where the Irish Minister, Robert Brennan, is also visiting until tomorrow. The latter went up to make some last-minute arrangements for the forthcoming visit of Prime Minister Eamon de Valera, scheduled to arrive here next month.

The Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau will return tomorrow from a two weeks' vacation at Sea Island, Ga., and will have with them for the holidays their son, Henry Morgenthau 3d, who attends Princeton, and their daughter, Miss Joan Morgenthau.

Harold Ickeses Have House Guest

With the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Harold L. Ickes over Easter is Miss Anne Halle, of New York and Cleveland, Ohio. A very pretty young lady, she is a licensed airplane pilot and much interested in architecture. She and Mrs. Ickes were classmates at Smith College. Miss Halle is a sister of Kay Halle, one of New York's most attractive "glamour girls".

After flying up from Miami Beach to review the Army Day parade on Thursday, Secretary of War Woodring has flown back again to join Mrs. Woodring and the children. He will return—again by plane—next week, but his family will linger on in Miami until the last week in April.

As he does nearly every week-end, the Postmaster General, James A. Farley, has joined Mrs. Farley for a family reunion at their home in New York. Their daughter, Betty, is there from Wellesley, and James, jr., is home from the New York Military Academy at Cornwall-on-Hudson. Mr. Farley will return to the Capital the middle of next week.

The Attorney General, Frank Murphy, expects to spend the holiday out of town, if work permits, but has not as yet chosen his destination. The other bachelor cabinet member, Harry Hopkins, is with the President at Warm Springs, and will return to the Capital when his Chief does.

In search of a rest cure, Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, left Washington a week ago for an unannounced destination. She will return today or tomorrow to spend a quiet Easter with her husband.

Hulls to Fete Celebrities

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull are planning to do their share of entertaining in honor of the three sets of distinguished visitors expected here within the next month: The President of Nicaragua and Senora de Somoza, the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Denmark, and the Prime Minister of Ireland, Eamon de Valera. They will entertain at three luncheons in three successive days for the celebrities.

The Latin visitors will be feted at a luncheon on Sunday, May 7, two days after their arrival. The Hulls will fete the Danish royal couple at a similar party on May 8, and the Secretary will give a stag luncheon for Premier de Valera on May 9.

Luise Bernstorff, Bernhard Lippert To Wed in May

Mr. and Mrs. Hans Bernstorff, of New York, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Luise Bernstorff, to Bernhard Lippert, German vice counsel in New York.

Miss Bernstorff attended the Horace Mann School for Girls and was graduated in 1933 from Kendall Hall School, Pride's Crossing, Mass. Later, she studied at the Grand Central School of Art and attended Columbia University for four years. She has traveled extensively abroad with her parents.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolf Lippert, of Salzburg, Germany. He studied at the University of Vienna and at the Academy of Bodenkultur, where he received an engineering diploma and a degree. He served the Netherlands in the Netherlands East Indies from 1930 to 1933, traveled extensively in the Far East, and then entered the German diplomatic service. Before coming to New York in 1936 he served in Geneva, Brussels and the foreign office in Berlin.

The wedding will take place in New York in the middle of May.

Mrs. D. W. Clark To Give Luncheon

Mrs. William E. Borah, wife of the Senator, will be among the guests of Mrs. D. Worth Clark, wife of the junior Senator from Idaho, at the fashion luncheon at the Shoreham Blue Room today.

Others of Mrs. Clark's guests will be Mrs. Robert F. Terrell, of Pocatello, Idaho; Mrs. Therese Graham and Mrs. John Gray, of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, and Mrs. J. F. Nugent, wife of the former Senator. Mrs. Terrell is the wife of the mayor of Pocatello, the home town of Senator and Mrs. Clark.

Jefferson Cafferys Sail for Brazil

Jefferson Caffery, United States Ambassador to Brazil, and Mrs. Caffery sailed at midnight last night on the Uruguay to return to Rio de Janeiro after a stay of several months in this country. The retiring Naval Attache of the Brazilian Embassy and Mme. Raul Reis are also on board, en route to Rio de Janeiro.

Also sailing from New York yesterday was James Roosevelt, son of the President, who is a passenger on the Queen Mary, bound for London with prints of the new film "Wuthering Heights." Maj. Gen. Sir Andrew and Lady McCulloch, recent visitors to Washington, are also on the Queen Mary.

Hunt to Meet

Rain or shine, members of the Potomac Hunt will hold their hunter trials today at Mrs. Paul Bowers' farm, starting at 11:30 a. m.

To Ride Today—Rain or Shine

Hessler Studio.

Mrs. Marshall O. Exnicios, snapped exercising her horse for the hunter trials of the Potomac Hunt, which, no matter what the weather, will take place today in nearby Maryland. The first event is scheduled for 11:30, and luncheon will be served between events. Mrs. Exnicios will be paired with George Walker in the Montgomery County Plate.

D. M. Hare To Exhibit

Of wide interest to Capital society will be an exhibition of color photographic portraits to be held at the Walker Gallery in New York, beginning April 17, by David Meredith Hare. Mr. Hare is the son-in-law of Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, having married the former Susanna Wilson in New York. The couple is spending Easter with her in Washington.

Among those of particular interest to Washington whose portraits will be shown are President Roosevelt, Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador; Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture; former Representative Maury Maverick, of Texas, and Lowell Mellett, of the National Emergency Council.

Dr. Procope Host At Dinner for Finnish Architect

The Finnish Minister, Dr. Hjalmar Procope, entertained at dinner last night in honor of Albar Aalto, famous Finnish architect, and Mme. Aalto, who are in Washington for a brief stay.

The guests included Nathan Straus, United States Housing Administrator; Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. Mary Cooke, L. C. McAndrew, Mrs. Thomas Cowell, Kosti Behanen, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gudheim and Dr. Sigurd von Numers, secretary of the Finnish legation.

Sen. and Mrs. Pepper Entertain Mrs. Ringling

Senator and Mrs. Claude Pepper, of Florida, have as their guest for several days Mrs. John Ringling, for whom they entertained at a small supper party last night.

Mrs. Ringling, the widow of the famous circus owner, divides her time between New York and Sarasota, Fla.

To Fete Couple

Miss Frances Heller, daughter of Isaac S. Heller, of New York and Woodmere, Long Island, and the late Mrs. Heller, and Alfred Cahen, of Washington, whose engagement was announced recently, will be guests of honor at a dinner to be given tonight at the Ambassador Hotel, in New York, by Miss Heller's aunt, Mrs. Albert Morreau.

Historic Georgetown Homes To Be Open April 21 and 22

Dumbarton Place, Once Home of Washington's Nephew, Among Older Residences to Be Visited

Awakened interest in the historic homes of our ancestors comes every spring, when the beautiful houses of Georgetown are opened to the public for the benefit of St. John's Church. The dates for the tour this year are Friday and Saturday, April 21 and 22.

Early Georgetown citizens built houses of good design and good construction. We learn from the history books that "the expansion of population west of Fort Cumberland, after the Revolution, led to the rapid growth of the port of Georgetown. Private estates were fast developed on the hills to the north of this thriving community. Material for the houses, the furniture and the decorations came from England."

The homes to be shown include the Bodisco house, for many years the Russian Legation and one of the most beautiful residences of the Capital. The house was rescued by Mr. and Mrs. Francis C. DeWolf, the present owners, from a tenement state, which fortunately had not disturbed its original beauty.

An older exhibit is Dumbarton Place at 1647 Thirtieth street, which is 125 years old. It is now owned by Col. and Mrs. William J. Donovan. This property originally occupied the block bounded by Q, R, Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth streets, and was for many years the home of George Washington's great nephew, George Corbin Washington. When George Beall, founder of Georgetown, died in 1780, he bequeathed this and all his other "houses and lots in Georgetown to my son, Thomas Beall. To my daughter Elizabeth, I bequeath my Negro fellow, Jack, to serve four years and then to be set free."

Although history pervades many more of the houses, two on this year's list are newly built. One is the strikingly modern house just completed by Mr. and Mrs. Alexander B. Hawes, at 3220 Reservoir road, and the other is the Georgian reproduction at 3200 S street, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gray S. Foster.

Of timely interest is the house owned by Miss Anita Phipps at 1628 Thirty-second street. Formerly known as Valley street this block, which faces Tudor place, is rapidly being remodeled. Miss Phipps' house has been recently reconditioned.

Mary Williams To Attend Party

Miss Mary Virginia Williams, who will be married to Dr. John Lee Devine, jr., on April 22 will be guest at a cocktail party to be given this afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. Doss Hatfield in their home, The Glen, near McLean, Va.

The colonial white clapboard house, set in the midst of the old Montgomery property is a perfect setting for a party. One end of the immense drawing room today will be transformed into a tea corner and spring blossoms and tall white tapers will be used to decorate the tea table.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tebb

Deep Run Hunt Races, Near Richmond, Will Attract Many Notables

THE DEEP RUN HUNT races at Charles Neck Farm, near Richmond, will be the most important sporting event to be held in Virginia today. Daniel C. Sands, M. F. H., of Middleburg Hunt, is to be one of the judges, and Taylor S. Hardin will announce the races.

The board of governors of Deep Run Hunt will give a luncheon today at the Commonwealth Club, in Richmond, as they do annually for the visiting sportsmen whose horses will run in the Curles Neck races in the afternoon. The first race is called promptly at 3, so the luncheon will start at noon in order that the 10-mile drive to the race course can be taken in plenty of time.

TONIGHT a colorful race ball will be held at the Commonwealth Club and will be attended by many from the hunt country.

The five races on the card are well filled and horses and riders from all parts of the country are entered. Mrs. Marion duPont Scott, of Montpelier, heads the list of entries with eight horses running in the different races, and Mrs. John Hay Whitney has sent four horses to Richmond. In the feature race of the day, 3 miles over post and rail, for the Deep Run Cup, there are seven entries, with Bunree Boy, owned by Geoffrey Laing, the favorite. Many are also rooting for Terry's Winner, owned by Miss Theresa Schey. Other horses starting in this race include Mrs. Eva Stewart Spilman's Music Mountain, Dr. Lewis N. Allen's Clifton's Fairy, Paul Mellon's Rustic Romance, Charles S. Cheston's Reconsidered, Deceit, from the Rokeby Stable, and Geoffrey Laing's Captain Bill.

FIRST RACE is the Broad Rock, 1½ miles over hurdles. Entries include Thomas T. Mott's Yammer; Mrs. John C. Clark's Itsaboy; Moon Hunter, from North Hill Farm; Jack Carpenter's Red Cardinal, Frank Scott Minor's Macroome, Paul Mellon's Rough Diamond, Mrs. Iewis A. Park's Royal Thomas, Mrs. Marion duPont Scott's Blenny and Sword Hilt, Mrs. Reginald Sinclaire's Noction Harold E. Talbott's Redlander and Mrs. Whitney's Palm Rock.

The second race is the Malvern Hill Steeplechase, 2 miles over brush. The entries are Harold E. Talbott's Barricade, Mrs. Marion duPont Scot's Sailor's Knot and Slievereigh, Mrs. James E. Ryan's Little Lancer, J. Fred Adams jr.'s Jacamar and Rhythmical, J. E. Ryan's Wellstepped, Paul Mellon's Rough Diamond, Raymond Guest's Happy Joe, Mrs. Josn E. Clark's Aylward, North Hill Farm's Raincoat, Jack Carpenter's Red Cardinal and Crowlean and Mrs. Whitney's Tom's Boy.

THE THIRD RACE for the Deep Run Cup will be followed by a race for the Richmond Plate, 2 miles over brush. Entries are Mrs. Louis Hanckel's Tennie, Mrs. Mildred Taylor's Ruth Wrack, Raymond Guest's Get Busy, Brandywine Stable's Rademedes, Mrs. John C. Clark's Little Cottage, Mrs. Marion duPont Scott's Slievereigh and Muskogee, Thomas T. Mott's Brumanna, Mrs. Reginald Sinclair's Swift Gold, L. W. Robinson, jr.'s Cabin Fire, J. Fred Adams, jr.'s Briar Rose and Mythical, J. J. Watts' Leslie Myer, and Mrs. Whitney's Loro and Talents Rare.

One and one-quarter miles on the flat is the schedule for the fifth race, in which the entries are Geoffrey Lang's Mad Finn, Mrs. J. C. Clar's Itsaboy, John Bosley's Toutmepal, Mrs. Scott's Blenny and Sword Hilt, Mrs. Sinclaire's Better Brook and Old Dom, Mr. Adams' Rhythmical and Jacamar, Thomas B. Daniel's Bob, jr., Moon Hunter, from North Hill Farm; Mr. Carpenter's Crowlean, Miss Henrietta Bingham's Ladies' Forum, and Mrs. Whitney's Talents Rare and Tom's Boy.

Mary Kleberg Becomes Bride

In the presence of the two families and close friends, Miss Mary Etta Kleberg, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Richard Mifflin Kleberg, of Texas, was married to Greer Whitworth Sugden at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the bridegroom in Oakland, Calif.

Representative Kleberg, who flew to California for the ceremony, gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a tweed suit in shades of blue, brown and yellow. Her accessories were yellow and a corsage of yellow orchids completed her costume. Both she and Mr. Sugden dispensed with attendants.

Miss Katharine Searcy, the bride's aunt, and Miss Katherine Kleberg, her sister, were present. Mrs. Kleberg remained in her apartment at the Shoreham with her small daughter, Alice.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Texas. After a wedding trip, the couple will live in Oakland.

Congress Set Takes Boxes for Brown Lecture

Mrs. A. S. Mike Monroney, wife of Representative Monroney; Mrs. Chester Bolton, wife of Representative Bolton; Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor and Mrs. Samuel Conner, Democratic national committeewoman from Kentucky, are among additional boxholders for the lecture to be given at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Mayflower by John Mason Brown, well-known dramatic critic. The lecture is for the benefit of the Frontier Nursing Service.

Last evening Mr. and Mrs. Brown were honored at a small dinner given by Representative and Mrs. Richard Wigglesworth at their residence on Foxhall road. Among the guests were Senator and Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge, with whom Mr. and Mrs. Brown are staying until tomorrow.

Members of the committee to sell boxes for the benefit include Mrs. Philip Coffin, Mrs. Cary T. Grayson, Mrs. Nelson Perin and Mrs. James Clement Dunn.

Frederick H. Browns Making Home in Arlington County

Now making their home in Arlington, Va., are Mr. and Mrs. James M. Price, whose marriage took place on March 31 in Washington at the Foundry Methodist Church. The Rev. Frederick Harris Brown officiated.

Mrs. Price is the former Miss Dorothy D. Hayes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Preston Hayes, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Mr. Price is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Allen Price, of Florence, S. C.

The bride wore a beige ensemble trimmed with matching fur, and a corsage of purple orchids. Her maid of honor and only attendant, Miss Charlotte Womack, was gowned in an ensemble of the new violet shade and her corsage was of violets. C. W. Clever was the best man. Immediately following the cerremony, the couple left for a motor trip South.

The bride, a graduate of Northwestern University, is connected with the General Accounting Office of the Government. Mr. Price, who was graduated from Clemson College, Clemson, S. C., is associated with the C. W. Clever Co., of Arlington, and is a member of the local Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Cost Accountants.

500 Members of Pi Beta Phi Sorority Will Convene Here April 28 and 29

Carrie Chapman Catt Invited to Be the Guest of Honor

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

More than 500 members of Pi Beta Phi Sorority will gather in Washington April 28 and 29, for the Eastern Conference in the interim of convention, which will be held at the Washington Hotel. It is to convene here because of the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the installation of Columbia Alpha Chapter at George Washington University. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt has been invited to come from her home in New Rochelle, N. Y., as guest of honor at the conference, and Mrs. J. S. Barnwell, of North Wilkesboro, N. C., will preside as head of Gamma Province.

Other honor guests will be Mrs. T. N. Alford, of Coronado, Calif., editor of The Arrow, national publication of Pi Beta Phi; Mrs. Robert Wilde, of Indianapolis, assistant to the grand vice president; Dr. May L. Keller, of Richmond, Va., the past president emeritus; Dr. Mary B. Harris, of Alderson, Va., and Mrs. Samuel S. Spruce, of Washington, province vice president.

Mrs. B. H. Lingo Conference Guide

A reception for the delegates will be held on Friday night at 8 o'clock. Saturday morning the session of the seven active chapters and alumnae clubs will convene at 9:30, and on Saturday night, at 7, there will be a banquet celebrating both the founders' day of the national sorority and the golden anniversary of the chapter at George Washington. Registration will begin at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Mrs. B. Harrison Lingo, of the local alumnae chapter, is conference guide. Discussion at the business sessions will be devoted to the settlement school maintain by Pi Beta Phi at Gatlingburg, Tenn.; to the relations of alumnae clubs and active chapters and suggestions for programs. There will also be an exhibition of settlement school crafts and textiles in connection with the conference, which will be arranged by Miss Marion McCoy, of Washington.

Other Committees Are Announced

Mrs. Wilbur Eccleston will be in charge of the banquet, assisted by Mrs. Lee Carlin, co-chairman; Mrs. Milton C. White, Mrs. Mary Shelton, Miss Lena Gard, Mrs. Vern Simmons, Mrs. Francis W. Brown and Mrs. Wesley Hanford.

The toastmistress will be Mrs. Alford, who will be introduced by Mrs. James Greear, president of the Washington Alumnae Club, which has a membership of 615. Miss Margaret White, of Washington, a past vice president of the national organization, will give a toast to Columbia Alpha Chapter and there will be a birthday cake with 50 candles.

Mrs. Wilson Compton is chairman of the Friday night reception, assisted by Miss Jane Edwards, co-chairman; Miss Eldridge Loeffler, Miss Bertha Shafer, Mrs. Katherine DeLashmutt, Mrs. Victor Knoop, Mrs. George Clarke Ober, Mrs. Avon M. Nevius and Mrs. Karl D. Loos.

MEMBERS of Kappa Beta Pi, international legal sorority, expect to be counting the days to July after seeing the program on Rocky Mountain National Park to be sponsored Monday night by the National Parks Service. It will be at the auditorium of the old Interior Building on F street between Eighteenth and Nineteenth. The Kappa Beta Pi's are having their biennial convention at Estes Park, and the pictures Monday, in connection with a talk by Miss Isabelle F. Story, editor-in-chief of the National Park Service, promise to make the trip West practically a "must" on the Kappa calendar. Members of all the local chapters and their friends will attend the program.

DR. W. H. GEWEHR, professor of history at American University, will speak Monday night, at 7:45, at the semimonthly meeting of Delta Chapter of Zeta Beta Chi Sorority, to be held in the French room of the Raleigh Hotel. His subject will be "Experiences of a Tour Conductor in Europe."

A BIRTHDAY OFFERING toward the scholarship for Nancy Moore, a student at Tamassee School, will be the twenty-ninth anniversary celebration of Col. John Donelson Chapter, D. A. R., today at a luncheon meeting at the Highlands.

Mrs. Orie Eads Gibson, the regent, will preside and birthday greetings and responses will be given by the guests of honor: Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins, honorary vice president general of the D. A. R.; Miss Lillian Chenoweth, State regent of the District; Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig, vice president general; Mrs. Harry C. Oberholser, State vice regent, and Mrs. John Beavers, former vice president general.

Writer Will Address The Washington Club

Mr. Canham covered the sessions of the League of Nations Assembly for three years and has been head of the Washington Bureau of the Christian Science Monitor since 1932.

He will be introduced by the program chairman, Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor.

Mrs. Herrick Re-elected by Goodwill Guild

Refrigerator Donated To Industries Plant At Annual Meeting

Mrs. Samuel Herrick was re-elected president of the Woman's Guild of the Goodwill Industries of Washington at the annual meeting yesterday. The election was held following a luncheon at the headquarters, 1218 New Hampshire avenue. The guild voted to use the money raised recently by the children's play and fashion show given there for the purchase of an electric refrigerator for the cafeteria.

Other officers are Mrs. W. W. Husband, first vice president; Mrs. Louis G. Caldwell, second vice president; Mrs. Richard Stimson, recording secretary; Mrs. L. H. Macomber, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Elmer S. Frazier, treasurer; Mrs. Harvey Ralph, assistant treasurer. Three advisers from the board of trustees were Mrs. Karl Fenning, Mrs. Elizabeth Murray and Mrs. Stanley Sears.

To Assist in Membership Drive

Mrs. Fenning asked for volunteers to assist in the membership campaign for Goodwill Industries, of which the guild is an auxiliary. At the annual meeting of the Industries April 25, the new building, which has been erected behind the present one, will be dedicated. It has a completely equipped laundry, additional work rooms and a sterilization plant for old clothing and mattresses received by the organization for reconditioning.

The membership dues provide for the overhead and maintenance of the plant so that a large part of the proceeds from the sale of articles reconditioned at the Goodwill Industries by handicapped workers may go into wages. At present 75 per cent of this amount goes back to the workers.

Board President Attends Luncheon

Among those attending the luncheon and meeting yesterday were Ernest Humphrey Daniel, president of the board of trustees; W. Harold Snape, director, and Mrs. Snape, Mrs. A. F. Lyne, Mrs. Bates Warren, Mrs. Lynn Edmonston, Mrs. C. C. Motz, Mrs. Charles Livingston, Mrs. J. Greenlees, Mrs. Charles Gleiber, Mrs. Miller Hickerson, Mrs. H. G. Nichols, Mrs. Edward Horton, Mrs. E. H. Oliver and Mrs. R. T. Rollo.

Patriot Group To Gather Here

Representatives of every State but one will be in Washington next week for the sessions of the General Court of the National Society, Daughters of Founders and Patriots, of which Mrs. Llewellen Edwards, of Washington, is president. Three sessions of the court will be held at the Washington Hotel Thursday, preceded by the meeting of the national executive board Wednesday morning at the organization's headquarters, 1828 I street.

Officers and delegates will be received at the White House Wednesday at noon. Wednesday night, at 7:30, the banquet will be given in the Rose Room of the Washington, where the business sessions will also be conducted on Thursday, opening at 10 o'clock. Mrs. James Henry Harper is in charge of reservations for the banquet, and Mrs. James Charles Peabody, of Boston, chairman of credentials for the convention.

Many of the members of the D. F. P. A. are also affiliated with the Daughters of the American Revolution and will remain in the city following the close of the General Court sessions for the D. A. R. Congress the next week.

Fashion Show Set For Wednesday By Rector's Aid

The Rector's Aid of St. Alban's Church will sponsor a luncheon bridge on Wednesday at 12:30 at the Chevy Chase Woman's Club, followed by a fashion show. Among those who will model spring styles are the Misses Peggy Townsend, Doris Becker, Margaret Schonfeld, Mary Brereton and Nancy Hoskinson.

Miss Bertha A. Marsh, of 4546 Cathedral avenue, is in charge of tables.

Madrigal Singers To Give Program

A seasonal program will be given by the Madrigal Singers at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, April 15, in the ballroom of All States Hotel, under the direction of Mrs. John Milton Sylvester.

The program is sponsored by the All States House Committee, of which Miss Frances Ross is chairman and other members are Miss Katherine Heinold, secretary; Miss Mildred Sieg, treasurer; the Misses Marjorie Anderson, Florence Berrien, Marie Graham, Anne Healy, Daisy Hoylman, Mayda Leach, Helen Miner, Dora L. Moore, Martha Taylor, Ada M. Walton, Marian Washburn, Lavina Wood.

Seated about a table lighted only by candles, as was the Elizabethan custom, the Madrigal Singers in seventeenth century costume present a vignette of past centuries.

Grace Thompson Seton Will Speak Tuesday

Grace Thompson Seton, author, explorer, twice National President of the League of American Pen Women and one of the founders of Women Geographers, will be the guest of honor and speaker at the weekly luncheon at Opportunity House on Tuesday at 12:30. She will review her latest book, "Poisoned Arrows," which deals with her explorations in Indo-China and Bali. Mrs. Seton will tell about a little-known tribe in Indo-China which still uses the matriarchal system. Members and friends of Opportunity House have been invited.

To Visit Reserve Unit

Mabel Sally, regional vice president of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Fleet Reserve Association, will make her official visit to Unit 4 at the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club, 1015 L street.

Card Party Wednesday

Plans have been completed for the annual card party and dance of Court District of Columbia Catholic Daughters of America, to be held in the Willard Hotel on Wednesday. Miss Josephine H. Walsh, grand regent of the court, is honorary chairman and Miss Dorothy U. Barrett, vice grand regent, is general chairman in charge of arrangements for the party.

WHAT BEERS MADE IN U.S.A. WERE JUDGED EQUAL OF EUROPE'S FINEST?

Experts agree that a beer from the Middle West, one from the North, and Gunther's from Baltimore, equalled costly European Brews in every way!

GUNTHER'S did a grand job for the U. S. team of beers! And the award made by these 37 experts is a tribute to those whose taste in beer has made Gunther's so popular in Maryland and Washington, D. C.

For like one of its team-mates . . . an expensive beer made in the Middle West, Gunther's is a "special dry lager" the kind most real beer drinkers of the world prefer. Gunther's has always claimed it was as dry and as beer-y as any expensive imported beer. Now the experts have proved it!

Who are the Experts?

Each one of these experts is a member of the International Barmen Association. Each is a beer expert in his own right. Many have European backgrounds. All have responsible jobs here in the States. And in most every case you'll find them directing the beer and wine cellars of some of the country's finest clubs and hotels.

How Test was Made

These experts were told that there would be 3 beers from the U. S. A. and 3 famous imports from abroad. Nothing else. They were not told which was which. They were asked to use their own standard for judging quality, flavor, body, purity. And when the 37 men had made all their comparisons, here was the result:

FIRST: 3 world famous imported beers had scored 48 points.

3 fine beers made in this country had scored 50 points.

Virtually no difference.

SECOND: Each man had also been asked to pick the beer he preferred to all the others! Here a European beer won, but only by 1 single vote did it beat Gunther's. In addition, Gunther's actually led the other 2 imported beers by a convincing margin!

Try Gunther's . . . only a dime

So step up you real beer drinkers . . . and ask for Gunther's. Prove to yourself that Gunther's compares with any beer made regardless of price. Compare it with the finest German beer you've tasted. Stack it up against famous brews from Czechoslovakia, or Holland. Once you know how good Gunther's is, you'll never go back to the "sweet" type beers.

Remember that Gunther's is the only "Special Dry Lager" sold in this part of the country. And remember too . . . experts have chosen it right up with the world's finest . . . and here GUNTHER'S COSTS YOU NO MORE THAN ORDINARY BEERS! On draught . . . or in bottles.

COMPARING WORLD FAMOUS IMPORTED BEERS WITH BEERS FROM THE GOOD OLD U. S. A.
Scene mapped at banquet of International Bar and wine stewards, held at the Hotel Lexington, New York City

In the good old Summer time take along a case of Gunther's, the dry beer-y beer. International experts rank it equal with the finest beers in the world—but it costs no more here, than ordinary beer.

Gunther Brewing Company
Baltimore, Maryland

Gentlemen:-

On last Thursday evening, at a dinner of our members, held in the Empire Room of the Hotel Lexington, a very thorough and comprehensive test was made to determine the relative merits of famous imported and domestic beers.

It was gratifying to see how the standards of brewing in this country have produced beer so excellent in taste, body, and color; that three domestic beers were virtually comparable in every way with three world-famous imported beers.

Thirty-seven experts, all master bar-men and wine stewards, engaged in this test, and none were permitted to know the names of the beers they tasted until the test was concluded.

You may also be gratified to learn that Gunthers was one of the highest ranking beers, receiving, as it did, the second highest number of votes for first choice. It was only exceeded by one world-famous imported beer in the opinion of these experts.

Yours very truly,
INTERNATIONAL BARMEN ASSOCIATION

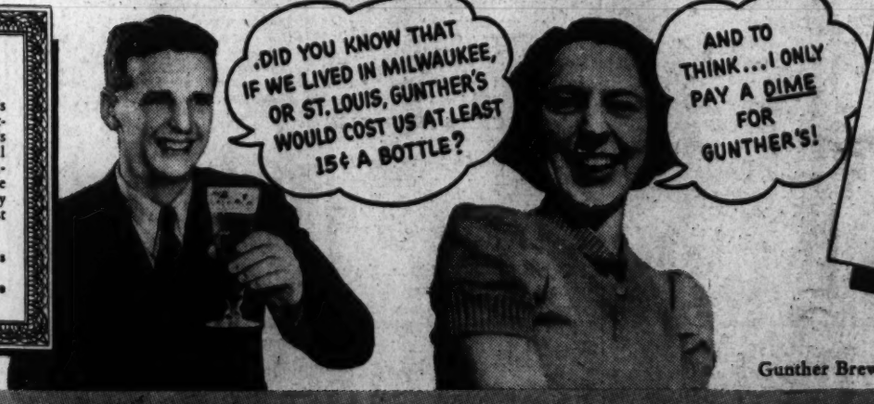
By this Pledge

Let it be known that Gunther's beer will always be brewed according to the highest standards of the art of brewing. We will never use any but the finest ingredients, and thus maintain the same remarkable dry lager quality that places it among the finest beers, domestic or imported.

The high cost of making Gunther's prohibits the giving away of premiums or prizes. All the value is in the Beer!



DID YOU KNOW THAT IF WE LIVED IN MILWAUKEE, OR ST. LOUIS, GUNTHER'S WOULD COST US AT LEAST 15¢ A BOTTLE?
AND TO THINK... I ONLY PAY A DIME FOR GUNTHER'S!

South Needs Pittman Bill, Says Dabney

Would Save Cotton Market, Va. Editor Tells Conference Of Educators

By the Associated Press.

Williamsburg, Va., April 7.—The proposed Pittman amendment to the neutrality act, said Virginius Dabney, editor of the Richmond Times-Dispatch, tends less toward strangulation of foreign trade than some of the other proposals, and inasmuch as the South is dependent upon such trade "almost for its existence, the bill seems in its interest."

Dabney, addressing the Southeastern International Relations Clubs today described the Pittman bill, to permit the sale of war materials to any nation on a cash-and-carry basis, as the best solution of the neutrality question "both from the standpoint of the entire country and that of the South."

South Vitally Concerned

Dabney pointed to the vital effect any legislation governing foreign trade would have on the South. "It is important to note the effect which the Pittman bill would have on Japan, the South's premier cotton market," he added. "So long as Japan remained dominant in the Pacific, and we remained neutral, Nippon could continue to buy tremendous quantities of cotton and other raw materials from the United States. . . .

"An important consideration here is that this region's enormous cotton shipments to Japan are not being used, to any large extent, for the manufacture of explosives, but rather for the making of textiles."

Delegates were welcomed to the opening session by Dr. John Stewart Bryan, president of the College of William and Mary, and Sidney Jaffe, president of the college's International Relations Club.

Hitler Plans Only Waste

Hysteria must be opposed with heroism and force limited by the setting up of freedom, President Bryan told the conference. He said he did not believe "the situation in Europe today, especially in Germany, is the development of a mass movement such as Germany has often witnessed in the past."

"We recognize that the Nazis have dynamics," Bryan said, "but it is the dynamics of destruction. Hitler had no plan but to lay waste; his symbol is not the plough and the spade, but the torch and the sword; his purpose and his inevitable end must be the destruction of all that the world so far has built up, and we cannot stand by and allow the fabric of 10,000 years of painful struggle to be torn into a thousand parts and the fragments given into the hands of the yellow races."

More than 250 delegates from eight States, representing 88 colleges, registered for the three-day conference at William and Mary. Yesterday the delegates were entertained on sightseeing trips through Colonial Williamsburg, to Yorktown and Jamestown and at an informal dance.

Dr. Clyde Eagleton, of New York University, said that if the United States "would take a definite lead today, we could reorganize the law-abiding states into a combination so powerful that the law-breaking states would not dare to challenge it."

Avoid War, Says Eagleton

Such action, Dr. Eagleton said, "is the only way I know that we can avoid war; and if it means war, as some say, at any rate it will be a war for which we are prepared and in which we have help."

He added, however, that the United States "cannot even take a step in such a direction so long as the neutrality act remains as it is. It puts our foreign policy into a straitjacket and makes it impossible for us to defend our rights or to prevent aggression."

"The first task before us, if we wish to have any foreign policy," he said, "is to change the neutrality legislation" by permitting discrimination against the aggressor.

Dr. Eagleton said the Pittman resolution would be worse than "what we now have; it would break the heart of China."

Kidneys Control Blood Pressure, Va. Scientists Told

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., April 7.—Dr. Harry Goldblatt, of Cleveland, reported today the kidneys were the key to the cause of high blood pressure, a major cause of death among the Nation's businessmen.

He told the American Association of pathologists and bacteriologists that physicians had suspected that the kidneys played a large part in causing high blood pressure, and that his experiments on animals proved that restriction of the blood supply to these organs could result in a permanent condition of high blood pressure.

Removal of a kidney with restricted blood circulation, he reported, often resulted in a return to normal blood pressure, if the removal were early enough.

Va. Racegoers Warned To Avoid Route 5

Richmond, Va., April 7 (AP).—The State highway department advised motorists today who plan to drive from Williamsburg or beyond to the Curles Neck races near Richmond tomorrow to use Route 60 to Providence Forge and 155 to Charles City.

The department pointed out that the small Chickahominy River ferry on Route 5 could carry only three cars at a time and that the service had been somewhat slowed down by construction of a bridge.

Lieut. Kay, Warehouse Fire Hero, Promoted to Captaincy

Fills Vacancy Created by Death of Capt. Barber; Commissioners Also Promote Sergt. Ankers and Private Meredith

Lieut. John W. Kay, hero of the Kann's warehouse fire and recipient of many commendations yesterday was appointed a captain by the commissioners.

KAY

ANKERS

At the same time the commissioners made Sergt. John N. Ankers a lieutenant to succeed Lieut. Kay, and promoted Pvt. Edwin Meredith to the rank of sergeant.

Capt. Kay joined the Fire Department on December 17, 1924, was made a sergeant in January, 1933, and promoted to the rank of lieutenant, March, 1936. He is attached to No. 8 Engine Company.

Capt. Kay was born on September 28, 1900, in Bozeman, Mont. He was educated in the public schools of Idaho, later enlisting in the Marine Corps. After a year's service on the west coast, he was transferred to Quantico for several years.

A member of the Knights of Columbus, Capt. Kay is married and lives at 300 Taylor street northwest.

Sergt. Ankers was awarded a special compensation by the Commissioners for outstanding efficiency and commendations for his work at the Kann's warehouse fire. He was appointed a private on August 1, 1923, and was promoted to a sergeancy in October, 1930. He is attached to the No. 15 Engine Company.

Private Edwin Meredith joined the service on July 1, 1926, and was granted special compensation by the Commissioners in 1933 for outstanding efficiency. He is located at the No. 18 Engine Company. The promotions were made to fill the vacancy created by the death of Capt. F. E. Barber.

Charles Curtis' Estate Appeals Tax Ruling

The state of the late Vice President Charles Curtis asked the Board of Tax Appeals yesterday to review a ruling that it owed $21,478 in estate taxes.

Curtis died February 8, 1936, leaving an estate valued at $790,301. Harry K. Curtis, executor, contended the Commissioner of Internal Revenue was wrong in not allowing deductions of $26,436 paid the executor and $15,100 paid the estate's attorney.

Life Begins Often for Zoo's First and Only Head Keeper

"Billy" Blackburne, Who Never Takes Time For Lunch and Hasn't Had a Vacation In His 48 Years, Is Expert at Midwifery

(This series is about men and women 70 or older who are finding so-called "old-age" is really a lot of fun. They still are producing and getting a big thrill out of their work or hobbies. You know some qualifiers. Tell us who they are—Editor's note.)

By Gerald G. Gross.

The man in the picture is William H. Blackburne, who has been head keeper at National Zoological Park 48 years. He is holding the twin daughters which were born to jaguar couple Lopez and Rose on March 25. This is the first picture of the baby jaguars, but approximately the 9,417th of the stern but kindly custodian they're shown with.

Scarcely a week ever passes in which life doesn't begin somewhere among the 3,000 specimens in Mr. Blackburne's charge. Perhaps the main reason for his youthfulness and vitality today is his midwifery duties. Ministering to infant bears, buffalo and monkeys, even lending obstetrical aid to some of the larger animals at times, seems to have a rejuvenating effect on their protector. Maybe that's why the stork is his favorite bird.

Never Takes a Vacation

All that needs to be said to show how much the head keeper enjoys his work is this: He has not taken a vacation since he came to the Zoo as its first keeper on February 1, 1891. In 1913 he took time out for four months to go to Egypt, but the purpose of that trip was strictly official, to bring back two elephants, three camels, a pair of cheetahs and miscellaneous baboons, antelopes and smaller things.

"Billy," or "Blackie," as he might be called by a few of his most intimate friends, doesn't even leave the park for lunch. Many years ago he found that he could get along quite comfortably on two meals a day, breakfast and dinner. These he takes at his home, 1410 Harvard street northwest.

No two days are alike for him. Monotony is not one of his worries. On Monday he may be summoned by an assistant keeper to inspect an ape that is refusing its food. The next day, perhaps, he'll be giving advice on cage alterations in the snake house and on Wednesday he may assist at the delivery of an oryx. On Thursday a photographer will want him to pose with some baby jaguars. Friday he'll be medicating a sick fox and Saturday he will uncrate a bevy of new specimens in the bird house.

His Agility Is Envied

Mr. Blackburne climbs nimbly into animal cages with an agility envied by many of his younger assistants. Slow of speech, he sometimes terrifies green reporters and photographers by his sharp answers to unreasonable requests but to those who know him he is one of Washington's kindliest and most accommodating men.

His patience probably will be tried a bit this week-end, as Easter Sunday and Monday attract the year's largest crowds at the Zoo. The holiday throngs are pretty rough on both the greensward and the animals and nothing riles Mr. Blackburne more than an animal-teaser.

WILLIAM H. BLACKBURNE

"The ideal Zoo visitor," he says, "doesn't throw peanuts to meat eaters, doesn't poke umbrellas or canes at the animals and doesn't annoy them in any way.

"It's too bad that there are so many of the other kind of visitor."

WPA Rolls Cut by 950 In Maryland

No Projects Closed, State Head Reports; Work in Frederick Among Curtailments

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, April 7.—Maryland's WPA program is providing jobs for 950 fewer persons than one week ago, State Administrator Francis H. Dryden reported today, but no complete project has been closed down.

Beginning Monday the State WPA program will employ 14,050 persons; an additional 4,035 are employed by other Federal agencies and on Federal projects financed from WPA funds.

The reduction was started Monday on orders from National WPA headquarters. The curtailment was nation-wide, and resulted from a reduction in funds.

Dryden said the reduction in Maryland had been made as follows:

Area 1, comprising Baltimore city, Baltimore county, Cecil county and Harford county, 271 persons.

Area 2, made up of 12 counties in southern, central and western Maryland, 636 persons.

Area 3, comprising the eight eastern shore counties, 43 persons.

"The program of reducing WPA employment rolls in the state was carried through without closing down any complete project, and with the suspension of only two operating units," Dryden said. "One of these was in Frederick county, the other in Allegany county."

Beta, Dog Mascot Of U. of Va., Given Royal Funeral

Charlottesville, Va., April 7 (AP).—Beta, the wise old beer-drinking dog lord of the University of Virginia, got a burial with full honors today. Dean Ivey F. Lewis agreed to pronounce the eulogy.

The blocky and pedigree-less Beta was as much of a university mascot as the Navy goat or the Army mule, even though he never was officially designated as such.

He went to classes—when things got dull—and was unmolested by professors. He got free meals at student restaurants and boarding houses, drank beer offered him and slept most anywhere he wished.

A student cortege left the Beta Eheta Pi fraternity house this afternoon to carry Beta to a grave just outside the university cemetery. The student newspaper, College Topics, editoralized; started a campaign for funds for a marker.

An automobile struck and killed him yesterday.

Barney Neighborhood House Gives Children Easter Party

Eggs Dyed for Sunday Festivities; Group Will Attend 'King of Golden River' This Afternoon at Hotel

At an Easter party yesterday the children of Barney Neighborhood House dyed eggs in preparation for festivities to be held Sunday and a group of the children have been invited to attend the performance of The King of the Golden River this afternoon at the National Hotel.

Tomorrow morning 15 girls and boys will be the guests of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church at an egg hunt in the garden of the Neighborhood House.

Monday afternoon 40 children who will take part in the Barney House May Festival next month have been invited to National Park College for an Easter picnic. After the picnic, the children will present a 45-minute program in the Odeon Theater of the college.

Scheduled for presentation are the Barney House Pipers under the direction of Miss Mabel Holgate; Bohemian songs and folk dances by the 11-year-olds and a playlet, Peter Rabbit, to be given by the children between 7 years and 13 years old.

4 Held for Jury In Slaying of Va. CCC Enrollee

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 7.—Four men arrested recently in connection with the slaying of James Hill, 22-year-old colored CCC enrollee in Caroline County, were held for the grand jury following a preliminary hearing before Trial Justice George F. Conway at Bowling Green yesterday.

They are Wilson Green, 22, and Fleming Brown, 20, both colored, and Gordon Miller, 29, and Clarence Mickelberry, 36, all of Hanover County.

Hill's body with two shotgun wounds in the chest was recovered from the Mattaponi River about two weeks ago.

Missing Va. Girl Perished in Woods, Sheriff Believes

By the Associated Press.

Jonesville, Va., April 7.—Hope for the safe return of missing Eliza Darnell was all but abandoned today with the announcement of Sheriff R. F. Giles that he believed the young schoolteacher had wandered off and perished in the hilly wilderness of Lee County.

Sheriff Giles disclosed that Miss Darnell had suffered from a serious nervous disorder and inasmuch as he found no evidence to the contrary, he said he felt sure she had merely walked away from home six weeks ago and become lost in the mountains. She was clad only in light clothing when she left her Keokee home, he said, and probably died of exposure shortly thereafter.

Warring Brothers, Sadur to Ask Separate Trials

Three codefendants of Emmtt Warring jailed boss of the numbers racket, will ask Justice Laws Thursday for separate trials on charges of conspiracy to defraud the Government of income taxes.

Gordon L. R. Sadur, Leo Paul Warring and Charles (Rags) Warring have faced the court beside the "brains of the gang" in the two trials, the second of which ended with disclosure that Emmitt tampered with both juries.

His brothers and the income tax expert, Sadur, now claim that they could not get a fair trial if Emmitt were tried with them, because the jury tampering, for which Emmitt is serving 26 months in jail, would be used against them as showing Emmitt's "consciousness of guilt."

Gov. Price Gets Bid To Blossom Fete

Richmond, Va., April 7 (AP).—A committee of Winchester citizens officially invited Gov. Price today to attend the sixteenth annual apple blossom festival at Winchester April 27 and 28.

The committee included State Senator T. Russell Cather, Henry Covington, F. L. Largent, jr., and J. P. Arthur.

After the visit to the Governor's office, they discussed plans for the festival with Col. M. S. Battle, director of the division of motor vehicles, and N. Clarence Smith, chairman of the conservation commission.

D.C. Churches Mark Holy Saturday

Period of Vigil For Resurrection To Be Celebrated With Paschal Rites

Holy Saturday rites are scheduled to be held in local churches today.

A period of vigil for the Resurrection, the service is celebrated in Catholic churches with the blessing of the new fire and the paschal candle, singing of the prophecies and solemn high mass, while in many Protestant churches, following an ancient tradition, holy baptism is administered to catechumens whose preparation has been carried on during Lent.

At the Church of the Immaculate Conception, services will begin at 8 a. m., with blessings, and at 9 a. m. the solemn "Mass of the Dawn" will be celebrated, with Dr. John K. Cartwright as celebrant; the Rev. Joseph P. Bradley as deacon, and the Rev. Joseph V. Gedra as sub-deacon. Boy choristers will sing. Confessions are to be held from 3:30 to 6 p. m. and 7 to 9 p. m. The Litany, Kyrie, Gloria, Sanctus, Benedictus and Vespers will be chanted. Services at the Franciscan Monastery will be held at 6:30 a. m. and 8 p. m.

Cathedral Services

With Canon Precentor William Bradner officiating, holy baptism will be administered at evening prayer services at 4 p. m. today in the Bethlehem Chapel of the Washington Cathedral.

Sacred music, prayers and messages keynoted to the significance of the Crucifixion were heard by thousands of Good Friday worshipers here yesterday, among them an audience in Franklin Park attending services sponsored by the Washington Catholic Evidence Guild, where the Rev. Dr. John Tracy Ellis, of Catholic University preached.

Dr. Ellis' talk, as well as 2 of the 14 Stations of the Cross conducted by Catholic clerics, were broadcast. Other participating priests were Dr. Charles Hart, director of the Evidence Guild; the Rev. Aloysius Burggraff, C. S. P., superior of St. Paul's College; the Rev. Clement Breen, O. P., of the Dominican House of Studies, and the Rev. Mark Kennedy, O. M., of Holy Name College. Music, consisting of passages from the requiem mass, was furnished by a vested choir of Catholic University seminarians.

Dr. Beery Preaches

A Methodist Union service at Foundry Church was addressed by Dr. E. C. Beery, presiding elder of the Southern Methodist Church.

Also speaking were Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of the host church; Dr. J. M. M. Gray, chancellor of American University; Dr. G. Ellis Williams, Dr. Oliver J. Hart, Dr. R. W. White, Dr. W. S. Abernethy, the Rev. O. G. Robinson and Dr. H. W. Burgen.

Featuring the observance at the Washington Cathedral were meditative addresses by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, at the Three Hour Devotion service. Additional rites were conducted during the day by Canon Anson Phelps Stokes and Canon Edward Slater Dunlap.

Other Episcopal services were held at St. John's, Sixteenth and H streets northwest; Epiphany, Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation, and Christ Episcopal, Georgetown.

Joint Episcopal Rites

Attention of Lutherans was focused on a service at the Church of the Reformation, sponsored by the Washington Lutheran Ministerial Association. The Rev. Edward Goetz, pastor of Zion and Lutheran Church, and president of the association, presided.

At Grace Episcopal Church, Ninth and D streets southwest, congregations of the community gathered for joint rites. Among the pastors who spoke were the Rev. Harry V. Porter, the Rev. Ralph E. Sharpe, the Rev. Karl G. Newell, the Rev. J. Lloyd Black, the Rev. Richard T. Scholl and the Rev. Meade Bolton MacBryde, host church rector.

Traditional Franciscan dramatic services, depicting the funeral of Christ, drew more than 2,000 to the Franciscan Monastery. During the services the statue was lowered from the cross on the altar and borne in solemn procession to be interred in the holy sepulcher to await resurrection services Easter morning.

During the services the monks wore, instead of the usual dark habit, cassocks of white with black cowls. Mass of the presanctified will be celebrated in the monastery at 9 a. m. today.

Nats Beaten by Bees, 8 to 4, in 13 Innings

Springer, Terps Blank Dartmouth, 10-0

Fielding Play Saves Own Shutout

Earl Extends Streak To 15 Scoreless Innings; Md. Batters Collect 13 Hits

By Jack Munhall.

Sidewinding two hours of complete frustration at Dartmouth yesterday, young Earl Springer, Maryland's clever southpaw, extended his string of runless innings to 15 straight and chalked up his second consecutive shutout victory as the hard-hitting Terps trimmed the defending champion of the Eastern Intercollegiate League, 10 to 0, at College Park.

To the unrestrained glee of approximately 1,000 student rooters and the consternation of the futilely swinging Big Green band, Mr. Springer tacked onto his recent five-inning no-hitter against Ohio State a four-hit performance, so masterful as to dispel all doubt that he is the classiest college pitcher in the area.

Never in serious trouble after the third inning, the moon-faced trimly built senior mowed down the opposition in monotonous fashion, retiring the last 10 batters, starting with two out in the sixth. It was in that frame that the Terp Terror experienced his last bit of trouble with the Northern visitors. The trouble appeared in the guise of a ringing triple to deep center by Osmo Linden, who thus was credited with the only extra-base blow for Dartmouth.

Saves Own Shutout

But Linden stayed at the far corner, for Springer up and worked on the next Big Green hitter with such intensity that the poor fellow sent a weak fly to Hugh Keller in right field. But before it is forgotten, mention must be made of the great fielding play with which Springer saved his shutout moments before.

Seeing his drive fall between Lefty Chumbris and Keller in right centerfield, Linden was all in favor of risking a dash home, especially since Eddie Johnson's relay of Keller's peg fell far short of its mark and yards to the third base side of Catcher Bob Burns. But before he could prove so foolish, Springer dashed in from the mound, scooped up the ball and bluffed him back.

That was the blow that finished the gamely fighting Dartmouths, for never again did one of them reach first as Springer rid himself of the last threats to his supremacy in one, two, three fashion.

And when the tabulation was taken it was found that this youngster, who was just a so-so pitcher until late last season, had fanned seven and walked only two as he completed 17 innings with but one unearned run charged against him. The first and only tally Springer has allowed was made by Ohio State in the second inning of the Terps' opener. Springer worked the first three innings in that game, gave up two hits.

Terps Get 13 Hits

Paled by the brilliance of Springer's latest mound masterpiece was another ferocious batting attack Burt Shipley's Maryland nine uncorked. Thirteen solid hits rattled off the Terps' power-laden bats, beating a tattoo on the offerings of two Dartmouth hurlers. John Linden, a big righthander, worked the first six innings and was touched for nine hits and six runs, before he happily turned over the burden to Ed Hughes, an equally large lefthander.

To Hughes' discredit he yielded Maryland's highest single output of runs—four in the eighth—as the Old Liners twice loaded the bases on four singles and a hit batsman. It happened this way:

Burns singled to center. Springer broke his bat as he dropped a one-bagger to right, Burns taking third. Adam Bengoechea batted for Shorty Chumbris and fanned, as did two Maryland pinch-hitters before him. George Knepley was struck on the finger by a pitched ball, loading the basis. Sherrod Robertson beat out a bunt to third, Burns scoring.

Hugh Keller, brother of the Yankee rookie star, flied deep to center and both Springer and Knepley crossed the plate. Then Eddie Johnson brought in the final run by singling home Gordon, who had run for Robertson.

Knepley, with a double, a single

Safe at First . . . Argument at Plate in Maryland Game

Upper—Hugh Keller, Terps' rightfielder and brother of Charley, the Yankees' rookie star, crosses first base in the seventh inning on a fielder's choice. Osmo Linden, Dartmouth, made a fine stop of it. Lower—George Knepley, Maryland first baseman, is dancing a jig after being hit on the finger by a pitch in the eighth. Metz and Bulla Tied for Lead At Pinehurst

Pace Setters in 'Land Of Sky' Golf Play Turn in Cards of 70

By the Associated Press.

Asheville, N. C., April 7.—With a frosty northwest wind whipping them in the face, two young Chicago professionals, Dick Metz and John Bulla, cracked par by two strokes today, to tie for the first-round leadership in the $5,000 "Land of the Sky" open tournament that winds up golf's winter campaigning.

Metz and Bulla played the par-72 uphill and downhill Asheville Country Club course in 70 shots, to take a stroke lead over four professionals, as the field turned to a second 18-hole round, to be played on the Beaver Lake layout.

As the youthful Chicagoans mastered the tricky greens and fairways, two favorites, National Open Champion Ralph Guldahl, who has won his last two starts, and Henry Picard, the smooth stroker from Hershey, Pa., practically shot themselves out of the running for the top prize of $1,200 with first-round scores of 76 and 77, respectively.

Denny Shute, the former professional champion; Jimmy Thompson, golf's swatting king; Paul Runyan, the present P. G. A. titleholder, and Gene Kunes, of Philadelphia, gave standard figures a one-stroke

Connie Mack Believes Yanks Won't Win Flag

By the United Press.

Memphis, Tenn., April 7.—Connie Mack, white-haired manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, tonight joined the slowly growing list of baseball stalwarts who doubt that the New York Yankees will win the American League pennant this year.

Mack, who will be 77 on his next birthday, hopes to win another championship sometime, but he isn't optimistic enough to think his team has the power this year. He readily admitted the Athletics didn't have an outside chance.

"My team can't beat the Yanks," Mack said, "but they can be beat. It'll be a Herculean task, but Boston, Detroit, Cleveland or Washington might do it."

Reds Defeat Red Sox, 7-2, Behind Moore

By the Associated Press.

Lexington, N. C., April 7.—Four-hit hurling by Whitey Moore and a barrage of extra-base blows gave the Cincinnati Reds a 7 to 2 victory over the Boston Red Sox here today.

Successive homers in the second by Goodman and Craft were followed in the third by successive doubles by Jim Wilson and Goodman, and in the next frame three singles all but put the game away.

A fumble, a force, Riggs' double and Berger's single brought in the final two runs in the eighth.

Athletes Are Doing Right Well With Finances, Uncle Sam Finds

By the Associated Press.

Athletes and sportsmen took a sizeable chunk out of the Nation's pay roll in 1937.

The Treasury's annual salary report to the House Ways and Means Committee showed that Mickey Cochrane, former manager of the Detroit Tigers, received $36,000 salary and a $9,000 bonus. Lou Gehrig got $36,000 for playing first base for the New York Yankees.

Bill Terry, manager of the Giants, was paid $30,000, while Joe McCarthy, manager of the World Champion Yankees, received checks totaling $27,500.

New York, April 7 (AP).—For his gallant stand against Henry Armstrong a week ago, Davey Day, Chicago lightweight, today was given a ten-round bout with Pedro Montanez, Puerto Rican slugger, to be fought in Madison Square Garden May 23.

Promoter Mike Jacobs announced the signing and said each had agreed to come in under 147 pounds.

Boston Gets Five Runs In Late Spurt

Alexandra Is Victim After Hurling Good Ball for 3 Innings; Leonard Is Effective

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent.

Orlando, Fla., April 7.—The Nats encountered a bit of a delay today—four extra innings—but they succeeded finally in losing their fourth straight ball game to major league opposition. Today their conquerors were the supposedly punchless Boston Bees, who cracked down with five runs in the thirteenth inning to win an 8-to-4 game.

The fellow who felt the Bees' sting, finally, was the vast Venezuelan, Alex Alexandra, who had been sailing along serenely until the thirteenth arrived. For three innings, Alexandra had not allowed a run or even a hit, and then he he lost his control, his effectiveness, his sense of propriety, and the ball game.

One of the first things he did was to commit a balk with men on first and third to give the Bees a run gratis. Then they helped themselves to four more by crowding five of their 16 hits into that thirteenth inning.

Nats Fizzle Chance

For a brief bit it appeared as though the Nats might win the ball game back in the ninth when they came up with two runs to tie the score. The Veteran Jim Turner, who had been pitching five-hit ball to that point, was driven from the box, and the Nats had the winning run on second base with none out, only to fizzle their chance.

Bobby Estalella, whose late-inning heroics have become somewhat habitual, was the prime mover in that ninth-inning uprising. Going into the inning trailing, 3 to 1, the Nats immediately busied themselves. Jimmy Bloodworth led off with a single and Estalella drilled a three-bagger far over Al Simmons' head, ground rules holding him to a triple. Estalella scored the tying run on Myer's infield hit, for Sammy West had walked.

With men on first and second and none as yet out, the Nats disdained the sacrifice and went down swinging in one-two-three order thereafter against Relief Pitcher Tom Early.

Leonard Effective

Dutch Leonard, who pitched the first six innings before Harry Kelly took over, surrendered three runs to the Bees, but after a rocky first inning in which Tony Cucinello's triple to right gave the Bees a 2-0 lead, Leonard was effective. The run they scored against him in the sixth evolved from a pair of consecutive loopers to center.

Held to one hit in the first four innings, the Nats finally came up with a run in the seventh without benefit of a hit. It evolved from two bases on balls and a wild throw by Shortstop Eddie Miller.

Harry Kelly gave the Bees only two hits and no runs during the seventh, eighth and ninth and after the Nats tied the score in the ninth, Alexandra got the job.

The Venezuelan was stirring up some great satisfaction among the Nat bosses through the tenth, eleventh and twelfth. He was showing a good, fast ball, a sneaky curve and he walked only one batter and struck out two. But in the thirteenth they caught up with him.

The Nats got a run for themselves in the thirteenth, but don't let that mislead you. They didn't show any punch. They got the run because John Pezullo, Boston's fourth pitcher, forced it over the plate with three bases on balls.

Harder to Hurl First Game for Cleveland

New Orleans, La., April 7 (AP).—Manager Oscar Vitt of the Cleveland Indians named the veteran Mel Harder today as hurler in the Tribe's opening game at St. Louis April 18. Moundsman Bob Feller's initial performance will come three days later when the Indians open in Cleveland against the Detroit Tigers, Vitt said.

One Dizzy Dame That Had a Lot of Friends at Bowie

Dizzy Dame (No. 2), H. Kerr entry ridden by Jockey H. Impuy, scored an upset in the fifth race at Bowie yesterday, beating a formidable field to the barrier in a driving finish. The Dame rewarded her backers with a $16.80 mutuel—which presumably wouldn't cause any hard feelings among the sportsmen. Light Chatter (No. 1), the W. Elliott entry, finished second under Jockey V. This Morning

With Shirley Povich

To Whom it May Concern:

Orlando, Fla., April 7.—An added feature of the major league All-Star game at New York in July will be a 100-yard match race between champion speedsters of the two leagues . . . George Case, of the Nats, and Don Gutteridge, Cardinal sprinter, are the likely entries . . . Manager Leo Durocher, of the Dodgers, former teammate of Gutteridge, yesterday wagered $200 on Gutteridge to beat Case if they meet . . . His bet was covered by a Washington player who declared it was a soft touch . . . "Durocher's letting sentiment run away with him. He's one of those National Leaguers who think, for example, that Ducky Medwick is a better ball player than Joe DiMaggio" . . . Another bet made here last night was a 2-to-1 wager that neither the Dodgers nor the Nats would finish in the first division.

POVICH

Joe Cambria, the Nats' scout who dug up Roberto Ortiz from the Cuban wilds, failed to get the drift of an April Fool story to the effect that Judge Landis had ordered Washington to turn Ortiz over to the Athletics, because they had prior claim to the pitcher . . . Cambria spent eight dollars in telephone calls to Orlando frantically trying to check on the truth of the story . . . In the Nats' hotel here yesterday, a strapping, middle-aged fellow walked up to Walter Johnson and said: "Mr. Johnson, I played against you in an exhibition game in Oklahoma 25 years ago. I'm still proud of a hit that I didn't make off you" . . . Johnson, mystified, asked, "What do you mean—a hit you didn't make?" . . . "Well," said the stranger, "I made a foul. That was the closest any of us came to getting a hit."

Cronin, Foxx May Slip

One of the reasons the baseball experts are not in a hurry to vote the Red Sox a good chance to beat out the Yankees is two-fold: Joe Cronin and Jimmy Foxx . . . Cronin hit .325 last year and Foxx led the league with .349 . . . They do not figure to improve on that performance this season and the chances are they will not repeat it . . . Lefty Grove was so irritable in the Red Sox camp this spring that at one point Manager Cronin requested newspapermen to desist from asking Grove how his ailing arm was feeling . . . Joe Cronin is a minority of one in the belief that his Bobby Doerr is as capable a second baseman as the Yankees' Joe Gordon . . . The Boston Bees today introduced a pitcher named Tom Early and Bobby Estalella almost decapitated him with a blast through the box . . . Had the pitcher not flung his glove in front of his face to knock down the ball, it would have been the late Mr. Early.

The Cubans in the Nats' camp have the last laugh on the young bushers who laughed at 'em when they joined the club two months ago . . . The young Americanos have been dispatched to the minors but the Cubans will be retained . . . Noting Charley Gelbert in the Nats' lineup the other day, Manager Leo Durocher of the Dodgers, said "There is the fellow who gave me my greatest break in baseball" . . . Durocher went on to explain that he was headed for the minors until Gelbert suffered his hunting accident, whereupon the Cardinals bought him from the Reds to play shortstop and started him on the path to the management of the Brooklyn club . . . George P. Marshall, Washington sports impresario, is interested in setting up a miniature auto racing plant on the Ballston, Va., field.

Orlando Now Seeking Giants

Jimmy Bloodworth, the Nats' utility infielder, is a refreshing contrast on a club comprised in the main of drab personalities . . . Fun-loving, carefree, he approached this department today and said: "Please put a story in the paper about me. I like to read it." . . . Okay, Jimmy . . . The Orlando Chamber of Commerce, which has invited the Boston Bees to train here with the Nats next spring, is also casting covetous eyes at the New York Giants . . . The Giants have already announced that they are quitting their Baton Rouge, La., camp . . . Al Simmons is planning a trip around the world when he hangs up his baseball spikes . . . Arch McDonald will do a special broadcast for New York consumption at the opening game between the Nats and the Yankees on April 17.

Clark Griffith is frantically attempting to swing a deal for a first baseman, despite reiterating his satisfaction with Jimmy Wasdell . . . Buddy Myer has made one bet on the 1939 season: That he will outhit Ben Chapman of the Indians . . . The batting championships of the big leagues may be won this year with the smallest averages since 1915 . . . due to the protruding stitches on the ball which give the pitchers a better grip . . . Clark Griffith cracked down on Joe Krakauskas today with a loud bawling out . . . He discovered Krakauskas, in a playful mood attempting to see how far behind his right arm he could twist his left arm, a pitching medium currently valued by Griffith at $50,000.

On the Line

With Considine

New York, April 7.—Tony Galento is serious with no reporter, no relative, no handler, manager, second or acquaintance. With all of them he is a studied clown. It is next to impossible to wring sense from this fat and fabulous oaf. The most thoughtful of his public utterances in the past year has been "I'll moider da bum."

CONSIDINE

But there is one man who knows him and has the dubious honor of being able to look into his soul, his name is Herman Taylor, a husky-voiced and bespectacled Philadelphian.

Taylor financed Galento's dizzy rise to the challenger's role. He paid for the medical attention that saved the fighter's life a year ago. He staged the most successful fights Galento ever engaged in—and perhaps the most respectible. He okayed the contracts on the Galento-Louis fight without telling Galento what his percentage would be, and this was the supreme test of their intimacy. For Tony is tighter than a rain-swollen desk drawer.

Friendship Withstands Grave Crisis

Taylor couldn't build up Galento alone. First he needed money. All the cash he wanted came from an old and wistful gambler named Jimmy La Fontaine, who ran a big gambling barn balanced dexteriously on the border-line of the District of Columbia and Maryland and thus immune to both armies of gendarmes.

Taylor and La Fontaine have been friends for a long time, the friendship even withstanding a grave crisis when a mob of tight-lipped Philadelphia mobsters marched into La Fontaine's one night, using submachine guns as passwords, and rudely broke the bank without the traditional methods of rolling a long series of naturals.

Taylor's other ally was, and is, Joe Jacobs. Joe schemed, Taylor dreamed and La Fontaine was cleaned. And so this summer a fat man who has lost 22 fights, been technically knocked out three times, advanced beyond man's normal prime, broken all the rules dear to the heart of an Eagle Scout, left a heady odor and peals of anguish in the last five places he has fought, will meet Joe Louis in a million dollar fight.

But though Tony has been before (and in) the public eye for months on end, nobody has been able to find out what he really thinks about Louis. If anybody knows the answer to this, it is Taylor.

We encountered Mr. T. in Federal Court the other day, cupping an ear to the tax-evasion trial of Johnny Torrio. And when it came time for the boys to go out and burn up a couple of cigarettes in a few hot gulps, we seized Taylor's lapels and asked for the unadulterated low-down on Galento's state of mind.

Tony Says Louis Will Quit . . . If Hit

"The fellow honestly thinks he's going to win," Taylor told us quietly. "Hell, he knows he can't hit with Louis, or move around with him or box with him. He's told me more than once that mechanically Louis is the greatest thing he ever saw. But he'll admit all that, and still look me in the eye and say he's going to beat him. And the reason he says that is because he's absolutely convinced that Louis has a little kyoodle in him."

"Kyoodle?"

"Tony means Louis'll quit if he's hit," Taylor explained. "Tony's studied those films of the first Louis-Schmeling fight a hundred times. We were talking about it only yesterday and he said, 'Listen, Herman, I know a quitting guy when I see one. Schmeling didn't knock him out. Louis just quit. He quit as much as Max Baer did. You watch. Let me land one left hook on his face or in his stomach, and he'll curl up. Maybe he won't go down just then, but you won't see much more fighting from him. He didn't fight back against Schmeling when he was nailed, did he?"

"I don't know what's going to happen any more than you do," Taylor said, with a shrug, "but I know one thing and that is that Tony believes what he told me. He believes it now and he'll believe it the night he goes in there. He's even convinced me, and I don't convince easy."

Taylor thinks it is a mistake to hold the fight in New York. "It would do a half a million more in Philadelphia," he told us. "After all, we still hold the record for fight attendance down there. Galento's got a better rep in Philadelphia. The people have seen him bust over some pretty good guys and they really believe he can fight. We'd put in a lot of cheaper seats—maybe around ten bucks—and pack a hundred and twenty-five thousand people in that Sesqui Bowl."

Richmond U. Ace Hurls No-Hit, No-Run Game Against Yale

Ned Butcher Turns Back Elis, 11 to 0

Stocky Right-Hander, In First Complete Game, Strikes Out 14 Batters

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., April 7.—Ned Butcher, University of Richmond sophomore, entered baseball's hall of fame today with a no-hit, no-run performance against the Yale nine. The Spiders won, 11 to 0.

There was nothing remotely resembling a hit as the stocky right-hander, pitching his first complete game in a varsity uniform, mowed down the opposition. He struck out 14 batsmen.

Only four Yale men reached first base. Butcher walked three of them and Doonan got a life in the eighth inning when Bill Burge, Richmond rightfielder, dropped his routine fly.

To make his triumph complete, Butcher had a perfect afternoon at the plate with a triple, two singles and two bases on balls.

Four Middie Sports Teams In Action

Navy Nine Crosses Bats With Harvard In Feature Today

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, April 7.—Navy's spring sports program goes into high gear tomorrow when the academy sends tennis players, the baseball team, lacrosse stickmen and dinghy sailors into action.

Boston University will furnish the opposition in the opening intercollegiate dinghy regatta on the Severn. Navy has scheduled a full program of dinghy sailing races this spring. The Middies are favored over the Bostonians, due to superior knowledge of wind and water off the Naval Academy.

Navy's baseball team, rolling along at a .500 clip with a defeat, a victory and an 11-11 tie on the records, will cross bats with the Harvard nine.

Navy's diamond dusters found their batting eyes against the University of Vermont Wednesday and hammered out an 11-7 win, gained on an eight-run bombardment in the third inning.

Harvard will also tangle with the Midshipmen in lacrosse. The Naval Academy 1938 intercollegiate champions are fielding one of their best defensive stick squads in history this year.

The academy varsity tennis team will also meet an Ivy League rival when the Yale netmen engage the Tars in the opening tourney of the season.

David A. Marks, ranked No. 1 on the academy squad, will lead the racquet aces into action. Marks has been announced as an entrant in the all-England championships at Wimbledon this year, along with Joe Hunt, Los Angeles, who was ranked No. 5 in the national standings last year.

Hunt, who gave up a place on the Davis Cup squad to enter the Naval Academy, is a plebe (freshman) and not eligible for varsity competition.

Games Wanted

Manager Jim Murphy is booking practice games for the Interior Department baseball team. Teams having diamonds call Dupont 3642 or write to 66 Randolph place northwest.

Tavern Practice

The unlimited nine of Tex's Tavern will hold its first workout of the season Sunday on the No. 1 Monument diamond at 1 p. m.

Boston Red Sox Picked To End Yankees' Long Reign

Griffmen Selected To Head 2d Division

Cuddy's Selections

1. Boston
2. New York
3. Detroit
4. Cleveland
5. Washington
6. Chicago
7. St. Louis
8. Philadelphia

By Jack Cuddy.

Copyright, 1939, by the United Press.

New York, April 7 (U.P.).—All good things must come to an end. And the regime of the New York Yankees is no exception, if you believe in insurance percentages, mortality rates, etc. That's one big reason why I'm picking the Boston Red Sox to win the American League pennant this season.

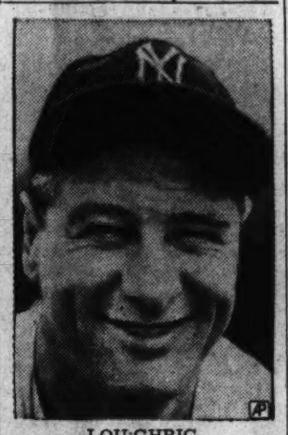
For three straight years Joe McCarthy's Yanks have walked away with the American circuit flag, to say nothing of the world series. Now they are trying for their fourth consecutive bunting. Only one club ever won four straight pennants since the beginning of major league history in 1876. John McGraw's New York Giants knocked off four National division standards in a row from 1921 through 1924.

Gehrig On Way Out

Another reason why I believe the Yanks have reached the end of the winning trail is that Lou Gehrig, their "iron horse" first baseman, is virtually certain to fade out this season. And the passing of Gehrig, psychologically, will be as much a blow to the Yanks as if Manager Joe McCarthy were taken away from them.

Gehrig has been one of the greatest first basemen the game ever knew. Always a reticent chap, he never got the publicity his iron man feat of 2,122 games in 13 seasons deserved. But more than that, the box score never showed what an inspiration the piano-legged fellow was to his team, ever since Babe Ruth started to fade. I've watched the Yanks for several years, and I know that Gehrig's never ceasing enthusiasm at first base, in the dugout or in the showers is something they can't replace with another man who can merely field or bat.

On paper the Yanks look like certain winners, and most writers are predicting their fourth victory, but I say they'll come in second, at least 10 games behind the Red Sox. The Yanks seem to have the pitching and defensive class of the field. They have Ruffing, Gomez and Pearson—and possibly Ferrell. But Ruffing is getting old, Gomez is undependable, and no one ever knows what Ferrell will do. Their second baseman, Joe Gordon, is tackling his sophomore year—always the toughest in baseball. Shortstop Crosetti is a fragile fellow. Anything can happen to this club—which is more famous for extra bases than their fifth place in the American League batting averages—and probably will.



LOU GHRIG

Too Much Melon

Besides it's no longer a team of hungry fighters. Most of the players have taken three straight world series melons. And that's bad for any club.

I pick the Red Sox because they've got the best spirit of any outfit in the circuit this season. They're out to win. And they've got the team with which to do it. The Bosox, who finished second last year, are a young, hustling outfit. Manager Joe Cronin is gambling on Jim Tabor at third, and Rookie Ted Williams in the outfield. But those are good gambles, virtually certain to come through. Woody Rich will round out their pitching staff, and Jim Bagby should have a fine year. Their pitching will be sufficient, even if Ancient Lefty Grove fades out.

Detroit will give the Yanks a hard fight for second place. The Tigers might win out if they had enough pitching to offset their outfield weaknesses, but I don't think they have. So we'll put them in third place. Cleveland should finish fourth, despite the prevelance of temperament and the lack of team spirit. Even if Bob Feller wins 25 games I don't see how they can finish higher.

Nats Placed Fifth

Washington will head the second division in fifth place. The Senators might even rise into first division if Bucky Harris' Latin-American contingent of rookies comes through as Bucky expects.

Chicago will make sixth place with difficulties, after the hunting-accident loss of its ace pitcher, Monty Stratton. Catcher Joe Glenn and Outfielder Myril Hoag, obtained from the Yankees, may help the St. Louis Browns, but with Manager Fred Haney having only one genuine rotating pitcher, Buck Newsom, I don't see how they can finish above seventh.

The Athletics, as usual, are building players for the future—of other clubs, and will finish a long last.

Japan's Top Star Quitting Tennis

Tokyo (Correspondence of the Associated Press).—Jiro Yamagishi, national singles and doubles champion and Japan's outstanding Davis Cup star, is retiring from competitive tennis to take a job in the navy department. The 26-year-old court ace, who graduates from Keio University this spring, has taken examination for the post of naval paymaster.

In rejecting an invitation to represent Japan in Davis Cup play this year, Yamagishi said:

"Being a tennis star is all right, but there is no future in it. It isn't as if I had been commissioned as an official diplomat by the foreign office to promote international relations through sports. When I start work, my tennis days are over."

Colonials Win Practice Game With Virginia

Score Twice in Second Half to Gain 13-0 Decision Before 500

Charlottesville, Va., April 7.—George Washington eleven registered two touchdowns in the second half to defeat Virginia here today, 13 to 0, in the first practice game of the spring training season. Nearly 500 undergraduates were on hand to witness the contest.

The two teams played on even terms during the first half, with the Cavaliers having an edge on first downs. Once in the first quarter Virginia had the ball inside of the Colonials' 20-yard mark.

The Cavaliers started the second half with a rush, registering three first downs in a row, but lost the ball on downs on George Washington's 20-yard line. The Colonials promptly took to the air and in less than five minutes had a touchdown.

A long pass, Richardson to Nowaskyj, placed the ball past midfield, and soon thereafter another long heave, Richardson to Bolick, netted the score.

Virginia came back strong and twice carried the ball within George Washington's 20-yard line, but the Colonial line tightened each time and the ball was lost on downs.

The Colonials' touchdown came in the last minutes of play, Sartore crashing through tackle for the score, and a moment later booted the ball through the uprights for the extra point.

Coach "Bill" Reinhart used practically all of the 32 members of his squad. Backs who saw action included A. Nowasky, Welc, Mortinson, Carta, Grady, Wilamoski, Sartore, Urick, Botson, Hutchinson and Zelaska. Other linemen used were Picco, Douglas and Demo, ends; Clarey and Popich, tackles; Robins and August, guards, and Hardin, center.

Woodberry's Track Squad Wins Opener

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Woodberry, Va., April 7.—The Woodberry track team opened its schedule here today with a 64 2-3 to 52 1-3 victory over Jefferson Senior High of Roanoke. At the close of the eleventh event the visitors had pulled up to within 1-3 of a point of the Orange team, but a clean sweep in the 220 by Capt. Ned Campbell, Ned Dart and Earl Furman clinched the meet for Woodberry. A first place by Cole in the broad jump increased the winner's margin by one point.

Double wins were scored by Highfill of Jefferson in the two hurdle events, Capt. Campbell of Woodberry in the 100 and 220, and Horner of Woodberry in the shot and discuss.

Georgetown Nine, Vermont Meet Today

Powers Is Slated To Hurl for Hoyas; Terp Trackmen Busy

The once deferred pitching debut of Vinnie Powers, Georgetown's sophomore sensation, as the Hoyas expose their tender one-game winning streak to Vermont at the Hilltop, and Maryland's track and lacrosse double-header at College Park feature today's college sports schedule.

The Georgetown game, second of the season for Joe Judge's nine, is called for 3 o'clock, while the Terp cinder artists go into action against V. P. I. at 1:30 at Byrd Stadium. The lacrosse match with Penn State, expected to be another easy victory for the Terrific Terrapin Ten, will follow immediately, about 3:30.

Impatient after rain canceled Monday's Harvard contest in which he was scheduled to receive his baptism of varsity base hits, young Powers has promised he'll try even harder today in an effort to shut out the Bobcats and justify his praise as perhaps the greatest first-year pitching prospect Judge has handled in college.

Plans to Serve "000's"

Though he would rather have tested his steaming fast ones and subtle curves on Harvard's hard-hitting crew, Powers can't wait to serve up "000's" to Vermont and beat the Northerners worse than did Maryland last week. Which looms as a considerable assignment the Hoya rookie has undertaken, for, if memory serves, the Terps blasted Vermont, 24-5, with a three-homer 24-hit attack.

Powers will be opposed by either Al Pesarik, a lefthander, or Anso Belardinelli, he of the rhythmical name, who suffered untold agonies while attempting to get Maryland out. Catching for Vermont will be Mike Boucher.

Though its performance at College Park was hardly a favorable commentary on its ability, Vermont enjoyed success in 1938, winning 12 of 23 games. From Georgetown, however, the nine which is coached by the former Red Sox star, Larry Gardiner, absorbed a 10-1 shellacking.

Terp Trackmen Are Confident

Victim of hard luck which turned apparent victory over Dartmouth into a 63-63 tie meet, Maryland's track team is confident this afternoon of recording their first outdoor victory. Even stronger in the running events than expected, the Terps hope to have a prohibitive lead over V. P. I.'s Keydets before the field events are staged. Last year Maryland nosed out V. P. I., 64-62, at Blacksburg.

It is quite likely that several Byrd Stadium records will be toppled, for with the experience of one meet under their belts, Maryland's crack runners are set for much improved efforts. Joe Murphy, in the 100 and 220; Jim Kehoe, who lowered the 2-mile standard against Dartmouth, and Allan Miller, in the 440, are only a few with chances of recording new marks.

Penn State, a better-than-average college lacrosse squad, nonetheless figures to prove easy for Maryland's high-powered stick slashers who opened their season by bowling over Mount Washington, defending national club champion, and then romped over Harvard Monday.

Maryland Nine Leaves On Four-Day Trip

Boasting two straight victories, Maryland's baseball team left almost immediately after yesterday's game for Blacksburg where today it plays V. P. I. in the opener of a three-game swing against Southern Conference opposition.

On Monday the Terps meet V. M. I. and the following afternoon Washington and Lee, both at Lexington.

V. M. I. Defeats Vermont, 7 to 3

Lexington, Va., April 7 (AP).—Eddie Stumpf, sophomore southpaw, hurled four-hit ball and struck out eight batters to give Virginia Military Institute a 7-to-3 victory today over the touring Vermont nine.

The Keydets pushed in three runs in the opening inning on Mitchell's double, Carney's walk and Trzeciak's single followed by an error on Gray's grounder. They collected another tally in the seventh and bunched four hits in the eighth to add three more runs.

Boston U. Golfers Beat W. Maryland, 9-0

Westminster, Md., April 7 (AP).—Western Maryland College golfers took a 9-0 beating today from Boston University in their first match of the season. The visitors won every game.

The summary:

Harvey defeated O'Lear, 3 and 2; Sullivan defeated Burtis, 1 up; Gibson defeated Thomas, 2 and 1; Holcomb defeated Lanassa, 3 and 2; Pearson defeated Lesinski, 1 up; Feigand defeated Eckenrode, 4 and 3.

Hagerstown Legalizes Sunday Bowling

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, April 7.—Bowling will be legalized in Hagerstown on Sunday between 1 and 7 p. m. A bill to that effect was passed by the general assembly and is now awaiting signature. Basketball games also are permitted between those hours under the bill, although games have been played regularly on Sunday for some years.

Ranking Star

Record Entry In Cumberland Valley Meet

Hagerstown, Md., April 7.—With more entries than at any other time in its history, the Cumberland Valley Basketball Tournament gets under way here Tuesday with teams entered in four weight classes.

Stewart C. Paxton and Harry Avey, tourney directors, have set the divisions as 115, 130 and 145 pounds, and unlimited. Most of the strong quints in the State are entered and several outstanding out-of-State teams.

Winners of each class will receive gold medals and the runners-up will take bronze. A large trophy will go to the unlimited victor, and medals will go to the high-point man and best foul shooter in the tourney. The entry deadline is set for today. Pairings will be announced through The Washington Post Monday.

Title Table Tennis Play Starts Thursday

Table tennis matches to select Washington's champion players will be played Thursday and Friday at the central Y. M. C. A. Boys from 12 to 17 years of age will compete in the matches, sponsored by "The Gentlemen of the Green Cloth," senior boys game club of the "Y."

8 Chairmen Retain Posts With U.S.G.A.

Two Washingtonians Listed in Make-Up Of Sub-Committee

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 7.—Eight chairmen were continued in office for another term today as Archie M. Reid, president of the United States Golf Association, announced the make-up of the U. S. G. A.'s sub-committee for 1939.

The newcomers are Mrs. L. W. Robey, of Philadelphia, who replaces Mrs. H. D. Raymond, of Evanston, Ill., as head of the women's committee; Charles V. Rainwater, of Pensacola, Fla., who replaces R. Arthur Wood, of Chicago, retired, as head of the public links committee; W. F. Nicholson, of Denver, succeeding Perry E. Hall, of Bridgeport, Pa., as sectional affairs chairman, and Jess W. Sweetser, of New York, successor to Paul Leslie, of Louisiana State, as intercollegiate affairs chairman.

Those remaining in office are: Rules of golf, Morton G. Bogue, New York; championship, Harold W. Pierce, Boston; amateur status and conduct, Edward L. Cheyney, Cleveland; membership, Frank M. Hardt, Philadelphia; implements and ball, George W. Blossom, jr., Chicago; international relations, J. Frederic Byers, Pittsburgh; green section, Frank M. Hardt, Philadelphia; museum, George W. Blossom, jr., Chicago.

Two Washingtonians On Golf Committee

Dr. John Montieth, jr., and Dr. M. A. McCall are the only Washingtonians listed, serving on the greens section committee. Robert McLean, jr., of Baltimore, serves on the committee on sectional affairs, representing the Maryland State Golf Association. Merrill Lord, who served on the museum committee from the District last year, is listed from Wakefield, Mass.

The city is not represented on the public links committee for the first time in years, Dave Herman having resigned. Preston Pairo, Baltimore, is the nearest representative.

Shorter Hunt Season Drafted In Virginia

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., April 7.—The State game commission drafted alternate proposals today for shortening the hunting season as a conservation measure.

The proposed changes, which will be acted on at a later meeting, the date of which probably will be decided tomorrow, would open the season November 20 instead of November 15 on quail, grouse, turkeys, bear and deer.

Under one plan, the season would close December 31 and under the other it would run until January 10. The present season is November 15-January 20 east of the Blue Ridge and November 15-December 31 west of the Blue Ridge.

The commission's proposals were drawn after a public hearing today at which arguments were presented for and against changing the present hunting season dates.

L. G. Crutchfield, of Richmond, one of a delegation appearing from the James River Conservation Association, also urged the commission to make it a misdemeanor to net or sell rockfish during March and April, their principal spawning months. The proposal was taken under advisement.

Winston Montague, of Richmond, a game columnist, suggested that Thanksgiving Day be made the opening date for the hunting season in this section of the State and that it be extended to February 1 or 15.

J. S. Montgomery, also of Richmond, declared most hunters preferred the November 15 opening, and said if the season had to be limited to 60 days he would prefer November 15-January 15 to any later dates.

The commission had a number of requests for changes in local regulations, and will continue in session tomorrow in an effort to clear its agenda.

Dick Bartell Ordered To Rest Indefinitely

Chicago, April 7 (AP).—Shortstop Dick Bartell, of the Chicago Cubs, faces an indefinite stay in the hospital for treatment of his injured left ankle.

Dr. John F. Davis, Cubs' physician, said today he had ordered the $24,000 a year star to remain in the hospital and continue treatments of the ankle which has bothered him since March 12. It was believed unlikely that Bartell, acquired from the New York Giants last winter would be with the Cubs when they begin defense of their National League championship 11 days hence.

Polly Hastings Scores by Four Lengths in Bowie Feature

Teddy Patic And Kenty In Dead Heat

Finish Even for Place Money; Winner Pays Backers $7.50; Jockey Oros Wins 96th

By Walter Haight.

A Star Correspondent.

Bowie, Md., April 7.—A horse and a boy, both stars in New Orleans last winter, transferred their success to this track today and accounted for chief honors in the Godlington Manor Purse, serving feature purposes on the Friday program. Polly Hastings, winner of three races at the Fair Grounds, and Jockey Johnny Oros, who was riding his ninety-sixth winner of the year, was the combination that finished four lengths in advance of a dead heat for second money between Teddy Patic, from the Bedwell Stable, and Kenty, of Charles Town fame. By coincidence, both of the horses figuring in the deadlock for the place are sons of the late sire, Teddy.

Polly Hastings, a 5-year-old daughter of Peter Hastings, had a good backing in the crowd of 7,000 and paid a $7.50 mutuel.

The winning mare was given a brilliant ride by Oros, whose horsemanship has been questioned despite his fine record. The Illinois boy had Polly Hastings in front to the backstretch. At the far turn, Kenty, Teddy Patic and Knoxville, the latter the favorite, all turned on the heat and came up abreast of Oros' mount. The leading rider probably figured that these horses were going to run themselves into the ground. He then rated his charge back to fourth position.

In the stretch, Oros went to the whip and Polly Hastings, having had her punch saved, bounded past her rivals to be opening a wide gap at the finish. Teddy Patic and Kenty fought it out desperately and the camera could not separate them.

The track, slow at the start of the card, was in good condition for the feature. The winner was clocked in 1:47 3-5.

J. P. Jones' Nicky, running the second race of his career, came from well back to win the first race going away over a field of eight juveniles going the usual four furlongs. With Jockey J. Mattison in the saddle, the Chestnut Oak colt had a length advantage over Onisac, of the Metcalf—Sears entry. Mrs. D. C. Sands' Port Wales was third. Praetor, a son of Pompey purchased last winter by Robert E. P. Hoover for $4,500, was installed the favorite and set the pace most of the way in his first appearance on a track. Nicky ran the distance in 0.50 and paid a $12.50 mutuel.

Paying $20.50 and putting the finishing touches on an $66.90 daily double, Joaney B., owned by W. Witteman, won the second race by a half length from Jack Sting. Sport Heel, the favorite, completed the six furlongs in this position. After Mr. Duncannon and War Rumor had flattered their backers by battling for the pace, Jack Sting and Joaney B. staged their struggle with the 6-year-old mare prevailing at the all-important wire.

Jockey Mattison piloted his second winner of the program in the fourth race. Despite having to pull up when in tight quarters during the first quarter, Mattison put Modern Age to a stout drive in the stretch that earned the verdict for the $11.80 shot. Nicholas S. and War Grand were closest at the end of the six furlong test. War Grand, like the winner, had trouble in the contest.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NICKY, $12.50, $6.00, $3.70; ONISAC (entry), $6.70, $3.80; PORT WALES, $3.30.

NICKY, sent up on outside to improve position after breaking well back, responded to intermittent punishment to wear down leaders and win going away. ONISAC came between horses with a rush and closed full of run. PORT WALES went to PRAETOR'S pace in opening furlong and held on willingly, but was no match for other two.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:08. Off 3:11½. Winner, F. Witteman's b. m. (6), by Cherokee—Mamie O'Jane. Trained by J. Webber. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:15 4-5.

*Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JOANEY B., $20.50, $8.30, $5.60; JACK STING, $5.00, $3.80; SPORT HEEL, $2.90.

JOANEY B., forwardly placed from break, moved up to press pace of JACK STING and disposed of latter under pressure in closing sixteenth. JACK STING came to outside to take lead approaching stretch, but tired slightly under drive in closing stages. SPORT HEEL dropped back after three furlongs and came willingly nearing end. UNLIMITED moved up menacingly in early stretch and hung thereafter.

Daily Double, Nicky and Joaney B., Paid $86.90.

WEATHER, CLEAR. TRACK, GOOD.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward, foaled in Maryland. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:36½. Off 3:38. Winner, Mrs. P. Da Lee Watts' ch. h. (8), by Golden Spire—Daisy Vin. Trained by P. D. Watts. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:14.

Horses	Jockeys	Wt.	Post	St.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Straight
GOLDEN VEIN	(G. Smith)	116	5	1	4½½	4½½	1½	1h	$2.35

BRAVING DANGER	(Workman)	119	2	5	5nk	6	6	6	16.00

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GOLDEN VEIN, $6.70, $3.10, $2.60; CORNWALLIS, $2.90, $2.40; AMHURST, $3.70.

GOLDEN VEIN, taken under steadying restraint after breaking on top, saved ground to stretch turn, came through between horses to take command and drew out to win with speed in reserve. CORNWALLIS was rushed to front leaving backstretch and held all safe but GOLDEN VEIN. He pulled up sore. AMHURST forced early pace of MATCH POINT and got to front, but weakened. MATCH POINT had good early speed and stopped.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:06. Off 4:09. Winner, J. Kuzelman's br. g. (3), by Wise Counsellor—Free and Easy. Trained by P. Brady. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:14 3-5.

Horses	Jockeys	Wt.	Post	St.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Straight
MODERN AGE	(Mattison)	111	6	5	6d	3½	2nk	1½½	$4.90

KITSY S.	(Snider)	106	3	8	7½½	8	8	8	35.30

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MODERN AGE, $11.80, $5.00, $3.40; NICHOLAS S., $3.90, $2.60; WAR GRAND, $4.30.

MODERN AGE, forced to be taken up when in close quarters going into first turn, recovered to be sent to leaders in midstretch and won while opening a gap. NICHOLAS S. raced ARBOREAL into defeat to get to front, but could not resist winner. WAR GRAND, taken up when shut off on inside leaving backstretch, came gamely in closing stages on inside. ARBOREAL first away, shook off MIGHTY BUSY to take command, but weakened in stretch run.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:36½. Off 4:37½. Winner, H. Kerr's b. m. (5), by Distraction—Greedy Girl. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:14.

Horses	Jockeys	Wt.	Post	St.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Straight
DIZZY DAME	(Dupuy)	102	2	2	1nk	1½	1h	1h	$7.40
LIGHT CHATTER	(Polk)	110	1	3	3½½	3½	3½	2d	4.40
SLATTERN	(G. Smith)	109	4	6	5d	5d	4h	3½½	3.45
LITTLE DRIFT	(Martin)	108	6	1	2½½	2d	2nk	4h	3.40
HALASAN	(Oros)	108	3	4	4½	4½	5h	5h	1.85
DISSEMBLER	(Dupps)	114	5	5	6	6	6	6	25.40

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DIZZY DAME, $16.80, $6.80, $4.00; LIGHT CHATTER, $5.10, $3.20; SLATTERN, $3.60.

DIZZY DAME withstood repeated challenges of LITTLE DRIFT to stretch and responded to strong handling to outlast LIGHT CHATTER in final drive. LIGHT CHATTER was rated to stretch, came to inside in closing test and just missed. SLATTERN lacked early speed and closed with rush in closing sixteenth. LITTLE DRIFT was used up forcing pace and weakened in stretch. HALASAN could not keep up.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; allowances. The Godlington Manor. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 5:05½. Off 5:09. Winner, R. A. Coward's b. or br. m. (5), by Peter Hastings—Irish Polly. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $700; second, $135; third, $135; fourth, $30. Time, 1:47 3-5.

†Dead heat for place.

Horses	Jockeys	Wt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Straight
POLLY HASTINGS	(Oros)	107	4	3	1½½	4h	3h	1h	1h	$2.75

†KENTY	(Machado)	111	5	5	5h	1h	2h	3h	2½½	3.00
LANDLUBBER	(Stevenson)	110	6	6	6	8	5½	4h	4h	10.70
KNOXVILLE	(Seabo)	110	4	4	2h	3h	4h	5h	5h	1.95
RED JACK	(Duppa)	110	2	1	3½	5½	6	6	6	16.90

Two-dollar mutuels paid—POLLY HASTINGS, $7.50, $3.20, $2.70; TEDDY PATIC (dead heat), $3.70, $4.10; KENTY (dead heat), $2.80, $3.10.

POLLY HASTINGS set early pace, was taken back when KENTY, TEDDY PATIC and KNOXVILLE were rushed to her at the far turn, was rated to stretch, responded willingly when placed to drive and drew out to win easily. TEDDY PATIC could not keep up in opening quarter, was sent to leaders with rush and weakened in closing test. KENTY, forced wide at first turn, was hustled to front on outside, lost ground entering stretch and came with good energy at end. LANDLUBBER made up some ground after trailing. KNOXVILLE stopped after a half.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:38. Off 5:39½. Winner, W. Elliott's ch. g. (7), by Reign Count—Tetrarch's Captive. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:59 1-5.

Horses	Jockeys	Wt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Straight
COUNT TETRARCH	(Stevenson)	113	3	1	1½	1h	1½½	1h	1½	$2.05

CORUM	(G. Smith)	113	2	2	5h	6	6	6	6	11.40

Two-dollar mutuels paid—COUNT TETRARCH, $6.10, $3.10, $2.40; ROWES CRUMP, $3.20, $2.50; GYRAL, $3.80.

COUNT TETRARCH assumed command at once, was rated while setting pace, responded to hand riding in stretch and held sway under drive. ROWES CRUMP saved much ground at first turn to reach contention, was under steadying restraint in stretch, but could not menace the winner seriously when put to pressure. GYRAL was blocked while trying to get through approaching backstretch, but was held safe in final stages. AMERICA FIRST was rushed to gain forward position along backstretch and weakened.

At The Post

Bowie, Md., April 7.

Dear Al:

Johnny Oros, who gained the lead in the race for national riding honors when Don Meade decided to go on a vacation, is one of the few jockeys of any consequence hereabouts who does not own an automobile. The 17-year-old sensation says his mother has ruled against a car for him. Oros has no idea how much money he has made. He sends every cent except bare expenses home and it is banked for him. He seems to be a well-informed young man despite his one year at high school. Four years of working horses was demanded by his father before he was allowed to take a mount in a race. His contract is held by his uncle. He has had numerous good offers from big stables, but his parents prefer that he stick with his uncle. They believe that this is best for him, due to his youth. Oros is not a swell head. He talks a lot about his younger brother's prospects as a jockey. The younger Oros hasn't ridden a winner as yet. Johnny loses his apprentice allowance on closing day at Pimlico. That means he will not have the 5 pounds off that is wanted by many horsemen. However, Oros believes he can bridge the gap and keep right on winning, providing he can get mounts with a chance. While it doesn't do those who bet on Chief Cherokee any good, the horse has been barred from future racing in Maryland because of his poor condition. Chief Cherokee drew a lot of play here the other day, but when the starting bell rang he stood still. The horse appeared to be sore as a boil on the way to the post and should not have been allowed on the race track in the first place. But like the official photo that failed to show Anticosti in the picture, the rule comes after it has hurt somebody. I talked to a man on the inside of the totalizator controversy last night. He explained that the three Maryland tracks are not opposed to the tote. In fact, he says, they want the automatic betting machine. But they do not want to pay the money asked. The tote people demand, and get at other tracks, 1 per cent of all the money going through the machine. This is about one-seventh of all the money taken out of the betting. The track operators contend that the tote is far from one-seventh of the whole show. They have turned down the tote at that price. Efforts were made to pass a law that would force the installation of them. That is why the track people did everything they could to block it—and did.

BILL

First race—Mama's Boy has been outclassed in recent races but is dropping down with cheap platers today. He won over such as Patsey Begone last year and should have little trouble here. Graeme Cracker has early speed and may be hard to beat. Evar won her last and will be on edge for her best effort.

Second race—Sun Antioch needed his race last Saturday and, off Florida form, he gets the call over this field. Royal Cross was an easy winner at Oaklawn over similar company and appears the one to beat. Heraldic had fair form last year and will be dangerous if fit.

Third race—Noon Step had early speed his last start here but failed to last in the stretch. With that race under his belt, he should carry his speed to win this. Arden Lass beat the top horse last out and will be the one to beat today. Pimilico Queen was a winner her only start here and has a good chance to upset the dope.

Fourth race—Clodian is making his first start of the year, but has worked well over the Bowie track. He was beaten a nose by Conquer last fall and meets second raters in this heat. Be Jabbers beat the best handicap horses at the Fair Grounds. Likes off-tracks, but has been racing routes. Lady Maryland should improve off her race behind Rough Time opening day.

Fifth race—Challephen was favored over this field last out in his first start of the year. Took the top of the head of the stretch, but tired in the final 60 yards. With that race as a conditioner, he should whip this field. Hypocrite beat the top horse in the Bowie, is back in form and may be hard to beat. Honey Cloud likes the track, but recent races have been poor.

Sixth race—Mantagna was off slowly on Monday but was coming fastest of all at the end. This one has class at the longer route. Should get up to win it. Lady Democrat's last was impressive. Long Bit is nicely weighted here and can better that poor performance last week.

Seventh race—Chief Evergreen raced well his only start this year and should improve off that race. He was a winner on this track last fall and is in smart hands. Dian is an honest mare that can be relied upon give her best; making first start this year but had good form at Charles Town. Elsie J carries a light package and will have the services of the popular Jockey Oros.

Best bet—Noon Step.

Track Squad Of G.W. High Will Vie Today

Presidents Entered In Annual Competition At U. of Richmond

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Alexandria, April 7. — George Washington High School formally opens its 1939 track season tomorrow, when a full squad will be sent to the second annual Central District meet at Richmond, on the University of Richmond field. Six Virginia Class A Conference schools will participate, including Thomas Jefferson and John Marshall, of Richmond; Petersburg, Hopewell, Washington & Lee, and George Washington.

Washington & Lee, only northern Virginia member of the State conference, is defending champion, and will be favored to repeat their 1938 victory.

Willis Benner, G. W. mentor, is entering a full team in order to give his charges needed experience. The Presidents hav littl hope of finishing among th top scorers. The squad was hard-hit by graduation last June, and is composed mostly of green, untried material.

Five veterans comprise the nucleus of the G. W. squad, and are expected to break into the scoring in their respective events. Included in the group are "Dinky" Scott, middle distance runner; Irving Lawson and Billy Bontz, shotput and discus; Ed Nowland, high jumper and high and low hurdles entry, and Harvey Bourne, who holds the school record for the mile run.

Among the newcomers who have been impressive in workouts to date are Jimmy Taylor, football star, who is a candidate for the 100 and 220-yard dashes, and Henry Grimm, a promising-looking freshman javelin thrower.

A new individual record for the season was established by "Red" Fleisher, outstanding local bowler, yesterday at the Health Center Alleys, when he turned in a single game score of 175 to eclipse the mark of 170 formerly held by Jimmy Colasanto, of the Rotary Club team. Straight strikes in the last four boxes made the record game possible, after Fleisher had chalked up only two spares in the first six boxes.

Victorious in their first two starts over Falmouth and Lee-Jackson High, respectively, George Washington High School tossers will return to action Tuesday after a brief Easter vacation, when they engage Devitt Prep on the G. W. diamond. Johnny Murnane will twirl for the Presidents.

The G. W. nine opens its Virginia Class A Conference campaign next week-end, opposing Petersburg and Thomas Jefferson, of Richmond, on Friday and Saturday.

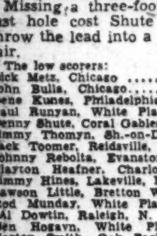
Sports Postscripts

Joe Judge, one of the few collegiate coaches who doesn't view his prospects through dark glasses, believes his current Georgetown nine may develop into the best in history . . . Only the uncertainty of his pitching caused the former National star to qualify his prediction . . .



JUDGE

All of which makes the Hoyas' two games with Maryland next month seem even more attractive, for it is no secret that Burt Shipley is pleased beyond his keenest expectation at Maryland's power and slab strength, as furnished by Earl Springer . . . Judge's pitching worries, incidentally, were diminished no end Tuesday when Capt. Bill Reynolds unwound four stellar innings against American University's Eagles, which he allowed only two singles and exactly 000 runs . . . One of the outstanding young college ball players around is Maryland's sophomore third baseman, Sherrod Robertson, a nephew of Owner Clark Griffith of the Nationals . . . Possessed of a shot-gun throwing arm and a dangerous batter, the former Roosevelt all-high selection bids fair to make Terp rooters forget Waverly Wheeler at the hot corner . . . Against Vermont last week, Robertson belted two home runs and a single.

One of the rarest plays in baseball was seen at College Park yesterday when two runners scored on an outfield fly, which now is ruled as a sacrifice . . . In the eighth inning with the bases loaded, Hugh Keller slammed one way out in center and before the ball could be relayed to the plate Springer and Gordon, who ran for Robertson after the latter singled, came home standing up . . . Thus without being charged with an official time at bat Keller drove in two runs . . . Gilbert Hunt, eccentric star and the tenth ranking national player last season, is tutoring George Washington's tennis squad, which features Davie Johnsen, the District's junior champion, and Bob Faris, the Colonials' all-around athlete who also plays football, basketball and an unusually fast game of table tennis . . . The Colonial football squad finished its spring training session with yesterday's scrimmage at Virginia . . . Coach Bill Reinhart was satisfied with the progress shown and also with the improvement of two of his low-slung backs—Billy Richardson and Tom Grady, the latter a sophomore who is expected to capably replace Vic Sampson . . .

Cubs and Browns Play 2-2 Draw

Corpus Christi, Tex., April 7 (AP). The Chicago Cubs and the St. Louis Browns played today to a 2 to 2 tie, two errors keeping the Cubs from being defeated and train schedule preventing them frim winning the exhibition game.

The contest was called in the first of the eighth inning to allow the Cubs to catch a train. They had scored two runs and had two men on base and none out when hostilities halted. The score reverted to seven full innings.

Two errors, coupled with a single and a walk, gave the Cubs two runs off Buck Newsom in the first inning. The Cubs went hitless until they got another single off Bill Cox in the seventh. The Browns, checked by double plays, finally got to Gene Lillard for a run in each the sixth and seventh.

Cardinals Rout 'Chain Gang' Team, 17-9

Gastonia, N. C., April 7 (AP).—Pounding out 21 hits, including homers by Joe Medwick and Enos Slaughter, the St. Louis Cardinals gained an easy 17 to 9 victory today over the combined forces of Asheville of the Piedmont League and Gastonia of the Tarheel League, both Cardinal farmclubs.

Lon Warneke was slated to go the route, but he was not particularly effective and withdrew after seven innings, Bill McGee finishing. The farmhands walloped Warneke for six runs in the fourth inning on five hits and two walks.

Pirates Rally, Beat Chisox, 16-14

Abilene, Tex., April 7 (AP).—Playing what seemed like "over the fence is out" ball, the Pittsburgh Pirates surged from behind today to beat the Chicago White Sox, 15 to 14.

The Pirates had six homers, including two by Arky Vaughan, and the White Sox five. The Pirates' shortstop drove in 6 runs while scoring 3, making a homer with the bases loaded during an 8-run rally in the seventh. Ray Mueller, Pirate catcher, drove one over the fence with two on base during the seventh also.

Eric McNair, who sent home 4 runs with his four hits, including a home run, and Joe Kuhel, who got three for three and counted 3 times, led the Chicago attack.

Phillies Shut Out Chattanooga, 5-0

Chattanooga, Tenn., April 7 (AP).—Behind the three-hit pitching of Claude Passeau and Jim Poindexter the Phillies today shut out the Chattanooga Lookouts of the Southern Association, 5 to 0.

Passeau wrked the first five innings, yielding only two doubles by Letchas and Calvin. Poindexter took over in the sixtr and gave up only a single by Galvin, in four innings. Poindexter also sewed up the game in the seventh when he drove in 2 runs by singling with the bases full.

Prince Georges Realty Board Hits Tax Rise

Fears Proposed Increase Would Spike Building Boom

PRINCE GEORGES COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
42 University rd., Calvert Hills, Md.
Telephone GReenwood 3589.

Fearing a heavy increase in taxes will spike the county's building boom, the Prince Georges Real Estate Board yesterday petitioned the county commissioners to hold the tax rate at its "present fair level." The commissioners had announced a sizable tax increase will be included in the annual budget to be signed Monday.

The petition stated that "higher taxes will decrease present interest in home ownership in Prince Georges County by those who work in Washington and desire suburban homes," and warned that other nearby counties in Virginia and Maryland will attract these home-seekers.

It also was pointed out that the trend in many States is to eliminate real estate taxes. This has been accomplished, the petition stated, in California, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Michigan, Vermont, Illinois, North Carolina, Delaware, Massachusetts, New York and Oklahoma.

L. W. Dunn was named chairman of a committee to inquire into the Capital Transit Co.'s plans for providing transportation to county communities north of Mount Rainier after construction of the proposed terminal loop there. Dunn was instructed to find out whether the present street car service would be continued beyond Mount Rainier or whether buses would be substituted.

The Transit Company's plans for the loop were approved by the Mount Rainier mayor and council at a meeting Thursday night. To be located at Thirty-fifth street and Rhode Island avenue, it will cost more than $70,000. A bus terminal also is included in the plans.

Auto Production Higher for Week

Detroit, April 7 (AP).—Ward's automotive reports estimated today that production of the automobile plants this week would total 87,019 cars and trucks, compared with 85,980 assemblies last week. It attributed the increase to "augmented activity in some independent plants and among truck manufacturers generally." Production this week of 1938 totaled 57,284 cars and trucks.

The survey said that "manufacturers are watching incoming sales very closely and have hopes that the better weather of the past week will result in marked sales gains during the first ten days of April."

Good Weather Spurs Sales For Easter

Retail Volume Holds Above Year Ago but Margin Is Small

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 7.—Demand for Easter merchandise and more favorable shopping weather served to accelerate trade activity sharply in the past week, the Dun & Bradstreet weekly review reported today.

"Retail volume continued to run ahead of a year ago in most regions, but the margin was smaller than had been expected, when the earlier Easter this year and the low level of sales last year were taken into consideration.

"For the country as a whole, the gain over the corresponding week of 1938 was estimated at between 2 and 7 per cent. The margin of increase in the East narrowed slightly to 1 to 4 per cent as rain and cold retarded the full expansion of spring purchasing.

Wholesale Markets

"Some sizable Easter orders were still arriving in wholesale markets. Buying for future needs, however, was at a very low level. Both sellers and prospective buyers were keeping a close watch on retail markets, seeking a clew as to what to expect for the remainder of the season.

"Many merchants pointed out that Easter results would determine to a large extent when they would begin their fall buying. Collections were reported somewhat weaker than in the early part of the year, but still relatively favorable compared with a year ago."

Boston Wool Market

Boston, April 7 (AP) (U. S. Dept. of Agri.). Trading in spot wools on the Boston market was very slow today. A few users were buying some new fine territory wools to be delivered in June and July from the new clip. Prices agreed upon have been mostly around 62 cents, scoured basis, delivered East, for good French combing length fine territory wools. Some users, however, were lowering their bids on wools bought in this manner.

Montgomery Ward Sets March Peak

Chicago, April 7 (AP)—Montgomery Ward & Co. reported today that March sales totaled $35,729,869, the largest amount for the month in the company's history. The total was $4,932,993, or 16.02 per cent greater than March, 1938, sales of $30,796,876, and topped the March, 1937, figure, which was the previous March peak, by $796,701.

Sales for the first two months of the company's fiscal year, February 1 to March 31, totaled $80,693,976 and were $8,132,505, or 15.4% per cent more than sales for the corresponding 1938 period.

Auto Workers Average $31.35 Weekly Pay

Pay Compares With $25.15 Per Week A Year Ago

New York, April 7.—Weekly wages of factory workers in the automobile industry averaged $31.35 in January this year, compared with $25.15 in the same month of 1938, according to the Automobile Manufacturers Association today.

Work hours per week averaged 34 at the start of this year, against 27½ last year. Hourly rates of pay remained high, being reported by the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics at 92½ cents, compared with an even 92 cents the year before. Preliminary figures for February and March show continuance of the improvement.

Automobile industry workers' wages at present compare with an average for all manufacturing industries of $23.80 a week at a base rate of 65 cents an hour. The $25 wage a year ago compared with an all-industry average of $21.90.

Are No Bar

Older workers fare as well as younger men at employment offices of motor companies, available statistics indicate. In hiring men automobile plants choose from the available men without discriminating against older individuals.

In this respect the practice of the automobile industry is in line with the recommendations for industry in general and for Government agencies, made recently by a special committee on employment problems of older workers appointed by the Secretary of Labor. The committee report concluded that there should be no discrimination on age alone.

That workers between the ages of 45 and 60 draw the highest annual earnings, and that more than half the men over 40 working in automobile plants were over 40 when hired, was shown at the time of the most recent surveys.

Sugar Consumption

New York, April 7.—World per capita consumption of sugar during the year ended August 31, 1938, amounted to 31.1 pounds as compared with 32.3 pounds in the previous year, a decrease of 1.2 pounds, or 3.7 per cent, according to a survey made by Lamborn's statistical department.

Fills a Real Need

You Are Invited to Use the Gawler Establishment for Funeral Services, Without Extra Cost

THE memory of a truly beautiful tribute lingers through the years when services are held in the Gawler Establishment.

In addition, you secure the advantage of a distinguished service to reflect your pride and good taste—yet you pay nothing extra for the prestige of Gawler Service, nor for the use of our establishment.

75 Services Cost less than	$150
132 Services Cost between	$151 and $250

The Federal Diary

By The Diarist

The Federal Diary has been changed in its form with the aim of devoting it principally to the activities, recreational and otherwise, of Federal employes in Washington. The co-operation of employes in all departments is requested in supplying the Diary with facts concerning their meetings, dances and other affairs of interest to groups or employes in general. Send or phone in these items to the Federal Diary, care of city desk, The Washington Post.

By the Diarist.

Dr. P. N. Annand has been appointed assistant chief, Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, Agriculture Department, the change being largely in the nature of designation of Dr. Annand's relation to the bureau's work. As in the past he will continue to give special attention to the integration and planning for the research work of the bureau without the interference of the overall administrative and supervisory functions, said Dr. Lee A. Strong, the bureau chief. Since 1937, Dr. Annand has been a special assistant to the chief of the bureau in work of research.

How the Federal employe unions regard the "favoritism" investigation being held by Senator Ellender is a puzzle—possibly one to Ellender himself. He invited them to air out their problems before his committee on last Wednesday, but none appeared. The hearings would seem to be a little different technique from that which the unions have employed. Mostly they go directly to the scene of the difficulties, trying to iron matters out there.

The Bronx (N. Y.) Veterans' Administration facility has begun to bill its chauffeurs for meals they ate as long ago as 1932. The chauffeurs are beside themselves about it. 'Twas like this: There had been a practice, under instructions, for chauffeurs working the 15-hour stand-by shift, which occurs every six weeks in rotation, to eat a midnight meal in the dining room of the facility. This was necessary because the chauffeurs had to remain at their posts. The practice was discontinued last August. Now the bills have come for the meals eaten. One chauffeur was soaked for $190. The officials say they will take the money from the pay checks, $2.50 a week.

If you go to the departmental auditorium, Constitution avenue, next Wednesday evening, you will hear Max K. Gilstrap, author and lecturer, do some fancy whistling. He will also speak on "Through Grand Canyon and Yosemite With a Ranger Naturalist," and will illustrate. The announcement from the NPS says: "Mr. Gilstrap will give the talk with colored pictures. He will also give a whistling lesson for the audience of how to record these bird calls. Mrs. Gilstrap will accompany Mr. Gilstrap at the piano." The only question here is that Mr. Gilstrap might whistle up some starlings, which abound near that building.

The Federal Bridge League's open pair duplicate games series begins at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening in the Wardman Park Hotel.

On April Fool's Day, certain publicists of the Interior Department Recreation Association lined up a group of 13 feminine members, photographed them, and informed them that they had been selected as maids-in-waiting to the royalty expected in Washington this summer. It is heard that the 13 girls have drafted a verbal blast on the subject of practical jokesters, which they will try to have printed in the ensuing issue of the I. D. R. A. News.

The several hundred Federal employes here who went to Puerto Rico last July on the S. S. Iroquois, under U. S. Travel Bureau sponsorship, now will have an opportunity for a reunion. Several members of the party have arranged for them to meet on Tuesday evening, April 18, in the Hall of Nations Room in the Washington Hotel where color movies and still shots made on the cruise will be shown. There will be dancing. Ted and Harriet Norman, who entertained on the cruise, will entertain at the party. Invitations have gone out to the Federal employes who were on the trip and to their friends. The party begins at 8:15 p. m.

Bob Burns Says—

They have got a wonderful big observatory up in the mountains over the other side of Hollywood, and I have been promising my wife that some night we would go up. The other night the moon was shining and all the stars were out, so we went up. Well, sir, that certainly was an experience.

They have got a big telescope up there and you can see the mountains on the moon and the canals up on Mars, but so far as I could see there wasn't any water in them. The man in charge of the telescope gave a very interesting lecture, and he told us how the earth used to be nothing but gas and was a part of the sun, but it got thrown off into space and got hard and became a planet all by itself. That is called the nebular hypothesis, and the next day I told Grandpa Snazzy about it, and I said: "Grandpa, do you believe the nebular hypothesis?"

And he said, "Yes, Robin, I do."

And I asked him why, and he said, "Well, I don't know a darned thing about it, but after a man has gone to all the trouble of finding out what it is, it seems a shame to contradict him."

Private Lives gives low-down on Senator Vandenberg in Sunday's Post

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

Bids, like leads, can be a matter of opinion, and the bidding of today's hand, while not according to Hoyle, developed most favorably for North-South, who made five clubs doubled for a fat score in a commuter-contract game.

Today's Hand

Both Sides Vulnerable
South Dealer

North: ♠ J ♡ Q 7 5 ◇ K J 8 5 ♣ 10 9 6 4 2
West: ♠ A K 3 ♡ A K 10 9 2 ◇ A Q 9 7 ♣ J
East: ♠ 10 4 2 ♡ J 8 6 3 ◇ 10 6 4 3 ♣ 3
South: ♠ Q 9 8 7 6 5 ♡ 4 ◇ None ♣ A K Q 8 7 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	1 ♡	3 ♣	3 ♡
3 ♠	4 ♡	5 ♣	Pass
Pass	Dble.	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: A ♡.

You would think that with two ace-kings and one ace-queen West would be able to take three tricks defensively, but freak distribution played a mean prank on April Fool's Day, limiting him to two.

Here is how J. H. R. jr., the contributor, tells it:

"The accompanying hand was played on April Fool's Day in a commuters' game on the Long Island Railroad train to Port Washington.

"Poor West was the one who was fooled, and who wouldn't be with his holdings?

"The play was simple. The heart ace held, then West led the king, which was trumped in the closed hand. One round of trumps cleared the suit. A small spade was led to dummy's jack, West taking with the ace. Then, with a sureness that all was well, he laid down the diamond ace, which was ruffed. From then on, the hand was a lay-down, and another freak became history."

Civic Group Indorses Radio Station Plan

Establishment of a radio station to be devoted entirely to presenting local civic matters and encouraging "home talent" has been indorsed by the First Ward Citizens Association, officers announced yesterday.

Bedtime Story

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Queen Does Her Own Work

Devoid of subjects or a throne,
A queen's still queen, though all alone. —Old Mother Nature.

Little Wanderer, the small Rabbit who had started out to see the Great World, had taken to his heels when Queen Bumblebee came humming angrily out of a hole on the ground. He didn't know why he was running from a person so much smaller than himself save that she sounded so angry that he had a feeling that it would be wise to go somewhere else while she felt that way. He did not know what he had done that she should be angry with him. He would have said, had he been asked, that he had done nothing. As a matter of fact he had stamped on the roof of what was to be her home, and he had done it while she was in there. He hadn't done it to be mean or for mischief. Nothing like that. He had stamped because he hadn't known that he was on any one's roof.

The truth is it had been her home only since he had seen her vanish in a little hole in the ground a few minutes before. Up to that time she had had no home. She had been looking for a home. That was what had led her to go in that hole. And when she got inside she knew that she had found exactly what she had been looking for. That hole was the entrance to a home that had once belonged to Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse. In it was their old nest. It was exactly what Queen Bumblebee was looking for and the instant she was inside of it she decided that this was her home. Then that little Rabbit had stamped right above her head. It had made her mad.

She had chased him only a very little way. She had something else on her mind, something much more important. You know you can't move right into an old house as you would a brand new one. Of course not, if you are a good housekeeper. It must first be thoroughly cleaned and put in order. And that is exactly what Queen Bumblebee set about doing.

From a safe distance the little Rabbit watched her. Now that he was away from her home she paid him no attention. It fairly made him ache to see any one so busy. She came and went and buzzed about and was so full of business that it seemed as if she couldn't stop a minute if she wanted to. Finally she did pause to crawl over a blossom very near to Little Wanderer.

"If you please," said he politely, "who are you?"

"I'm Queen Bumblebee. I thought everybody knew that," was the somewhat sharp reply.

"Is there a King Bumblebee?" persisted the curious little Rabbit.

"I'm all alone myself," said the Little Wanderer.

"But you don't have any work to do. I've been watching you and all you do is eat, and that isn't work," declared Queen Bumblebee. "Now if you had one half as much to do as I have you wouldn't be sitting around staring at other folks and asking foolish questions."

"They are not foolish questions. If I don't ask questions how am I to find out things? And I don't go fussing around as you do because I have nothing to fuss about, so there!" protested the small Rabbit.

"You're lucky," hummed the queen. "But this will never do. I can't be wasting my time in idle gossip."

She was off straight for the home where she dwelt all alone when she was at home. And there she was just as busy as when flying around outside. You see having cleaned house as a good housekeeper should, she was now busy making bread. Yes, sir, she was making bread. It was a special kind of bread made of pollen and nectar from flowers. She took great pains with it. And I suspect that all the time she was making it she was humming, for that very special bread was to be put to a very special use. It was to be both a food and a home for her babies. They would live on it and in it. Now what do you think of that?

Ban Reported On First Lady's Slum Expose

Started to Uncover Housing Profiteers, Senators Told

By the Associated Press.

A witness told a Senate Labor sub-committee yesterday that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt "was stopped" when she started to show that "land speculators and building material profiteers" were blocking low-cost housing in this country.

Benjamin C. Marsh, spokesman for the People's Lobby, made this statement while testifying on a proposed $800,000,000 increase in funds for he slum clearance and low rental program under the United States Housing Authority.

He said the President's wife, in her radio talks, started an expose of interests blocking low-cost housing "but was hushed up." He did not say who hushed her.

Marsh charged that the present program, carried on under legislation introduced by Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, was "a hypocritical and costly swindle" that would give all public projects "a black eye."

"It does not benefit the poor devil who actually needs low-cost housing," he said. "It just bails out the land speculator and helps the various combines who profiteer in building materials."

Michael Quill, of the C. I. O., said his group wanted a $5,000,000,000 slum clearance-low rental program, and so naturally favored the $800,000,000 increase.

He said union labor "wanted low-cost housing, low-cost food, low-cost clothes, and low-cost medical services."

Senator Ellender (Democrat-Louisiana), presiding, interrupted to ask if labor would be willing to take a lower wage on an annual basis to aid the Government housing program. Quill said labor "would co-operate if enough funds were voted."

Similar support for the legislation came from an A. F. L. spokesmen, Harry C. Bates, who testified that more than 1,000,000 building and construction mechanics were unemployed and that the USHA program promised employment for 330,000.

LOOKING FOR A DOG?

To find a good dog, pile the family in the car this week-end and visit the kennels listed in The Post Dog Directory. Dogs are listed by breeds, which makes it easy to find just the dog you want. Week days the directory is in the classified section; on Sunday it appears in the sports section on the page with George Berner's dog column.
